Scholar Athletes of the Year were selected as the highest-finishing performers at the NCAA Indoor & Outdoor Championships who also achieved USTFCCCA All-Academic Individual status. Those who earned multiple individual championship titles ranked higher in the tie-breaking process, and cumulative GPA is weighed as the final tiebreaker to establish a winner.

Separate awards are given to track athletes and field athletes for the indoor and outdoor seasons, resulting in four categories.

Cheadle and Maxwell were named co-winners for the indoor track award, Cheadle claimed the outdoor track honor outright, and Halama swept both the indoor and outdoor field awards.

Cheadle, a senior chemical engineering major with a cumulative 3.80 grade point average, claimed a pair of national titles in 2015 en route to her first Scholar Athlete awards. Indoors, she was declared the national champion at 5000 meters in a controversial finish marred by miscounted laps and finished sixth at 3000 meters. Outdoors, she won the NCAA steeplechase title in 10:25.32 to defend her national title.

She is the second woman from Washington (Mo.) to earn Scholar Athlete of the Year honors in track & field.

Maxwell, a senior chemistry major with a cumulative 3.80 grade point average, claimed the indoor national title in the mile en route to her first career Scholar Athlete award. She emerged victorious in the indoor mile national championship by the slimmest of margins, running 4:56.17 to win by approximately a third of a second. She also ran a leg of the fourth-place distance medley relay.

Her award is the first Scholar Athlete honor for the Middlebury women's program.

Halama, a junior therapeutic recreation/pre-occupational therapy major with a cumulative 3.85 GPA, became the first woman to sweep the indoor and outdoor field Scholar Athlete awards since Michelle Favre of Ramapo in 2013. Her 2015 awards bring her career total of Scholar Athlete awards to three after winning in 2014.

Outdoors, she won the triple jump with a career-best leap of 42-2¾ (12.87m) to go along with a third-place finish at 400 meters. Indoors, she won the triple jump with an indoor career-best mark of 40-9½ (12.43m) and ran a leg of the winning 4×400 relay.

With her two awards this season, The UW-La Crosse women have now won a total of five awards.
