New championships committees named

The new committees that will supervise qualification standards and allocation of resources for all NCAA championships have been appointed by the NCAA Administrative Committee.

The Divisions I, II and III Championships Committees replace the former Special Championships Standards Committee. Named to chair the new committees were Edward E. Bozik, University of Pittsburgh, Division I; Connie Claussen, University of Nebraska, Omaha, Division II, and Judith M. Sweet, University of California, San Diego, Division III.

Appointed by the Administrative Committee to serve on the committees:

Division I—The eight Division I members of the Executive Committee: Merrily Dean Baker, University of Minnesota, Twin Cities; Francis W. Bonner, Furman University; Bozik; Marino H. Casem, Alcorn State University; Lewis A. Cryer, Pacific Coast Athletic Association; Robert H. Frailey, American University; Leanne Grotke, California State University, Fullerton, and Col. Harvey W. Schiller, U.S. Air Force Academy.

Division II—Claussen and Asa N. Green, Livingston University, Division

II members of the Executive Committee; Joan Board, Grand Valley State College, and Richard B. Yoder, West Chester University of Pennsylvania, members of the Division II Steering Committee, and Victor A. Buccola, Western Football Conference, at large.

Division III—Royce N. Flippin Jr., Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Sweet, Division III members of the Executive Committee; Mary Jean Mulvaney, University of Chicago, and Russell J. Poel, North Central College, members of the Division III Steering Committee, and Robert F. Riedel, Geneseo State University College, at large.

Establishment of the new committees is part of the implementation of the block-grant funding concept for NCAA championships, approved in 1985 by the Executive Committee. Block-grant funding goes into effect when the series of 1986-87 championships begins next fall.

The Divisions II and III Championships Committees will conduct their first meetings February 24-25 in Kansas City, Missouri. The Division I committee's first meeting will be May 4, the day before the Executive Committee's spring meeting; the Divisions II and III committees will hold their second meetings that same day.

Edward E. Bozik

Connie Claussen

Judith M. Sweet

The championships committees are responsible for reviewing recommendations from the respective division sports committees (or the division subcommittees of sports committees) regarding the conduct and administration of NCAA championships within their divisions. Their recommendations will be forwarded to the Executive Committee for consideration and final approval.

For Divisions II and III, the championships committees will make recommendations regarding the allocation of the block grants of $1.1 million each that will be provided as subsidies for their respective championships in 1986-87.

In Division I, the championships committee will make recommendations regarding allocation of revenues generated by National Collegiate Championships (for which all divisions are eligible) and by Division I championships. Those revenues will be used to subsidize the events in those categories that do not produce sufficient revenue to pay transportation and per diem.

Each committee has the authority to make recommendations to the Executive Committee regarding any aspect of a championship. Executive Committee decisions regarding championships are restrained only by the provisions of the NCAA constitution and bylaws and those in Executive Regulation 1-1.

Included in the championships committees' authority are these considerations:

- Number of teams or individuals in each championship;
- Dates and sites of championships;
- Format of competition;
- Selection criteria and qualifying

Football fatalities show decline for second consecutive year

Football fatalities declined again in 1985.

Results of an annual study conducted for the NCAA, the National Federation of State High School Associations and the American Football Coaches Association revealed that only eight deaths were reported in 1985, the lowest total since the collection of data began in 1931.

Conducted annually by Frederick O. Mueller of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, Richard D.

Schindler of the high school organization, the 1985 study concluded that six of the reported deaths were direct fatalities (i.e., loss of life resulted directly from participation in football). Three of those occurred on the high school level, two in sandlot competition and one at the intercollegiate level.

Five of the six direct deaths resulted from head injuries, while the other was due to an injury to the spleen. Four of the fatal injuries occurred during games, including two that involved a ball carrier and tackler on the same play. The other direct fatalities resulted from injuries sustained in practice.

The remaining two fatalities were indirect deaths, which are caused by systemic failure as a result of exertion while participating in football or by a complication that was secondary to a nonfatal injury. Indirect deaths declined for the second year in a row. One occurred at the college level and was the result of sickle-cell crisis. The other, which took place at the high school level, was the result of heart failure.

Last year, nine football fatalities were investigated in the study. Six were direct deaths, and three were indirect fatalities. The reductions in direct and indirect football-related deaths continue a trend noted in earlier editions of the study.

Since 1960, most of the direct fatalities have been caused by head and neck injuries, and 1985 was no exception. Mueller and Schindler offered the following suggestions for preventing such head and neck injuries:

1. Athletes must be given proper conditioning exercises that will strengthen their necks so that participants will be able to hold their heads firmly erect when making contact.

2. Coaches should drill athletes in the proper execution of the fundamentals of football skills, particularly blocking and tackling.

3. Coaches and officials should discourage players from using their heads as battering rams when blocking and tackling. The rules prohibiting spearing should be enforced and practiced in games. Players should be taught to respect the helmet as a protective device and that the helmet should not be used as a weapon.

4. All coaches, physicians and trainers should take special care to see that the players' equipment is properly fitted, particularly the helmet.

5. When a player has experienced or shown signs of head trauma (loss of consciousness, visual disturbances, headache, inability to walk correctly, obvious disorientation, memory loss), he should receive immediate medical attention and should not be allowed to return to practice or game without permission from the proper medical authorities.

In addition, the authors of the study offered the following as measures to prevent heat stroke and other causes of indirect fatalities:

1. Each athlete should have a complete physical examination with medical history and an annual health-history update. History of previous heat illness and type of training activities before organized practice begins should be included.

2. Acclimatize athletes to heat grad-

Committee members receive 1099 forms

Members of all NCAA committees—including the Presidents Commission, Council and Executive Committee—have been sent copies of Internal Revenue Service form 1099 reflecting the payments received from the NCAA during 1985 that they must declare as income.

Those payments represent the per diem and "flat rate" amounts received during the calendar year. The Association is required under Federal tax laws to report those amounts paid to nonemployees and independent contractors, according to NCAA Controller Louis J. Spry.

"Expenses that are directly reimbursed, such as air travel for committee members, are not included on the form because they do not have to be reported as income," Spry said. "But we are required by law to report the per diem paid to committee members, along with the $100 'flat rate' travel benefit."

Once the committee member reports as income the amount reflected on the 1099 form, he or she then should report as expenses the amounts paid for lodging, meals, entertainment and other appropriate expenditures related to the meetings attended.

This is the third year that the Association has reported the payments as required, and an explanation of the procedure has appeared in The NCAA News each of those years.

Grosscup's best pass: tossing out booze, drugs

By John Mooney

How serious is this drug problem that the NCAA recognized by voting drug testing for participants in bowl games and tournaments? Lee Grosscup, Utah's all-America quarterback of 1957, an NFL veteran and a television analyst, can provide the answer, first-hand.

"Cocaine use is a real epidemic, and the drug is very harmful," Grosscup said recently. "I only tried it once and didn't like it, but I was into marijuana and pills, along with alcohol. Changing alcohol for drugs is like changing seats on the Titanic."

Vince Dooley, the Georgia football coach and athletics director, estimates 50 percent of the athletes have tried drugs and 15 percent may be regular drug users. But these are estimates. Grosscup offers himself as exhibit A for the prosecution.

Grosscup will celebrate his 15th "birthday" in March. He's been "clean" that long—free from drugs, pills and booze.

"Let me tell you the effect booze and pills had on me," he said. "After four football games in 1970, I had to take a leave from my ABC broadcasting job. At times, I wanted to drink myself to death. I even made a couple of amateur attempts at suicide. I realized I was an egomaniac with an inferiority complex.

"It was so bad I had the DT's from booze and psychosis from drugs and had to be strapped in bed at times.

"I kept a pill by my alarm clock and popped it first thing in the morning to cure my hangovers. That would get immediately.

"I still needed a few glasses of wine before attending the meetings. An oldtimer at the meeting told me getting half-drunk wasn't the answer to anything, that if I'd give the therapy 90 days I'd be cured, or I'd have saved enough money to go on an all-America drunk," Grosscup related.

The man they called "The Man

me by until noon, and I drank my lunch. In the afternoon, it was more pills and booze to lift me up and then calm me down.

"On March 12, 1971, I went on a bender to end all benders. I had gone to the mountains with a lady friend to celebrate a birthday. I awoke with a terrible hangover and was scared. I had the physical shakes but I had a terror inside. I knew I either had to change my way of life or die. Part of me wanted to die, but something made me want to live.

"I saw an advertisement for a meeting of a well-known therapy group that prefers to remain anonymous. That turned my life around, but not with the Golden Arm" when he was setting passing records for Jack Cur-tice and Utah can look back at those frightening days and laugh. And Grosscup doesn't consider himself a reformer.

"If anyone wants to talk to me about his problems, I'll listen and maybe go to a meeting with him. But I'm no reformer. A person who wants to quit must fight his own battles. I can't help him do that. Some people can drink and have no problem, and they are lucky. But if you drink and have problems, you need help."

Grosscup combined booze and drugs, barbiturates and amphetamines, in those days on the fast track, but his recovery has been complete.

"I can tell people my story and how I was cured, but the truth is, there is no quick fix," he warned.

"For years, I believed those who said 'grass' (marijuana) was no more than a mild intoxicant. I know better now. I know that physical and mental damage it can cause. I learned the hard way.

"People who experiment with drugs or booze may not be as lucky as I was. I didn't land in the gutter, because I still had money; but I got as close to the gutter as one could, without falling.

"And I may have been lucky. I could have been a suicide victim. Once I waded into the bay and thought I could swim to China. Another time, I wound up in jail, handcuffed, and it's a shock to see the bracelets on these all-America wrists.

"I know why people experiment with drugs, because I had the same reason: the search for something different, a new 'high.' I experienced all those feelings and can say truthfully the 'high' I've experienced in the last 15 years of being my own man and master surpasses any thrill booze or drugs provided.

"When you gamble with drugs or booze, the stakes are high and the odds are heavily against you. And we haven't seen the effects, the long-time damage, these drugs will have on users. It may be years before all the damage may be assessed.

"In my case, I was lucky to have saved myself in time. Others who follow the fast lane may not be so fortunate," he warned.

Dooley, who realized the seriousness of the drug problem on his squad when one of his players was having a bad "trip" in the hall the night before a game, figures the drug testing will have a beneficial effect in removing "peer pressure."

"Players get with other students or boosters and someone suggests a snort or a joint, and they try it because they fear their friends will laugh at them. Now, with the testing, they have an excuse for resisting the temptations," Dooley predicted.

I only wish every high school and college student could hear the story of booze and drugs first-hand from a loser-turned-winner like Lee Grosscup.

Hope fades for more ethical conduct in women's athletics

"I had hoped that people involved in women's athletics were more ethical than in men's sports, but it didn't turn out that way. The problems are the same, but there's no way we can continue the way things are going.

"Why not have academic standards for athletes and academic standards for real students? I don't agree with the people who scream that these players (who don't graduate) are being exploited. Exploited from what? What would they be if they weren't athletes? What are they being wrested away from? Would they be doctors and lawyers and scientists?

"I can't think of one instance where society was deprived of an outstanding, world-class scientist because he became a football player or a basketball player.

"A lot of these players would not have had a college education anyway, and if they don't avail themselves of the opportunity to get an education, I don't think it's the fault of the system.

"The issue... is whether we go to college for an education or to help produce a winning team.

"The answer has to be education. It's wrong to bring young people in on a scholarship to participate in sports when they have absolutely no chance of graduating.

"If we're going to do that, we might as well forget the diploma and go out and hire a professional team. Requiring minimum academic standards for athletes is a good move. College sports will survive and, in the long run, will benefit."

"Call him the Athlete Hero—a young man who, because he can defy laws of gravity by sinking a shot or sending a baseball into orbit, comes to believe he can defy the other laws as well.

"That (his) trial is long overdue. Evidence has been piling up for years.

"The file on the athlete hero begins in grade school, with the first unearned C, and continues on into high school with fancy dinners and fancy trips, scholarships—that too often have nothing to do with scholarship—praise, pampering and newspaper stories.

"It continues into college—with easy grades and good-paying summer jobs that may ignore such details as showing up for work, with alumni gifts and booster parties and tidied-up indiscretions. More praise, more pampering, more headlines.

"And all of it turns on talent. On hands and legs instead of hearts and minds.

"The talent acts like a cloak of invisibility, which every mythical hero should own. While wearing it, the hero seems able to slip past usual boundaries—past coaches, past university officials, past the law.

"Wearing it, he learns to expect the privileges afforded victorious warriors. If the allegations in the Minnesota case are true, the three accused players were carrying out the heroic tradition of sacking the town and its women after a victory.

"Old-timers say a winning team will fill any stadium, regardless of the comfort, or lack of it, experienced by the spectators. There's evidence to support this claim, but the growing menu of sports programming on television, which can be viewed in the comfort of one's living room, is a constant threat to stadium attendance.

"Today's fan demands a clear view of the playing field, a comfortable seat and climate control, in addition to a winning team. The domed stadium is a clear response to that spectator. Perhaps we are getting soft, but this demand for creature comforts is bound to grow in the years to come, particularly as sports promoters try to attract more women to those events.

"When I go to the football games now, I'm probably one of the most passive persons in the stands. Yes, I recognize winning and losing; but when I see a good play or a bad play, I just don't take it home with me like I used to. I guess maybe I have great compassion for the loser because he has a much tougher job than the winner on those given Saturdays. So I kind of feel a little extra special for the losing coach and for the coaching staff and his family because I don't think there's any way to say words to express how deep a hurt it is when you lose."

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

As a parent of average financial means, I sent four children to college. All participated in at least one sport. In summers, they worked as waiters, camp counselors, gardeners, baby-sitters, etc., to earn money for general expenses. They learned the value of money and how to apportion it over a school year.

Today's scholarship athletes could benefit from summer jobs instead of receiving another free ride of expense money. Perhaps college boosters could help by finding worthwhile summer positions. As the doles get bigger, college athletes will be nothing more than undergraduate professionals.

Problems inherited to some extent

To the Editor:

Albert Dalmolen's column in the January 15, 1986, issue of The Chronicle of Higher Education, in which he proposes that colleges and universities drop athletics programs, fails to address the major points of the relationship.

First, athletics is part of the educational system (just as rock concerts, fraternity beer blasts and radical political clubs are. Would Mr. Dalmolen suggest we also ban those activities simply because they, too, sometimes violate our ethics?).

Secondly, Mr. Dalmolen fails to note that the violations he cited involve a small percentage of the athletics programs in Division I and are nationally publicized, while academic violations often go unreported, unnoticed and unpublicized. The few violations fail to offset the examples of the majority of athletics programs conducted by the Penn States, Stanfords and Yales.

And even Mr. Dalmolen should be aware that Division III programs are conducted within the framework of total education—no grants-in-aid, the student-athletes compete for love of the sport and the prestige of the institution. Shall we also eliminate those programs?

Thirdly, Mr. Dalmolen neglects to recognize that, as with all aspects of higher education, the violations have occurred because of the failure of the chief executive officers, boards of trustees and faculty senates to maintain control of the supervision over athletics. Shall we eliminate the CEOs, etc.?

Lastly, Mr. Dalmolen's solution to the problem is to eliminate the source instead of recognizing the situation, analyzing its causes and instituting corrective measures.

Athletics has been an integral part of higher education for more than 100 years and, if conducted within the regulations of the NCAA (set by the colleges themselves), sports can be beneficial to the institution, its student body and its athletes.

Also ignored by Mr. Dalmolen is the point that the primary goal of all educators in this country, especially at the elementary and secondary levels, should be to educate our youth. Too many athletics violations at the higher-education level involve student-athletes who are illiterate or who pursue curriculums that will not lead to a degree or a profession.

Educators should be providing basic language and reading skills and guidance in career choices before the student-athlete graduates from a secondary school, or they should not have been graduated. The accusing finger then is pointed at the colleges, when they only inherited the failures at a lower level. That is the major problem in our education system, not the excesses of a small minority of athletics programs in our colleges and universities.

Sports Information Director
State University of New York at Buffalo

Why not a degree in football?

To the Editor:

Possibly Paul Hardin, president of Drew University, (The NCAA News, January 29) might ask, "What is wrong with a degree in football?" Playing football or basketball for a living is a reputable goal—as is a degree in physics.

The football degree would require so much playing/practice time, etc. It should be remembered, a candidate spends hours practicing daily during an approximate five-month period. He has to sacrifice his weekends. He is required to travel and live away from school several times during the season. He is offered a myriad of temptations a physics major never is obliged to face.

A candidate would be required to obtain a functional knowledge of readin', writin' and 'rithmetic—even the ability to fill out a job-application form.

There would be no more of a job guarantee in the pro ranks than a physicist would have connecting with NASA.

This way it would be all out front. No hidden booster-club job or car offers—no pressure on other professors by a coach or administrator to look the other way with regard to grades.

Not every student is a college or university academician. Nevertheless, such a physical education major should be encouraged, when not offered a pro contract, to "come join with us." Assist high school coaches and work toward being a high school coach, possibly of several sports. Thus, candidates would have goals and a real desire to graduate should their dream not be fulfilled.

As you can see, it is time we made it possible and advantageous to have a degree in football or other sports.

Coach is no bum steer to Mavericks

Bob Hanson is the driving force behind University of Nebraska, Omaha, basketball, on the court and on the road.

Besides coaching the men's squad to a 15-6 record, Hanson has driven the team bus on all road trips this season. He has also chauffeured the women's basketball team the past two weekends and sat behind the wheel on UNO's football bus trips last fall.

Bob Hanson

Hanson said he began driving buses 20 years ago when he was a high school coach and teacher in Rawlins, Wyoming.

"I wouldn't want to drive daily, but I do enjoy driving the bus," he said. "It's a kind of way to wind down."

Hanson, who accepts charter driving assignments in the summer, drives the UNO teams free.

The coach is "a very good, qualified bus driver," said Tom Jones, owner of Varsity Bus Lines in Papillion. "He does a real good job for us."

Not every ride goes smoothly, however, on a recent trip from Sioux Falls, South Dakota, to Omaha, the bus carrying UNO's men's and women's basketball teams ran out of gas 20 miles north of Omaha.

Hanson and assistant coach Tom Mitchell hitched a ride to a service station to get fuel, but efforts to restart the bus were unsuccessful. Finally, another bus picked up the stranded passengers and took them back to Omaha.

Hanson, now in his 17th season as UNO coach, said the bus company forgot to fill the 144-gallon bus tank to capacity. Because the bus has no fuel gauge, Hanson said, he thought he had plenty of fuel for the 500-mile round trip.

"Sure glad coach Hanson doesn't charter airplanes," said Maverick center Bill Jacobson.

Hold ADs accountable for their schools' infractions

By Bob Bessoir

Cheating in college basketball recruiting is in the news again, but there's nothing new. It's been going on since long before I laced up my first pair of high-tops.

We know about the $100 handshakes, the cars, the apartments, the cushy jobs and the athletes who cannot write a complete sentence after spending four years at an institution of higher learning.

We know about the tremendous pressures on coaches to win at any cost, the arenas jammed with students and alumni who expect no less, and the boosters who would be kings. We realize that the players themselves also are under the microscope because the pros use the college ranks as a proving ground, free of charge.

The problem has outgrown the sports page. So who has the solution?

The "invisible man" does. He's the missing link in the chain of command, the most valuable player in a lineup that includes the players, the coaches, the deans and the president. At most colleges, they call him "athletics director."

The athletics director is the one person who should be directly responsible for the enforcement of NCAA regulations. And he's the person—not the coaches, not the boosters, not the players—who should be held accountable for the success or failure of his school's adherence to those rules.

The athletics director must be made to understand that he alone will suffer the consequences if violations occur. As the chief policeman on campus, his duties should include the following:

- Educating coaches on NCAA regulations. Athletics directors formulate and vote on the rules. Many coaches, on the other hand, are simply ignorant of some of the minor clauses. Yes, some of the rules are nit-picking, but they must be enforced. Make sure your coaches know them, right down to the fine print.

- Educating the athletes. They definitely should learn what the rules allow and what penalties will be imposed if they knowingly break those rules. The 18-year-old who thinks he's the next Earvin "Magic" Johnson should know right from the start what the school can and cannot do for him.

- Getting involved in the recruiting process. I don't mean driving all night to watch a high school basketball game. I mean requiring coaches to submit a report on each player they intend to go after. The file should indicate more than the guy's vertical leap. Where does he rank in class and what are his SAT scores?

- Monitoring the recruiting budget. Know exactly where the money for recruiting trips and campus visits is going. Have the players sign vouchers for expenses. When you control the purse strings, you really control.

- Keeping tabs on alumni and boosters. Admittedly, this is not an easy job. But since so many fans have enlisted in the recruiting wars, they have to be treated with the same no-nonsense approach. Attend their meetings, give them the rules and be ready to back up those rules. Violators should be disassociated from the university, their season tickets voided and any other special privileges revoked. Even the biggest donor must face the risk of losing his status.

Enforcement must be applied at all levels of the collegiate ranks. Since the late 1970s, Division III schools have been prohibited from offering athletics scholarships. But the competition is just as fierce, the recruiting just as intense and the temptations just as real as in Divisions I and II.

I've won a national championship with scholarship players, and another without them. You can play by the rules and win.

For too long, the coaches have been forced to walk the plank. The athletics directors have pulled a disappearing act.

They have become so elusive that the NCAA is dealing directly with the presidents in many cases. It's a little ridiculous when a college president has to spend time worrying whether or not a basketball player got too many quarters for doing the laundry.

It's time to put the "invisible man" back on the job.

Bessoir is head men's basketball coach at the University of Scranton. He led his teams to two Division III Men's Basketball Championships and a record number of postseason play-off appearances. In 14 years, all but two of his players have earned their degrees.

Hurricanes and Longhorns top Division I race

By Wallace I. Renfro
The NCAA News Staff

Two games do not a baseball season make, but Miami (Florida), the 1985 national champion, and Texas, the runner-up, picked up where they left off with a two-game series February 7-8 in Miami.

The Hurricanes turned the Longhorns in the sixth inning of each game and posted 5-3 and 10-7 victories. A bases-loaded homer from designated hitter Chris Howard did the trick for Miami in the second game, and Ric Raether picked up saves in both games.

Texas could not have been too disappointed. The Longhorns had five homers in the two games, including two from sophomore Kevin Garner. Pitching ace Greg Swindell threw five scoreless innings in the first game before being relieved, and Curt Krippner had a 4-3 lead before leaving in the fifth inning of the second game.

The problem both teams may be facing is where to get improved pitching past the starters.

The outcome does not mean much at this stage of the season, but it certainly is a reminder of the battle the two teams waged for the 1985 College World Series title. It is not out of the question that the two could end up in the same position this June.

Clearly, Miami was not expected to dominate the college baseball scene a year ago. The power hitting of the 1982 championship team was gone. Then in the CWS, Miami lost its second game, fought back from the losers' bracket and became only the fifth team ever to do that successfully. As coach Ron Fraser said after the title game last June, "This team didn't know how to lose."

Miami lost most of its infield from the 1985 team, including third baseman Jon Leake, who hit .368 in the tournament last year. Fraser has replacements at those positions; plus, he returns designated hitter Greg Ellena, who hit .480 in the series and was named the most outstanding player, and catcher Chris Magno.

But the best news for the Hurricanes is that most of the pitching staff is back. Dan Davies (15-2), sixth in the nation in victories last year, returns along with the nation's No. 1 reliever, Ric Raether. Also back is Kevin Sheary, who won the championship game. Good pitching was characteristic of Miami in 1985 and probably will be this year.

Texas, on the other hand, lost half of its squad, including the entire outfield. Still, coach Cliff Gustafson has taken the Longhorns to the CWS 13 of the last 18 years, and most observers assume they will be there again in 1986.

Back in the field is Doug Hodo, the designated hitter who hit .438 in the tournament last year; shortstop Coby Kerlin, whose 112 walks last year were the most in the nation; first baseman Bobby Behnsch, .357 in the regular season, and catcher Robby Byers.

Joining the Longhorns are sophomore Kevin Garner, who had 13 home runs in fall practice, and Todd Haney, a junior college transfer.

Also back is Greg Swindell (19-2), the winningest pitcher in the nation last year and the top strikeout artist with 204. Joining Swindell on the mound are Wade Phillips and Curt Krippner.

"Everyone is pitching No. 1 for us this year," said Sports Information Director Bill Little, "but we lost a lot. We have some suspects (for the outfield positions), but we'll have to see if any of them are prospects."

One of the problems facing Texas is surviving its conference tournament. Arkansas, which finished third in the nation last year, has a solid core of returning players. Included in the list is Jeff King, who raised his .366 regular-season batting average to .500 in the College World Series. King also had 82 runs batted in and 17 homers in 1985.

Also back for the Razorbacks are Dave Patterson, who hit .359 with 54 RBI, and pitcher Kevin Campbell, who had a 10-5 record.

Other Southwest Athletic Conference teams gunning for the Longhorns are Texas A&M and Houston.

Stanford was in the final eight teams in the nation last year, and the Cardinal returns five starters from that squad. Unfortunately, it must replace its top pitcher, its double-play combination and its top offensive weapon.

"Speed will be the key to this year's team," said Cardinal coach Mark Marquess. "This is the most team speed we've ever had. We'll try to put more pressure on our opponents with our speed. But at the same time, we still have plenty of sock in the lineup. We will not have a 'Punch-and-Judy' team."

The entire outfield is back, including Walt Harris (.328, 48 RBI and 24 stolen bases). Also back is catcher John Ramos, who hit .320 and had 68 RBI with nine homers. Back on the mound is Jack McDowell, who was 11-4 last year.

The team that Stanford had to beat twice in the West regional to get to Omaha was Pepperdine, and the Waves are rolling again. Coach Dave Gorrie has brought in 18 new prospects to help replace some heavy losses.

Returning are infielders Paul Faries (.350) and Steve Erickson (.327 and 37 stolen bases), outfielder Steve Kirkpatrick (.329), and pitcher Mike Fetters (104, 3.38).

The Southeastern Conference has gone to a new round-robin format, which has everyone guessing about the league outcome. Mississippi State won the conference last year and finished fourth in the nation, but coach Ron Polk says he has not made a guess about what will happen this year.

Whatever happens, the Bulldogs will have to replace seven seniors and two all-Americans who were drafted. Gone in the first-round draft were Will Clark and Rafael Palmeiro, who had provided much of the offensive punch.

However, the Bulldogs have some solid performers back, including first baseman John Mitchell (.250, 51 RBI, 11 HR), and have brought in junior college transfer Dan Paradoa, who hit .421 in Florida last year.

Arizona has a veteran squad that includes five seniors and two juniors in the top eight. Leading the squad are infielders Todd Trafton (.369, 74, 10), Tommy Hinz (.336 and 43 stolen bases) and Chip Hale (.344, 42 RBI).

To shore up the pitching staff, coach Jerry Kindall has recruited Gilbert Heredia, who was 15-1 at Pima Community College, and Gary Alexander, who had a 1.25 earned-run average at Laney Community College.

Unfortunately for Brigham Young, it was in the same region with Arizona and did not advance to Omaha. But the Cougars were 44-29 and return almost all of the starting players from a 1985 team that set an NCAA single-season team record for home runs with 148.

Back to continue the attack on the fences are Gary Cooper, who had a .420 average with 22 home runs, and Dave Morrow, who hit .359 with 19 homers. Also returning is pitcher Mark Beavers, 14-5 a year ago.

Plenty of other teams could move into the top 10, including Hawaii (56-31), San Diego State (42-30-1), Louisiana Tech (35-12), Lamar (35-24), Florida (43-18), California (42-24), Wichita State (68-20), Michigan (55-10) and Oklahoma State (58-16).

Of the 40 spots in the 1986 Division I Baseball Championship field, 25 will go to winners of automatic-qualifying conferences. Here is a look at the races in those conferences.

Atlantic Coast

Top teams—Georgia Tech (42-19-1) appears to be the favorite because of its deep and talented pitching staff. North Carolina (40-17-1) lost a lot but cannot be counted out. Clemson (36-30-1) and Virginia (38-16) were co-champions in 1985 and will be contenders this spring.

Top players—Kevin Brown, p, Georgia Tech (10-6 won-lost record, 3.94 earned-run average); Keith Fleming, p, Georgia Tech (10-4, 4.67); Scott Johnson, of, North Carolina (.339 batting average, 22 home runs, 81 runs batted in); Bill Narleski, ss, Virginia (.376, 9, 53); Bill Spiers, 3b, Clemson (.380); Paul Grossman, p, North Carolina State (8-2, 3.03).

Atlantic 10

Top teams—Penn State (32-14) has four of its top five hitters returning and will be a contender. Temple and West Virginia also will battle for the title.

Top players—Kevin Fitzgerald, 2b, George Washington, (.430, 13 HR, 54

Change in the play-off structure of CWS termed next logical step

Tradition and baseball typically are put on the same pedestal with apple pie and motherhood. And in the world of collegiate baseball, an eight-team, double-elimination College World Series played in Omaha, Nebraska, each June is about as traditional as things get.

But change may be coming; and the relationship between the CWS and Omaha could be affected, according to Jerry Miles, NCAA director of men's championships.

"The NCAA Executive Committee has asked the Baseball Committee to study a change in the College World Series format to a four-team, single-elimination tournament," Miles said. "A final four in baseball."

The purpose of the change, Miles explained, would be to help develop a lucrative network television contract for live-broadcast coverage of the tournament.

"It is the next logical step for the tournament that has become a premier sporting event," he said. "But the networks are not interested unless they know when the championship game will be played. That is the reason we need to investigate the two-day tournament format."

Under the format being considered by the committee, the tournament would expand from 40 to 48 teams. There would be 24 first-round, best-two-out-of-three-game series, followed by four six-team, double-elimination regionals. The four winners would advance to the finals.

"We believe that with a four-team, two-day series, the demand for seating could increase dramatically," Miles said. "We probably are looking at a minimum of 25,000 seats."

That is where the long tradition with Omaha hits a snag. Seating capacity at Rosenblatt Stadium is 15,300—well short of the anticipated need. Although the stadium could be enlarged, Omaha does not host another event that uses the facility (under the proposed format change, one of the six-team regionals probably would be held in Omaha). Thus, the question becomes whether the College World Series is worth Omaha's financing stadium expansion for an event that will use the facility only once a year.

"Attendance traditionally has been from the Omaha community," Miles said. "But now, we are beginning to get strong fan support from the participating teams. In 1985, we could not fill all of their requests. Even if there is no change in the format, we probably would be facing the expansion problem soon."

A format change could not occur before 1988, according to Miles. "The Baseball Committee is interested in a change only if there is at least a two-year television contract."

Coaches' reactions to the new format concept have been "surprisingly good," Miles said. "There has been some opposition, because there is a lot of loyalty to Omaha."

The proposed format change has been received by the NCAA Executive Committee and will be reviewed by the Division I Championships Committee in May before final action by the Executive Committee.

RBI, 36th best in the nation in batting average); Greg Becker, p, Penn State (7-0); Tim Hurley, 3b, Penn State (.438); Glen Gardner, of, Rutgers (top freshman recruit, .673 in high school, 15 HR).

Big East

Seton Hall (44-19-1) is the early favorite, but St John's (New York) (32-21) and Connecticut (20-24-1, but 11-7 in conference) could make it a three-team race. All three teams have plenty of offense returning.

Top players—Rich Scheid, p, Seton Hall (10-2, 2.18, 12th in the nation in strikeouts with 117 in 95 innings); Marteese Robinson, 1b, Seton Hall (.394, 24 stolen bases in 28 attempts); Tony Pellegrino, ss, St. John's (.308); Wayne Rosenthal, p, St. John's (6-3, 3.84); Joe Giaquinto, of, Boston College (.424, 45th in the nation); Joe Gervais, if, Georgetown (50 stolen bases in 54 attempts, third best in the nation).

Big Eight

Top teams—With the loss of all everything Pete Incaviglia, Oklahoma State (58-16) will have a tougher time in the league but still could win. Oklahoma (55-14) returns eight position players and will challenge. So will Nebraska (45-24), with a much-improved pitching staff.

Top players—Jimmy Garrangan, 1b, Oklahoma State (.336, 55 RBI, 9 HR, 13 stolen bases); Carlos Diaz, c, Oklahoma State (.324, 55, 9); John Toal, 2b, Oklahoma (.335, 39 RBI, 9 HR); Larry Mims, ss, Nebraska (.337, 99 runs scored in 69 games for sixth best in nation); Paul Meyers, cf, Nebraska (.397); Hugh Stanfield, cf, Kansas (.400); Otto Kaifes, dh, Kansas State (.424, 53 RBI, 9 HR).

Big Ten

Top teams—Michigan (55-10), the top slugging team in the nation in 1985 and fourth best in batting average, returns most of its power and is the heavy favorite. Illinois (40-18) and Minnesota (33-23) will challenge but probably cannot overtake the Wolverines.

Top players—Hal Morris, 1b, Michigan (.421, 36 RBI, 10 HR); Casey Close, of/p, Michigan (.388, 58, 16, 6-1 won-lost record, 3.93 ERA); Dave Payton, of, Illinois (.342, 47); Carl Jones, p, Illinois (9-0, 3.42); Alex Bauer, 1b, Minnesota (.298, 51, 10); Joe Girardi, c, Northwestern (.390); Jeff Gurtcheff, c, Iowa (.444, 60, 13); Scott Kamieniecki, p, Michigan (8-0, 3.94 before midseason injury).

Colonial

Top teams—East Carolina (32-14) and North Carolina-Wilmington (32-21-1) finished first and second last year and probably will do the same in 1986. East Carolina's biggest problem will be pitching after losing Mike Christopher. N. C.-Wilmington lost only one starter.

Top players—Winfred Johnson, p/dh/1b, East Carolina (.432, 75, 22, 33rd best in the nation in average, also 7-5 pitcher); Chris Bradberry, cf, East Carolina (.405); Bobby Reynolds, ss, North Carolina-Wilmington (.332, 40, 8, 20 doubles); Kenny King, p, North Carolina-Wilmington (10-2, 3.41); Paul Grzyb, of, American (.470, 30, fifth best in nation in average); Bubba Paris, 2b, Richmond (.382, 14 doubles).

East Coast

Top teams—Rider (27-12) appears unstoppable in its quest for a third consecutive title. With six starters and all but two pitchers returning, the Broncs may be stronger than last year. Delaware (37-11-1) will be strong on offense but pitching could be a problem.

Top players—Jack Armstrong, p, Rider (10-2, 2.32, 11.5 strikeouts per nine innings); Ed Whited, 3b, Rider (.388, 14 HR); Mark Rubini, cf, Delaware (.423, 13 HR); Tom Skrabale, 1b, Delaware (.403, 12 doubles); Dave Elsier, c, Drexel (.325); Tony Rinaldi, c, Lehigh (.393); John Hamilton, if,

Mike Oglesbee, Nevada-Las Vegas

Tim Raley, Wichita State

Bucknell (.351).

ECAC

Top teams—With outstanding pitching, Maine (38-17) again will be in the fight for the title in the New England Conference. La Salle (31-20), which advanced to the regional, has five 300 hitters back. Iona (25-14), Long Island-Brooklyn (26-10-1) and Long Island-C. W. Post (28-11) will battle it out in the Metro Atlantic Conference.

Top players—Rick Bernardo, 1b, Maine (.389, 52, 9); Jeff Plympton, p, Maine (6-2, 1.74, seventh best in nation); Sam Boone, of, La Salle (.440, 63, 11, 23rd best in batting average); Barry Petrachenko, 2b, La Salle (.425, 38 stolen bases); Rich Wilkins, c, New Hampshire (.416); Joe Starace, inf, Iona (.415); Richard Lacko, p, Long Island-Brooklyn (8-1, 1.30, second best in nation in ERA); Pete Harnisch, p, Fordham (1.25, best in the nation); Joe Cioffi, Long Island-C. W. Post (.412, 54, 7).

Eastern Intercollegiate

Top teams—Princeton (29-12) has a new pitching staff, but the hitting and fielding are good enough for the Tigers to defend their league title. Navy (25-7-1) again should be the top contender to unseat the Tigers. Harvard also may be in the race.

Top players—Dan Arendas, cf, Princeton (.440, 21st in the nation); Scott LaForest, p, Princeton (9-1, 2.75); Drew Tanner, p, Navy (9-0, 1.73, fifth best in nation in ERA); Marius Jones, of, Navy (.385); Joe Yastremski, of, Columbia (.356); Jon Saadey, of, Yale (.432); Jim Lavery, 1b, Dartmouth (.346, 30, 9).

Metro

Top teams—Florida State (59-3) and South Carolina both were in the NCAA tournament last year and are picked as favorites for the 1986 league championship. The Seminoles are loaded and South Carolina remains just as strong as last year. Memphis State (36-11) will try to upset both teams' plans.

Mid-American

Top teams—Central Michigan (38-19-1) has had its way in the conference for two years and probably will again in 1986. Western Michigan (30-24-1) has a strong pitching staff returning.

Top players—Doug Fisher, 3b, Central Michigan (.420, 63, 11); Kevin Tapani, p, Central Michigan (7-2, 4.40); Jeff Drozdowski, 1b, Central Michigan (.338, 37, 9); Dan Nielsen, p, Western Michigan (7-0, 3.94); Rich Maloney, 2b, Western Michigan (.362); Thomas Howard, cf, Ball State (.296, 69, 17); Mark Davis, 1b, Ball State (.371, 53, 7); Dave Bettendorf, inf, Kent State (.376, 51, 11).

Midwestern Collegiate

Top teams—Oral Roberts (50-19) returns seven of its top nine hitters and easily should defend its conference championship. Evansville (38-26) had an outstanding season in 1985 and lost only one starter.

Top players—Adam Casillas, dh, Oral Roberts (.354, 54, 4, fifth hardest in the nation to strike out with 5 in 295 appearances); Bob Zupcic, of, Oral Roberts (.347, 47, 7); Mike Shambaugh, 1b, Oral Roberts (.301, 53, 13); Keith Auville, if, Evansville (.291); John Loughran, lf, Notre Dame (.359); Kevin Chenail, p, Notre Dame (4-0, 3.22).

Missouri Valley

Top teams—Wichita State (68-20) and Indiana State (57-22) finished dead even in the league last year. Both are returning most of their starters. Give the edge to Wichita State, with seven pitchers who accounted for 45 wins.

Top players—Tim Raley, of, Wichita State (.386, 70, 11); Mark Staniford, 2b, Wichita State (.355, 76, 16); David Haas, p, Wichita State (12-1, 3.75); Bob Zeihen, cf, Indiana State (.419, 18 doubles); John Howes, p, Indiana State (12-0, 3.26); Boi Rodriguez, 3b, Indiana State (.343, 82, 20); Frank Mustari, 3b, Illinois State (.344, 55, 16); Darren Epley, 1b, Bradley (.441).

Ohio Valley

Top teams—Eastern Kentucky (42-29) and Morehead State (25-18-1) are the favorites to win. If Murray State (18-21) can find help in the outfield, the Racers could bounce back from their first losing season in 27 years.

Top players—Robert Moore, cf, Eastern Kentucky (.391, 44, 10, 26 stolen bases); Troy Williams, ss, Eastern Kentucky (.391, 70, 13, 18); Clay Elswick, 1b, Eastern Kentucky (.312, 63, 15); Dave Fleischer, 1b, Akron (.371, 43); Wayne Campbell, c, Morehead (.348, 9 HR); Willie Blair, p, Morehead (6-3); Tom Gargiulo, if, Murray State (.376); Jeff Stofko, 3b, Youngstown State (.392); Jose Pena, ss, Austin Peay State (.335).

Pacific Coast

Top teams—Fresno State (43-22) sent defending national champion Cal State Fullerton (36-32-1) packing last year and could extend its string of consecutive league titles to eight. Cal State Fullerton will be strong, and Nevada-Las Vegas (40-21) will test both teams.

Top players—Eric Fox, of, Fresno State (.316, 49, 10); Jeff Stark, of, Fresno State (.344); Mike Goff, p, Fresno State (8-6, 4.00); Jef Garcia, of, Cal State Fullerton (.333, 25); Mike Oglesbee, inf, Nevada-Las Vegas (.391, 94, 24, sixth in the nation in RBI and 17th in homers); Matt Williams, ss, Nevada-Las Vegas (.311, 73, 21); Anthony Telford, p, San Jose State (8-4, 3.15); Tom Baine, of, UC Irvine (.376, 11 doubles).

Pacific-10

Top teams—Stanford (47-15) and Arizona (47-22) will fight it out in the Southern Division of the conference again in 1986. Both return good hitting and pitching. UCLA, 34-30-1 last year, has an emerging team that may be a surprise; and California (42-24) is picked by some to challenge in the South. Washington State (45-21) won the North last year, but Oregon State (34-17) won the tournament.

Top players—Mark Davis, cf, Stanford (.347, 66, 13); John Ramos, c, Stanford (.320, 68, 9); Jack McDowell, p, Stanford (11-4, 4.15); Todd Trafton, 1b, Arizona (.369, 74, 10); Tommy Hinz, 2b, Arizona (.336, 43 stolen bases); Jeff Weiss, of, California (.335, 57, 11); Lance Blakenship, 3b, California (.293, 70, 47 stolen bases); Tom Pellerin, p, Washington State (7-1, 4.17); Dave Kilhefner, of, Washington State (.353, 45, 12); Rick Morris, cf, Arizona State (.369, 50, 16); Dave Brundage, 1b/p, Oregon State (.370, 40, and 7-3 as pitcher); John Joslyn, of, UCLA (.370); Tony Fair, of, Portland State (.386).

Southeastern

Top teams—Mississippi State (50-15) won the 1985 SEC tournament and a berth to the Division I tournament in 1986. Florida (43-18) recruited 18 players to offset heavy losses, and Auburn (30-22) has the offense to contend for the crown. The conference will switch to a round-robin format this year.

Top players—Tim Touma, inf, Florida (.304); Scott Clemo, 3b, Florida (.272, 44, 10); Bo Jackson, cf, Auburn (.401, 17 HR); Paul Foster, rf, Auburn (.433, 14); John Mitchell, 1b, Mississippi State (.250, 51, 11); Dan Paradoa, rf, Mississippi State (.421 in junior college); Jeff Reboulet, ss, Louisiana State (.308, 34 stolen bases); Paul Somogye, 3b, Georgia, 46); Doug Duke, c, Alabama (.388, 67, 22); Brad Blizzard, p, Tennessee (4-1, 3.61).

Southern

Top teams—Davidson (24-9) returns its entire team to defend the Southern Division of the conference. Western Carolina (37-35) is in almost as good shape, with seven of eight defensive positions returning. Appalachian State also will challenge.

Top players—Billy Masse, of, Davidson (.430, 35th in the nation in average last year); David Turgeon, 3b, Davidson (.369); Alan Lewis, ss, Davidson (.358); Mike Carson, rf, Western Carolina (.363, 56, 13); David Hyatt, 1b, Western Carolina (.348, two errors in 532 chances); Scott Crosby, ss, Marshall (.372, 44); Greg Weddle, 1b, Virginia Military (.320, 41, 16).

Southland

Top teams—Lamar (35-24) is the favorite to repeat its league championship because of strong pitching. Louisiana Tech (35-12) returns its entire roster of starters and will be stronger than last year. Pitching will have to carry Texas-Arlington (35-26), with three of its top five hitters gone.

Top players—Mike Wilkins, p, Lamar (10-4, 2.90); Dirk Tidwell, p, Lamar (8-5, 4.44); Neil Reynolds, 1b, Lamar (.239); Jeff Richardson, ss, Louisiana Tech (.322, 30 stolen bases); Jim Boehne, p, Louisiana Tech (9-2, 2.00); Michael Holly, p, Texas-Arlington (8-3, 2.82); James Rains, ss, Texas-Arlington (.362, 21 stolen bases in 24 attempts).

Southwest

Top teams—Texas (64-14) lost 13 and returns 13, but no one really believes the Longhorns will fail to repeat as conference champion. Texas was second in the nation last year. Arkansas (51-15) has a solid core of returning starters from last year's NCAA-third-place team. Houston (44-17) and Texas A&M will make a run at the conference title.

Top players—Greg Swindell, p, Texas (19-2, 1.67, the leading pitcher in the nation last year and had the most strikeouts with 204); Coby Kerlin, ss, Texas (112 walks, tops in the nation); Jeff King, 3b, Arkansas (.366, 82, 17); Dave Patterson, 1b, Arkansas (.359, 54); Kevin Campbell, p, Arkansas (10-5, 4.59); Mike Walker, p, Houston (12-8, 4.00); Todd Hawkins, c, Baylor (.351); Johnny Vidales, dh, Texas Tech (.372, 52, 11).

Southwestern

Top teams—Grambling (36-16-1) won the conference in 1985 but has no starters returning from that team. Still, do not count Grambling out. The favorite's role may fall to Jackson State (20-33-1), which was first in the Eastern Division of the conference last year. Southern-Baton Rouge (20-24) and Alcorn State (23-14) also should be in the race.

Top players—Jesse Jackson, of, Alcorn State (.458, 10th best in the nation in batting average); Earl Sanders, p, Jackson State (8-1, 4.02 batting average); Darren Wade, 1b, Jackson State (.365); Martin Foley, p, Grambling State (7-4, 3.92).

Sun Belt

Top teams—Western Kentucky (43-20) is picked by most of the teams in the Sun Belt to repeat as conference champion despite some heavy losses. If not the Hilltoppers, then Old Dominion (50-11) and South Florida (44-26) are ready to grab the spotlight.

Top players—Barry Shifflett, 2b, North Carolina-Charlotte (.467, 71, 12, sixth best in the nation in average); Randy Strijek, ss, Western Kentucky (.328, 42, 6); Greg Bartek, p, Western Kentucky (7-2, 3.64); Scott Hemond, c, South Florida (.310, 14 HR); Mark Pike, cf, South Florida (.312); Todd Azar, rf, Old Dominion (.388, 66, 9); Sean O'Hare, 1b, Old Dominion (.390, 86, 13); Kevin Beare, p, Old Dominion (14-3, 2.67, 138 strikeouts); Scott Marabell, cf, Jacksonville (.345, 53, 11); Mark Ballard, of, Jacksonville (.339, 64, 8).

West Coast

Top teams—Pepperdine (52-15) is the heavy favorite to repeat as conference champion. The team lost its leading hitter and a lot of other familiar faces, but a solid nucleus returns. St. Mary's (California) and Loyola Marymount are the top challengers.

Top players—Paul Faries, 3b, Pepperdine (.350, 35, 11 doubles, 31 stolen bases); Steve Erickson, c, Pepperdine (.327, 37, 37 stolen bases); Steve Kirkpatrick, of, Pepperdine (.329, 12 doubles); Mike Fetters, p, Pepperdine (10-4, 3.38, five saves); Ken Riensch, p, St. Mary's (6-1, 16 saves, 2.92); Bruce Jensen, of, St. Mary's (.330); Ray Williamson, of, Santa Clara (.314, 50, 12).

Western Athletic

Top teams—Brigham Young (44-29) returns nearly all of its starting players, but the Cougars are in the same division with Hawaii (56-31) and San Diego State (42-30-1). The Southern Division race probably will decide the conference title.

Top players—Gary Cooper, cf, Brigham Young (.420, 22 HR); Dave Morrow, c, Brigham Young (.359, 19 HR); Mark Beavers, p, Brigham Young (14-5, 3.48); Todd Crosby, 2b, Hawaii (.331); Deron Johnson, 1b, San Diego State (.353, 34, 11); Mike Erb, p, San Diego State (7-4, 2.63); John Snyder, 1b, New Mexico (.373, 54); Chris Shultis, 3b, Utah (.421).

Independents

Top teams—Someone forgot to tell Miami (Florida) (64-16) that it was not one of top contenders in 1985, so the Hurricanes went out and won the College World Series. They lost a lot, but the lesson was learned. Do not count Miami out. Pan American (39-20) always is a contender.

Top players—Dan Davis, p, Miami (Florida) (15-2, sixth in the nation in victories); Pat Sipe, 1b, Liberty (.398, 70 RBI, third in the nation in runs batted in); Darryl Hamilton, cf, Nicholls State (.379, seventh in the nation in stolen bases with 52); John Posey, c, Campbell (.421, 75, second in nation in home runs with 26, third in slugging percentage at .955); Jamie Futrell, ss, Baptist (.450); Trent Mercer, 1b, Augusta (.407, third in nation in home runs with 24, 10th in runs batted in with 74).

Familiar faces and a new region top Division II

Florida Southern, the defending Division II baseball national champion, and Cal Poly-Pomona, the runner-up, appear to have all they need to return to the battle for No. 1; but the real story in Division II may be the strength of the realigned South Central region.

Florida Southern is a solid favorite to win the South region again, and Cal Poly-Pomona has as good a chance in the California Collegiate Athletic Association as anyone in that tough conference. Both teams have strong pitching and solid hitting.

The South Central region now contains two of last year's final six teams and a total of four teams that won postseason berths. Following is a region-by-region outlook for NCAA Division II baseball for 1986:

Northeast

This region continues to field more contenders for national honors than most others. At least eight teams have good reason to hope for a play-off berth.

New Haven (28-6) made it out of the region a year ago, and the Chargers have a veteran pitching staff around which to build. Brian Stone had a 10-2 record last year, and Mark Hatje was 9-1 with a 2.59 earned-run average.

Coach Frank Vieira believes his biggest problem will be rebuilding from the loss of five players who were taken in the professional draft. However, he does have second baseman Jim Ferguson, who is the second-leading doubles hitter returning, with 14. Ferguson hit .413 for the season.

LeMoyné (26-12) has been in postseason competition 10 of the last 11 years, and the Dolphins have five of their top eight players back from a year ago. Catcher Jerry Klaben (.386), second baseman Eric Holstein (.384) and third baseman Mark Demo (.315) are the offensive leaders. Mike Farrell (4-1, 3.95) leads a veteran pitching staff.

Lowell (26-10) has two .400 hitters in Brian Toohey (.400) and Ross Madore (.423) plus the keystone combination of shortstop Bobby Cappadona (.383) and second baseman Mark Grams (.348). Pitching may be the biggest problem for the Chiefs.

Other top teams—Mansfield (24-19) had a solid fall record of 11-3 and returns some powerful hitters. Assumption (16-9) could be the dark-horse team that surprises everyone. The Greyhounds did not lose a starter from last year's squad. Sacred Heart (23-12) has 14 lettermen returning, including four of the top five hitters. Bryant (21-11) and East Stroudsburg (25-18) also are top contenders.

Other top players—Randy Vargason, cf, Mansfield (.466, top returning hitter in the country); Jim Bierlein, ss, Mansfield (.392); Peter Rolfe, 1b, Assumption (.451); Wayne Patterson, 2b, Assumption (.402); Darryl Brinkley, of, Sacred Heart (.400, 33 stolen bases); Tony Bellagamba, 3b, Bryant (.461, second-best returning hitter); Tony Garganese, of, Bryant (.429); Tim Bishop, cf, East Stroudsburg (.340); David Barry, p, Stonehill (6-3, 2.59); Larry Coyle, p, West Chester (10-2, 3.00).

South Atlantic

This is one of the deepest regions in the division, and the addition of new member Coastal Carolina will make things even tougher for the established teams.

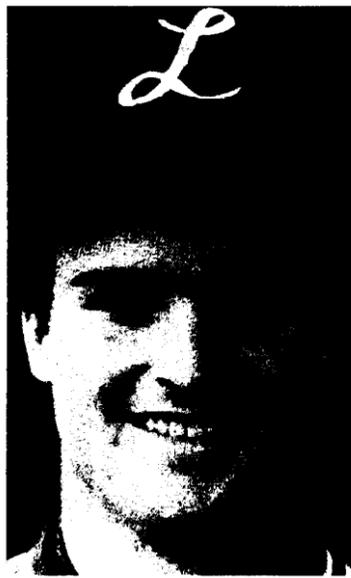

Valdosta State (47-21) still is the leader. The Blazers, fourth in the nation last year, return plenty of power and an improved defense.

First baseman Kevin Spooner is the top returning hitter. He hit .369, with 61 runs batted in and 15 homers. Third baseman JoJo Blaha hit .363, with 76 RBI and 14 homers. If they can find the pitching, the Blazers could repeat.

Coastal Carolina was 30-19 in coach Bobby Richardson's first year at the helm and produced a good NAIA showing. The entire infield is back except at first base, and pitcher John Heck (8-2) will anchor the mound staff.

Catcher Kirt Manwaring hit .390 and had 13 home runs, and outfielder Mike Prochaska was a .337 hitter. The biggest problem will be replacing the entire outfield and seven pitchers.

Coach Archie White had one of his best recruiting years at West Georgia (32-19) to go with a returning squad that includes four starting fielders and four of the six top pitchers. White is only two wins away from reaching the 500-victory mark.

Second baseman Stuart Lewis is the top returning hitter at .407, and he is joined by Stevie Young, left field, (.354) and catcher Terry Ivey (.365).

Longwood (34-12) can beat its opponents any number of ways. The Lancers hit .339 as a team last year and have the top two returning stolen-base leaders in the nation.

Center fielder Dennis Leftwich (.373) was second in the nation in stolen bases last year with 57 in 63 attempts, and third baseman Marty Ford (.368) was third with 48 in 50 tries. Also back is first baseman Jeff Mayone (.341, 47 RBI, 10 HR) and pitcher Rob Furth (6-2, 2.31).

Other top teams—Armstrong State (55-18) has a solid senior rotation on the mound that went 32-11 as juniors. Northern Kentucky (35-24), another team that has been a top-ranking NAIA squad, has six starters returning as it tests the NCAA Division II waters. Norfolk State (32-20) has an outstanding offensive squad that should do well.

Other top players—Chuck Christopher, p, Armstrong State (12-4, 2.74); Ricky Meeks, p, Armstrong State (10-1, 1.83); Tom Pope, rf, Northern Kentucky (.399, 43 RBI, 19 stolen bases); Andrew Dixon, of, Norfolk State (.446); Charlie Kuchn, 3b/p, Randolph-Macon (.326, 6-1); Tim Landis, p, Randolph-Macon (8-2); Doug Ward, 3b, Maryland-Baltimore County (.402); Alton Ross, of, St. Augustine's (.414).

South

With defending national champion Florida Southern around, things are tough for the rest of the teams in the region. The Moccasins may not be as experienced as a year ago, but they are the clear favorites. Florida Atlantic may be the team that gives them the best run.

Coach Chuck Anderson has continued a rich baseball tradition at Florida Southern (54-10). He led the Moccasins to their sixth national championship last year, and he has a solid nucleus returning to defend the title.

Three first-team all-Americans are gone, but Division II championship most valuable player Tom Temrowski (.367, 83 RBI, 14 HR) is back. Joining Temrowski on offense are outfielders Don Burke (.396) and Glen Fernandez (.392).

Terry Gilmore anchors the pitching staff. He was 11-0 last year with a 2.73

ERA and is No. 2 in wins among returning pitchers.

Florida Atlantic (44-15) returns its entire infield and a third of its outfield. A solid returning pitching staff combined with some outstanding recruits could make the Owls hard to beat.

The offense will be centered around shortstop Chris Ebert (.339, 21 stolen bases in 24 attempts), center fielder Scott Hay (.324) and third baseman Dave McDowell (.298). Leading the mound staff is Rich Clabeaux (5-2, 11 saves).

Other top teams—Tampa (32-17) has six of seven players who hit better than .315 returning to challenge Florida Southern in the Sunshine State Conference. St. Thomas (Florida) (32-21) beat both Division II champ Florida Southern and Division I champ Miami (Florida) during the regular season last year and is just as strong this year. Eckerd (37-16) has 90 percent of its victories on the mound.

Other top players—Mack Jenkins, p, Tampa (9-6, 2.83); Dean Rodriguez, 3b, Tampa (.348, 10th in the nation in doubles); Andy Vuksic, of, St. Thomas (Florida) (.333, 16 doubles); Mike Lewis, p, St. Thomas (Florida) (2.19 ERA); Tom Beckman, 1b, Eckerd (.342, 51 RBI, 10 HR); Bill Bailey, p, Eckerd (8-6); Gregory Lloyd, of, Fort Valley State (.412).

North Central

The Central and Midwest regions have been realigned to make the North Central and South Central. The result could be a plus for Shippensburg, which competed in the South Atlantic in the past and lost to Valdosta State in the regional championship last year. Shippensburg has appeared in eight postseason tournaments in the last 12 years.

Coach Art Fairchild led Shippensburg to a 35-14 season last year and the NCAA berth, and he returns pitchers who earned 31 of his team's 35 victories. In fact, only four seniors graduated from the team. The Raiders are the clear favorites in this new region.

Leading the pitching staff are reliever Rob Gantz (4-0) and Rob Drum-bore, whose 2.19 ERA was eighth best in the nation last year.

The offense will be led by second baseman Gary Best (.376), center fielder Doug Furness (.353) and first baseman Wayne Gordon (.346).

California (Pennsylvania) (27-15) may be the team the Raiders have to keep an eye on. The Vulcans won the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference Western title last year.

Returning on the mound is Mike Blocher (6-3), and the offense is led by Jim Grimm (.356) and Kurt Kesneck (.369).

Wright State (33-24-2) has seven of its eight starters returning, including first baseman Alfredo Batista (.369) and second baseman Denny Bleh (.362). The major problem will be pitching, where three of the squad are gone.

Mercyhurst (20-9) lost the middle of its defense—catcher, second, short and center—but solid pitching and the .455 hitting of sophomore Frank Yaskula could make up the difference.

Other top teams—Ashland (18-13-1) has 10 lettermen back and an improving pitching staff. South Dakota State (27-15) has to rebuild its pitching staff, but the offense is solid. Ashland (30-18) has to replace a lot to earn a spot in postseason play, but the pitching could be strong enough to do it. Mankato State (30-20) is the defending North Central Conference champion and returns a good nucleus.

Other top players—Bill Julio, p, Mercyhurst (8-2, 2.93, three shutouts); Chris Keshock, 1b, Ashland (.444, third best returning home run hitter with 10); Ken Godnavac (.370); Dave Lane, ss, South Dakota State (.362); Tim Smith, lf, Grand Valley State (.369); Mike Bowman, p, Grand Valley State (5-1); Paul Bellina, ss, Gannon (.400 in 50 appearances); Fritz Polk, c, Mankato State (.318, 13 HR).

South Central

The newly created South Central may be the most competitive region in the division. No fewer than four of its teams made the play-offs last year, and Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville and Troy State made the final six. When the dust settles, it may be Edwardsville that makes a return trip.

SIU-Edwardsville (36-15-1) finished fifth in the nation last year, and the Cougars appear to have lost less than anyone else. In fact, only three are gone from the squad; and the returnees include two all-America pitchers.

The mound staff is led by Tony Duenas (10-3, 2.93 ERA), who also had a .315 batting average as a first baseman with 55 RBI and 15 homers. Also back on the mound are Pete Delkus (8-2, 2.11) and Pat Braun (6-0). In addition to Duenas, Edwardsville also has third baseman Steve Bluemner (.323) back.

Troy State was 43-15 and finished sixth in the nation, but the Trojans lost 19 seniors from the squad. Coach Chase Riddle has adopted a "wait-and-see" attitude for this spring.

Not all is lost, however. Troy returns third baseman Wendell Stephens (.396, 67 RBI, 15 HR) and pitcher Ron Warren (11-3, 2.87 ERA), and Riddle had an outstanding recruiting year.

Sam Houston State (35-21) was another postseason tournament team, but the squad lost its top hitter and three starting pitchers. The question is how quickly the Bearcats can rebuild around an experienced infield. Mike Cobb (.325) is the top returning hitter.

North Alabama (46-11-1) was the fourth NCAA tournament team that now is in the South Central region. Good returning speed and hitting could put the Lions back in contention again.

Leading the offense is Harry Shelton (.364, 53 RBI), who had 36 stolen bases in 41 attempts. He is joined by fellow outfielder David Ward (.373) with 35 steals in 41 tries. Brent Bolin, a 7-1 pitcher, also returns.

Other top teams—Missouri-St. Louis (23-18) is a perennial power in the Midwest and has solid hitting returning. Southeast Missouri State (28-15-1) has plenty of offense returning but will be working with a new pitching staff. Delta State (38-20-1) lost seven starters, including two starting pitchers. There may be enough good pitching returning to make a run for regional honors, however.

Other top players—Greg King, 2b, Missouri-St. Louis (.348, 12 doubles); Lon Steward, c, Southeast Missouri State (.376, 34 RBI, 9 HR); Joe Radetic, of, Southeast Missouri State (.367); Johnnie Taylor, p, Delta State (9-4, 3.49); Lee Hayes, 1b, Delta State (.354, 57, 13); Dale Thumann, 3b, Stephen F. Austin State (.334); Chris Garmon, 1b, Jacksonville State (.369).

West

The team that survives the California Collegiate Athletic Association usually is the team to beat in the West. Last year, that was Cal Poly-Pomona; and there is little reason to believe that the Broncos cannot do it again.

Solid pitching is the key for the Broncos. The staff is led by the top returning pitcher in the country, Mike Munoz. His 16-6 record was second best overall last year. Also back on the mound is Charlie Webb (6-5).

The hitting is led by first baseman Tom Weeks (.367, 60 RBI, 9 HR). Joining him is shortstop Marty Rivero (.280, 30, 9). Coach John Scolinos has won more than 1,000 games in his career and more than 600 at Pomona.

Cal State Dominguez Hills was 34-23 a year ago and second in the CCAA. But coach Andy Lopez believes the Toros could be the best team in school history this spring.

Actually, they have everything. The

Wisconsin-Oshkosh and Marietta lead Division III

Division III baseball in 1986 could easily be a rerun of the 1985 season, with Wisconsin-Oshkosh and Marietta again battling for the national championship. Both teams are strong and figure to repeat in their regions.

A youthful 1985 Wisconsin-Oshkosh team finished sixth in team hitting, fourth in pitching, fifth in fielding and seventh in scoring. The Titans lost only one nonpitching starter from the squad, but three of the top four starting pitchers are gone. Still, Oshkosh could be stronger than a year ago.

Marietta, on the other hand, returns a strong pitching staff but lost its top three hitters. The ace of the division returns in Jim Katschke, whose 17-2 record was the best in the nation in 1985.

Following is a region-by-region look at the top Division III contenders:

Northeast

Ithaca (38-12-1) probably is the best team in the region, but Eastern Connecticut State, Salem State, Brandeis and North Adams State are contenders for the crown.

The Bombers lost five starters, but the good news for coach George Valesente is that Dave Dasch passed up a professional offer to play out his career at Ithaca. He hit .407 last year and had 38 runs batted in. Joining him on offense is outfielder T. J. Gamba, a .404 hitter.

The pitching staff is led by Mike Middaugh, who was 6-1 last season. His 1.82 earned-run average placed him seventh in the nation last year, during which he pitched 42 2/3 scoreless innings.

North Adams State (25-10) earned a berth in postseason play last year, and the Mohawks lost only three members of that squad. Much will depend on the effectiveness of pitcher Bill Fitzpatrick (7-2, 2.66).

Sean McMahon returns to the infield, and he is a .339 hitter. Also back is second baseman Tom Rizzo, who hit .300, and pitcher/designated hitter Kevin Carmody (.316, 4-1 on the mound).

Salem State (34-6) will give North Adams State a fight in conference play. Scott Kimball was 7-1 on the mound last year, and his ERA of 1.90 was among the best in the region.

Bobby Ferreira is back at second base. He hit .466 for the Vikings. Also back are shortstop Kevin Gibson (.385) and catcher Jim Hounam (.354).

For 17 consecutive years, Eastern Connecticut State (36-12) has qualified for postseason competition. But coach Bill Holowaty will have to replace his entire outfield, two infielders and his top two pitchers. Still, he is not without hitting.

Back is Stanley Harris at short (.345, 20 stolen bases), John McNally at third (.337, 23 stolen bases) and outfielder Pete Bard (.352).

Brandeis (28-10) returns its entire pitching staff, led by Ross Nadeau (10-2). The offense includes Bob Boutin (.361) and Phil Drogin (.298).

Other top teams—Nichols (21-12) posted its most wins ever last year, but the Bisons have some rebuilding to do. Plymouth State (16-11) will try to build on Dean Prentiss (.512), the top returning hitter in the nation. Oswego State (26-9) continues to build a strong program.

Other top players—Tom Kirby, 1b, Nichols (.375, 36 RBI, 5 HR); Tom Wood, ss, Rensselaer (.452, eighth in RBI last year with 36); Mark Verstandig, c, St. Lawrence (.416); Derek Barr, cf, Cortland State (.424); Paul Foye, 3b, Amherst (.410, first in doubles last year with 12); Richard Flaherty, p, St. Joseph's (Maine) (9-1, eighth in ERA last year at 1.92).

Mid-Atlantic

Two of the region's teams made it to the final six of the 1985 Division III tournament—Montclair State (36-12-2) through the Mid-Atlantic region and William Paterson (29-13) through the South region. Both will be contenders again, along with Upsala, Manhattanville and others.

Montclair State coach Kevin Cooney returns his entire outfield and reports a good recruiting year. The offensive leader is Tim Jones, who hit .354 and had 55 RBI a year ago. Joining him in the outfield are Tim Johnson (.346) and Andy Walker (.292, 12 doubles).

The pitching staff is led by Gabe Noto, who was 8-1 last year.

William Paterson will field a good balance of hitting and pitching. The hitting will be provided by Bruce Dostal (.318, 36 stolen bases) and Tony Listro (.314). Mike Gagg is the best of the pitchers.

Jim Katschke

Dean Prentiss

Rusty Kryzanowski

Manhattanville (32-7) was the top hitting team in the nation last year at .384. The Valiants lost a lot of that offensive punch with graduating seniors, but they return three .400-plus hitters and one of the best pitchers in the nation.

Andy Brisette (.430), Ted Gonzalez (.420) and Dave Panno (.407) will provide the power. Jon Flanagan (10-1) was seventh in the country in victories last year.

Upsala (33-13) lost only two lettermen from its postseason tournament team of a year ago. The best news is that the division's second most winning pitcher, Steve Williams (13-2, 1.81), is back. Joining him on the mound is Ed Honchen (10-1, tied with Flanagan at seventh).

Other top teams—Swarthmore (27-6) lost six starters but could rebuild. John Jay (23-10) is deep, including 10 veteran pitchers. Ferrum (30-13) has a starter returning at every position.

Other top players—John Schaefer, c, Swarthmore (.357); Sean Gargin, p, John Jay (8-3); Mike Padula, c, John Jay (.393); Tris Lipscomb, p, Ferrum (7-4).

South

Trenton State (30-17-1) could be the best in the region. Last year, the Lions could not get past New Jersey Athletic Conference rival William Paterson to make the final six. They also will face stiff competition from Methodist (32-14) in the region.

The Lions return veterans at every position except short, and they return the entire staff of starting pitchers. The hitting attack is led by center fielder Arnie Santiago (.425, 44 RBI), and he is backed up by fellow outfielders Jim Geraci (.349) and C. J. Rockhill (.344).

The pitching staff is anchored by sophomore Dan Brown (8-5).

Methodist was a young team last year, so most of the starters return this spring. Team speed and hitting may be the top assets for coach Tom Austin.

Doug Garrier and Roy Haddock finished eighth and ninth nationally in stolen bases last year with 43 and 40, respectively, and both return. Also back are hitters Mark Council (.358), Stan Mazingo, (.353), Danny Hartline (.366) and Jansen Evans (.365).

Johns Hopkins (31-12) did not lose a starter from a team that made the NCAA postseason tournament last year. Included in the returning group are Scott Burns (.456, 38 RBI) and Craig Brooks (.442, 40). The Blue Jays also have the division's top returning ERA leader in Mark Campbell (6-2, 1.59). Joining him is Pete Blohn (7-1, 2.56).

Other top teams—Virginia Wesleyan (29-10) was a postseason tournament team in 1985 and returns its entire pitching staff. Other top teams include Stillman (25-11), Salisbury State (26-10-5), Hampden-Sydney (18-10), Bridgewater (Virginia) (18-11), Lynchburg (22-10), Kean (29-13-2) and Frostburg State (23-16-1).

Other top players—Mark Hollyfield, c, Stillman (.420); Randy Collett, 1b, Salisbury State (.362); Tim Blake, of, Lynchburg (.381); Joe Sanchez, of, Kean (.438); Scott Hackal, ss, Frostburg State (.437).

Midwest

Since 1981, Marietta has won the Division III championship twice and finished second twice. After finishing second last season for the second consecutive year, the Pioneers appear to be headed down a similar road in 1986. Other teams that will contend for the regional crown are Ohio Northern, Allegheny, North Central, Wooster and Baldwin-Wallace.

The Pioneers lose their top three hitters, but coach Don Schaly has a strong pitching staff returning and still will have a lot of offense. Jim Katschke is the ace of the staff. He was the division's top winner a year ago with a 17-2 mark and a 2.83 ERA.

The offense is led by Mike Brandts (.361, 63 RBI, 9 HR), Drew Witouski (.348, 45, 6) and Roger Thompson (.313, 34, 5).

Ohio Northern (28-8) was a post-season team last year after a 12-2 record in the Ohio Athletic Conference. Plenty of offense returns from that team, including catcher Mike Bundy (.392) and designated hitter Tony Karpawich (.357). The pitching staff is led by Jim Epperly (7-1).

Allegheny (29-17-1) made its first trip ever to the NCAA tournament last year. It may be difficult to repeat with a depleted pitching staff, but the offense still is sound. Ed Taylor (.352) and Tony Libertini (.342) anchor the hitting.

Wooster coach Tim Pettorini has to like his team's chances for a return to championship action. Seven of the eight starting positions return from a squad that was 29-19 and a postseason selection. There are not many weaknesses on the team.

Junior Rick Sforzo was one of the division's top hitters last year at .446. Also returning are Russ Miller (.398) and Dave Kessler (.346). Thom Daly is the pitching ace. He posted an 8-2 record last year.

North Central (28-13) also was a play-off selection last year, after winning the College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin. The team hit 30 home runs, and players responsible for 26 of those return, including center fielder Craig Stefan (.397 and 12 HR). Pitchers Ed Mathey and Doug McBain both posted 5-3 records on the mound.

Baldwin-Wallace (24-15) lost in the Midwest regional to eventual national champion Wisconsin-Oshkosh; but in regular-season play, the Yellow Jackets beat Marietta and Ohio Northern three of four times each.

There is plenty of offense on the squad, led by senior second baseman Jim Magazine. Magazine hit .313 last year and has struck out only twice in 308 career appearances. The power comes from Doug Dockus (.419).

Other top teams—John Carroll (21-9), York (Pennsylvania) (25-12) and Gettysburg (15-11).

Other top players—Jim Catalano, dh, John Carroll (.358); Dennis Maloney, of, Gettysburg (.395); Mike Giles, 2b, Susquehanna (.436); Bill Moler, cf, Otterbein (.389, 12 HR, 11 doubles, 7 triples); Shawn Davis, p, Principia (9-4); John Ripperger, 2b, Knox (.420).

Midwest

Little seemingly stands in the way of Wisconsin-Oshkosh as it begins defense of its 1985 Division III national championship. Seven of eight starters return, and coach Russ Tiedemann has the Titans rolling.

Oshkosh (37-3) has sophomore left fielder Terry Jorgensen back, and he is the team's leading hitter at .418. Jorgensen captured Division III championship most-valuable-player honors as a freshman. He is joined by Rusty Kryzanowski (.361), the top returning home run hitter in the division.

On the mound will be Bob Stocker, who was tied for seventh in victories last year with a 10-1 record.

Maryville (Missouri) (26-12) also has to replace its leading pitcher, but the team was the second best hitting squad in the division last year, and much of it returns.

Leonard Bledsoe, junior first baseman, is the top returning hitter. He finished with a .435 average, 60 RBI and 14 homers. Also back are Mark Turner (.420, 41, 6) and John Tigges (.410, 41, 6).

If Mike Meyer can improve his 6-3 record on the mound, Maryville will be hard to beat.

St. Olaf (26-12), a Midwest regional selection last year, also is looking for pitching help. Robert Weber (6-3, 3.82) is the top returning hurler and one of only two starters. The hitting attack is led by Clay Anderson (.490), seventh in the division last year.

Luther (27-9) lost seven players from its 1985 tournament team. A lot will depend on a young pitching staff, led by Richard Smith (5-0). Dave Haugland (.379) and Dave Cotton (.333) will provide the offensive power.

Other top teams—Coe (16-6) has a pair of talented pitchers in Damon Walker (5-0) and Dave Drahn (5-2). Washington (Missouri) (25-12) also has good pitching in Matt Feigenbaum and Steve Vetter and solid hitting in Fred Webb (.403).

Other top players—Kurt Buschbacher, c, Carthage (.421, 32 RBI, 8 HR); Dave Gregory, p, Central (Iowa) (5-2, 60 strikeouts in 48 innings); Dean Noskowiak, cf, Wisconsin-Stevens Point (.473, 29, 6).

West

La Verne (30-17) appears to be the favorite for honors in the West. The Leopards return power in Mark Stutzman (.369) and Jeff Parel (.381). The leading pitcher is Kevin Engle (6-4, 3.20). If there is a weakness, it may be team speed.

Occidental went 20-15 last year and returns 15 lettermen. Among the group is sophomore first baseman Jeff Saenger, who hit .462. Joining him are John Billingsley (.327) and Quay Richerson (.305).

Women's basketball shooting accuracy increases

By James Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

Shooting accuracy from the field and at the free-throw line is up a little in women's Division I basketball. It may be because the nation's shooters are becoming more used to the smaller, more lively basketball introduced a year ago.

From the field, national accuracy now is 43.9 percent, with the season nearly two-thirds finished. The figures include all 5,123 games involving at least one of the 275 Division I teams, through games of February 1.

Well past midseason a year ago, figures for about 600 fewer games showed a national figure of 43.7 percent, en route to a final 43.9, below the 44 percent reached at the end of 1984—the first season national trends were compiled.

If field-goal shooting improves as much during the rest of this season as it did a year ago, the 1986 final figure will be 44.1 percent, breaking the record set with the old ball. The consensus of players, coaches and observers a year ago was that even though passing, ball-handling and outside shooting range were helped by the smaller, lighter ball, closer shots tended to bounce out more often because the new ball was more lively. The latter two factors cancelled each other out, leaving the figure about the same.

Free-throw accuracy also declined in 1985, dropping to a final 64.7 percent (after a midseason 64.2) vs. a final 65.3 in 1984—the last year of the old ball. The national figure now is 65.2, and if it improves as much as a year ago, the final figure will be a record 65.7 percent.

Evidence suggests that players are becoming more used to the smaller ball. On the other hand, unless a dramatic increase takes place during the last third of this season, a strong argument could be made that the smaller ball really has had very little impact on national shooting accuracy because the changes are very small indeed.

For the record, the new ball is about 3.4 percent smaller in circumference and about 9.5 percent lighter in weight. The current statistical changes are even smaller.

Scoring down slightly

Scoring is down slightly in women's Division I basketball, reaching 137.7 points (both teams combined). A year ago it was 138.3 at midseason en route to a final 138.6, which was down from 139.4 in 1984. The number of field-goal attempts—although well above the men's figure with a 30-second clock vs. 45 for the men—also is down slightly, with free-throw attempts up a bit.

Men's scoring was a bit higher—138.5 through games of January 25—as reported a week ago. So were field-goal (47.4) and free-throw (68.6) accuracy by the men, but that is not as big a margin as some might think. Remember that the men started at 29.3 percent from the field in 1948 and did not reach 44 percent until 1970, when it was 44.2 (it was 43.8 in 1969—lower than the current women's figure).

The women play more of a finesse game (not that it does not get rough at times)—more like the men's game used to be before the leapers took over with their dunks, blocks and in-your-face intimidation.

Southeastern leads overall

The Southeastern Conference, as always, shows the best overall statistical ranking. It is No. 1 only in scoring margin at 11.8, reflecting its domination in games outside the conference; but it is second in three categories, third in another and misses the top five only in free-throw accuracy. The Atlantic Coast Conference is next, making the top five in four categories; then the Big Eight Conference, also in four but ranking lower, and the new

UCLA junior Reggie Miller ranks fourth in Division I scoring with a 26 average five-team Pacific West Conference in three.

The ACC is second in scoring margin at 8.4, far behind the SEC. Next are the Pac West (7.3), Big Eight (5.8) and Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference (4.5). The ACC leads in both field-goal percentage (48) and in scoring offense (76.9). The SEC is second in field-goal percentage (47.6), followed by the Pac West (46.7), Big Ten Conference (46.6) and Big Eight (45.9), edging the Big East Conference's 45.7. The SEC also ranks second in scoring offense (75.3). Then come the Pac West (75), Big Eight (74.6) and the New South Conference (74.4), edging the Ohio Valley Conference's 74.3.

The Big East leads in free-throw accuracy (69.6), followed by the Big Ten (68.9), East Coast Conference (67.8), Big Eight (67.4) and Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference (67.1). In scoring defense, the leader is the Colonial Athletic Association at 62.4 points allowed per game, followed by the SEC (63.5), Metro Atlantic (64.2), Gulf Star Conference (64.9) and Atlantic 10 Conference (65.2). In field-goal percentage defense, the leader at 41.8 is the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference, but the MEAC is last offensively at 39.3 percent, so it leads mainly because these teams are playing each other. Second is the East Coast (42). Then come the SEC (42.1), Northern Pacific Athletic Conference (42.4) and North Star Conference (42.6).

The 500-win club

Entering this season, only 39 men's coaches in history were on the 500-win list—and that includes all divisions and all associations in college basketball, NCAA and NAIA. That total now is 42 with the addition of Angelo State's Ed Messbarger, Oklahoma City's Abe Lemons and Le-Moyne-Owen's Jerry Johnson (who actually made the list at the end of last season, but records were not complete).

Stephen F. Austin State's Harry Miller needs one more victory to reach 500; and his next game is February 15 at Southeastern Louisiana. Elizabeth City State's Bobby Vaughan needs only three more, so he likely will become No. 44 before the season ends.

Messbarger goes for No. 511 at Howard Payne February 15, Lemons for No. 509 February 13 at Oklahoma Science & Arts, and Johnson for No. 523 February 13 at Christian Brothers. Entering those games, Johnson was 21-3 this season, Miller 19-3, Lemons 20-4 and Messbarger 12-11. In terms of career winning percentage, Johnson is .701 for 28 years, Lemons .626 for 30, Messbarger .601 for 30

Robert Haugen, St. Mary's (California), leads Division I in field-goal accuracy and Miller .591 for 32.

Potsdam reaches 23

Potsdam State, the only unbeaten men's team in NCAA basketball, had a 23-0 record going into its final home game of the regular season February 12 against neighboring rival St. Lawrence, coached by former Potsdam State assistant Jim Berkman. The Bears' last two games are February 15 at Albany State (New York) and February 16 at New Paltz State. Then comes the State University of New York Athletic Conference tournament starting February 21. Potsdam State coach Jerry Welsh has reached the 500-victory level, including 146 wins as a high school coach. He is 357-118 for 17 seasons at Potsdam State and 146-32 in 10 high school seasons for 503-150.

He attributes his teams' success to the entire Potsdam community: "Potsdam is unique because it is a small town with a tremendous enthusiasm for our team. Our student body is among the finest and most supportive in the country. My staff, the faculty in a 121-113 victory over Colorado College, hitting 21 of 30 shots from the field and 17 of 20 free throws (plus 11 rebounds and three assists). Is this the highest single-game scoring effort of the season in NCAA basketball (any division)? His total broke school and conference scoring records. It was the first 50-plus-point game in the history of the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference, which goes back to 1909. (Brodie Farquhar, Colorado Mines SID)

Is Fairfield the only men's Division I team that is undefeated on the road this season? Heading into a February 15 game at Army, Fairfield is 9-0 away from home. In all games, Fairfield was 17-5 before a February 12 home game with Navy. Fairfield also is believed to be the first team to clinch a regular-season conference championship (Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference) in Division I basketball. Can any team top these? (Jay Williams, Fairfield SID)

Did any men's Division I team play 13 of its first 14 games on the road this season? Alcorn State did and lost 11 times for the school's worst start in almost 20 years. Since then, though, the young Braves have won seven straight (five at home) for a 10-11 record, including 7-2 in the Southwestern Athletic Conference for second place. (Lonza Hardy Jr., Alcorn State SID)

Quotes of the week

Webster University may boast the biggest front line in Division III, with 6-11 Brett Boeking, 6-9 Steve Pierson and 6-7 Jim Costello. How does it recruit such height? Simple, explains coach Ken Baxter. "I invite recruits to visit me on campus, and the doorway to my office is 6-5. If they have to bend over to get through the doorway, I sign them." (John Arenberg, Webster SID)

Cal-Irvine women's coach Dean Andrea was trying to gauge the feelings of a recruit to determine whether it would be worth continuing the effort. He told her mother, "Right now, we're not asking if we have a chance to marry her—just if we have a chance to get a date." (Doug Ward, Cal-Irvine sports information office)

The search for a new Kansas State head men's basketball coach to replace highly successful Jack Hartman is bound to be far more expensive than the search that landed Jack Gardner, the man who started Kansas State's winning tradition by taking two Wildcat teams to the Final Four and compiling a 147-81 record in 1940-42 and 1947-53. They landed Gardner for a three-cent stamp. "I applied for the job by letter, and they hired me the same way," Gardner told Sid Bordman of Kansas City Star on a recent trip to Kansas State. "We had just won the California state junior college championship a third straight year at Modesto. There was no talk of bringing me to Manhattan for an interview." Gardner went on to Utah, where he had a 339-154 record in 18 seasons, with two more trips to the Final Four. Now 76, he is a pro scout. He has never missed a Final Four since the first NCAA title game in 1939 and plans to be in Dallas. "The fundamentals have not changed," he said. "But the players are bigger, quicker, and they shoot better. The game is played above the basket rather than below it." (Duane DaPron, Kansas State SID)

Wanda Ford, Drake senior, is the Division I leader in scoring and rebounding

The roar of the crowd

The Virginia women's basketball team is in the throes of its most successful season ever. Incongruous as it seems, a game played February 5 against North Carolina will stand as one of the season's best and worst games.

During the three weeks prior to the game, a number of radio and television announcements featuring head coach Debbie Ryan and one or two players were aired. People in the community also were urged to attend by announcements taped by young patients of the university's Children's Medical Center. The proceeds from admission to the game were to be donated to the CMC. Additionally, a soft drink and hot dog could be purchased for 50 cents, and half of those proceeds also would be donated to the CMC. Finally, people were invited to see local media representatives take part in a game of their own at half time.

The promotion was a great success. University Hall was filled beyond capacity, with a final count of 11,174 people (59 had to be turned away at the door). More than $10,000 was raised for the Children's Medical Center. However, the game itself did not give cause for celebration, at least from the Cavaliers' point of view. Virginia sustained its first loss of the season, 60-58, after accumulating 20 victories.

Both teams shot poorly from the floor (Virginia finished at 29 percent), and it was speculated that the number of people attending the game was a factor. Players on both team were quite nervous. (Steve Lockard, Virginia assistant SID)

And still undefeated...

Since Virginia's fall from the ranks of unbeaten women's Division I teams, only two remain—much-heralded and top-ranked Texas and little-known St. Peter's, located in Jersey City, New Jersey. St. Peter's head coach Mike Granelli has led his team to a 21-0 mark through February 12. He is among the top 20 winningest active Division I coaches as well. Granelli, in his 14th season at St. Peter's, also is the women's soccer coach. (Diane Jones, St. Peter's women's SID)

Basketball notes

and administration all have been great."

Since Potsdam State's Maxcy Hall was opened for the 1972-73 season, the Bears are a nearly invincible 175-16 at home for a winning percentage of .916, which might be the best in the country. (Dan Williams, Potsdam SID)

Another Maryland grad

Frank Fellows, assistant dean of the college of physical education, recreation and health at the University of Maryland, College Park, coached three of Maryland's "Gang of Six" (January 22 Notes), which gave that university the national lead in the number of graduates currently head-coaching in men's Division I basketball. The story notes that one of the six played under Morgan Wootton, and two others assisted him. Writes Fellows: "You might be interested in knowing that Wootton (DeMatha, Hyattsville, Maryland), whom you mention as 'long one of the nation's most respected high school coaches,' also is a graduate of—you guessed it—Maryland."

A 2.860 squad

The 12-man Millikin varsity squad has a combined cumulative grade-point average for their college careers of 2.860 (4.000 scale), with seven of those players at 3.020 or better. Included are three freshmen with perfect 4.000 figures for their first semester—starter Brian Horst and reserves Steve McKenzie and Bill Tolone—plus another freshman, David Gillingham, at 3.800. (Jim Bowers, Millikin SID)

Veteran coach swaps his play book for NCAA rules book

By Herschel Nissenson

College football coaches often have talked about policing themselves, but Rich Johanninger has done something about it. He has become an NCAA investigator.

After 10 years as head coach at Southwest Missouri State University, a Division I-AA school, Johanninger has joined the NCAA's enforcement staff.

The job description Johanninger answered an ad in The NCAA News—says that "an enforcement representative is primarily responsible for the investigations of assigned infractions cases and making oral presentations of information and evidence at Committee on Infractions meetings.

"The investigation process includes locating principals, making appropriate appointments and travel plans for interviews, preparing memorandums of information collected, developing official case files, analyzing information on file to complete a case, and

Four named to national office staff

Two enforcement representatives, a compliance representative and a legislative assistant have joined the NCAA staff.

Enforcement representatives Richard A. Johanninger and Timothy J. Carter began their duties at the national office February 3, as did Karl D. Benson, the Association's first compliance representative. The new legislative assistant is Stephen J. Horton.

Johanninger had been head football coach at his alma mater, Southwest Missouri State University. He received a graduate degree in education from Springfield College, and he taught and coached at the high school and college levels for 12 years in New England before moving to Southwest Missouri State in 1976.

Carter received his undergraduate degree from the University of Kansas and a master's degree from the University of Oklahoma. He coached basketball at the high school level in Kansas before accepting coaching positions at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln; Oklahoma, and Midwestern State University.

Benson is a graduate of Boise State University and received a master's degree from the University of Utah. He coached baseball and was athletics director for five years at Fort Steilacoom Community College in Tacoma, Washington, and he also coached baseball at Boise State. He came to the national office from Utah, where he had been an administrative assistant and assistant baseball coach.

Horton received undergraduate and graduate degrees from the University of Georgia. He worked for six years as manager of marketing and customer services for the computer software clearinghouse of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA). Most recently, Horton had been an administrator with the University of Georgia Athletic Association, assisting with stadium operations, sports information, customer services and ticket-sales management. He also assisted in the administration of the 1985 National Collegiate Division I Men's Tennis Championships, which were held at Georgia.

Qualifying mark is corrected

The Division III men's indoor triple jump qualifying mark, as printed in the 1986 NCAA Men's and Women's Cross Country and Track and Field Rules book and the 1986 Men's and Women's Indoor Track National Collegiate Championships Handbook, is incorrect. It is 14.17 meters, not 14.71 meters.

ensuring that established investigative procedures are followed."

Translation: Johanninger will be a cop. When he visits a college campus now, he won't bring a football team with him. And the last person a coach wants to see in his office is an NCAA investigator.

"The reaction (to the move) surprises me some," Johanninger said as he mingled among more than 2,500 of his former colleagues during the American Football Coaches Association's annual convention last month in New Orleans.

"I've had a lot of guys say, 'We want to see you socially.' One Division III coach told me, 'You're always welcome at our place. We may be the only guys that'll welcome you.'

"A lot of guys have been really sincere about it and said, 'We're glad there's a coach in there. Maybe you'll understand more.' Some guys may feel comfortable enough to give me a call about something and say, 'Look, I don't know if there's anything to this, but maybe you guys can look into it.'"

While enforcement will be the main

'I would hope that most of my friends are not the type of guys I would have to investigate' part of Johanninger's job, he would prefer to practice preventive medicine.

"There are a couple of programs up there," he said. "One is that you are an NCAA investigator. Number two, you work in their 'Intercept' program, you work with a lot of the recruits in the country, sitting down with their parents and the student-athlete and explaining to them what the rules are, how recruiting operates.

"You keep double-checking with those really highly recruited individuals in kind of a moderating sense just to make sure that he understands, and the schools recruiting him understand, that they need to stay by the book."

The 43-year-old Johanninger had a 58-44-5 record at Southwest Missouri State, after serving as an assistant coach at American International, Vermont and Connecticut. And while 43 isn't exactly ancient, coaching has become increasingly a profession for younger men.

"As you can see in the lobby (of the convention hotel), there are very few 65-year-old coaches," Johanninger said. "After 20 years, it gets to the point where you know that somewhere along the line you're going to have to make a career change. It's either going to be made for you or you're going to make it yourself."

Of his new job, he said, "I think after 20 years of coaching that I certainly have a good feel for the pulse of what is going on, much more so than a guy who's never coached and would be doing the same type of thing."

Johanninger knows his new job may cost him some friends.

"I would hope that most of my friends are not the type of guys I would have to investigate," he said.

"I feel I can help keep the pressure off the guys who are doing the job correctly. And if a guy is involved in things that he shouldn't be doing, then I really don't feel sorry for him."

1986 Column No. 7

Recruiting contacts—football National Letter of Intent

Subsequent to the occasion of the National Letter of Intent program signing, Bylaw 1-2-(a)-(1)-(ii) permits Divisions I and II institutions to have unlimited in-person, off-campus recruiting contacts with a prospect, a prospect's relatives or legal guardians by the institution with which the prospect has signed. This year, the first permissible signing begins at 8 a.m. February 12 and continues through May 1.

This being the case, the institution with which the prospect has signed is not required to follow the contact and evaluation calendar for football as set forth in Bylaws 1-2-(a)-(4) and (6) and Bylaw 1-3 for that prospect. This does not permit the contact or evaluation of other prospective student-athletes who may be associated with the signed prospect outside the permissible contact or evaluation periods. In addition, because the student-athlete still is considered a prospect until enrolled at the institution, all contact in person with the prospect, the prospect's relatives or legal guardians shall be made by those institutional staff members who are allowed to recruit and scout off campus, and in-person, off-campus contact by representatives of an institution's athletics interests is prohibited.

It is permissible for those institutional staff members who are allowed to recruit and scout off campus to be present at the off-campus signing of a National Letter of Intent, with the exception that under Bylaw 1-4-(b), a Division I-A head football coach would be prohibited from any in-person contact with a prospective student-athlete on the date of the signing of an institutional or conference letter or the National Letter of Intent. This would prohibit any in-person off-campus contact by the head football coach on the date of the signing of the letter of intent. In accordance with Case No. 192 (page 311, 1985-86 NCAA Manual), an in-person, off-campus contact with a prospective student-athlete for signing the prospect to a letter-of-intent or other commitment to attend the institution must be counted in the total number of permissible contacts as set forth under Bylaw 1-2-(a)-(1).

Publicity related to signing national letters-of-intent

Under the provisions of Bylaw 1-4-(a), publicity released by an institution about the commitment of a prospective student-athlete to attend the institution shall be limited to announcing the prospect's signed acceptance of the institution's written offer of admission and/or written tender of financial assistance and shall be limited to communications in those media forms normally used by the institution. Furthermore, the release of such communications shall be limited to the media outlets normally used by the institution and those normally used by the educational institutions currently and formerly attended by the prospective student-athlete. No photographs of the prospective student-athlete with members of the institution's coaching staff may accompany any release of such information, and no special conference telephone hookups may be used for the announcement.

As set forth in Bylaw 1-4-(a)-(2), press conferences, receptions, dinners or similar meetings held to release such information are expressly prohibited, as is personal contact by institutional staff members with media representatives at the site of any form of acceptance of an offer by a prospect. Press conferences may be independently arranged by the prospect or his or her family provided there is no arrangement or involvement whatsoever by the institution or representatives of the institution's athletics interests. Coaches attending a signing may not have any personal contact with media representatives at the site of the signing (e.g., high school, home) and may not be available for comments or interviews at any other prearranged site.

An institution is responsible for signings on an institution's campus (whether involving an individual or group of prospects). Hence, the institution must assume an active role in preventing opportunities for media contact or other attendant publicity.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question that it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to William B. Hunt, assistant executive director, at the NCAA national office.

Tulane football team forfeits two 1983 games

The NCAA Council has considered the application of the restitution requirements of Section 10 of the NCAA enforcement procedure to Tulane University and concluded that the provisions of Sections 10-(a), (b) and (c) should be imposed upon the university where applicable.

This action was taken by the Council in light of the NCAA's successful defense of the application of the Association's transfer rule in litigation initiated in 1983 by Tulane student-athlete Jon English, then the starting quarterback on the university's intercollegiate football team. Under the Council's action, the requirements of Section 10 shall be applied as follows:

1. Team records and performances achieved when English participated while ineligible under NCAA legislation during the 1983 intercollegiate football season, and English's individual records during that period, shall be vacated and stricken.

In implementing this provision, Tulane University and the NCAA shall vacate and strike in their records the individual records and performances achieved by English during his ineligible participation.

2. Team victories achieved when English participated while ineligible during the 1983 intercollegiate football season shall be abrogated and the games forfeited to opposing institutions. In this regard, Tulane University has notified in writing member institutions (the University of Mississippi and Florida State University) against which English successfully participated while ineligible that it has forfeited those contests.

The records of the institutions to which the university forfeits the contests shall be altered in NCAA records to verify the forfeited contests as victories for the opposing institutions.

In arriving at its decision, the Council noted that the restitution provisions were adopted by the NCAA membership to provide for fairness to other member institutions by eliminating any competitive profit or advantage an institution might gain from an ineligible student-athlete's participation. It was observed that the institution's opponents are those whose interests were damaged throughout the period of English's ineligible participation and that the validity of the NCAA transfer rule was upheld by the courts.

Men's Soccer Committee acts on rules and automatic qualification

Conference qualification for NCAA men's soccer championships in all three divisions is among the recommendations that will be forwarded to the Executive Committee from the Men's Soccer Committee.

The men's committee met February 6-8 in Tampa, Florida, with a playing-rules subcommittee meeting held February 4. This is the first year that the committee has met at a time other than in conjunction with the Division I championship. It also was the first meeting for the rules subcommittee.

All of the committee's recommendations for championships administration probably will be considered by each of the three division championships committees before being forwarded to the Executive Committee in May.

The criteria for selection of automatic qualifiers includes those listed in Executive Regulation 1-6, plus the stipulation that conferences with six or seven member institutions must play a regular-season, single or double round-robin schedule and determine the conference champion either by in-season competition or by a postseason tournament.

Conferences with eight or more member institutions may create divisions of at least four members and conduct regular-season, single or double round-robin competition within the divisions and determine a conference champion as described above.

"There are some good reasons for considering the conference automatic-qualification system," said William D. Coulthart, chair of the committee. "With the growth of conference competition in the sport of soccer, it assures representation in the championships for those conferences that have developed the sport."

"Also, we believe that this system will encourage additional growth of conference competition and help promote the sport."

Division II will request a realignment of its regions from six to four with the following makeup: Northeast—New England, New York, New Jersey (three berths); Central—Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Kentucky, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Missouri (three berths); South—Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Florida (two berths); West—all remaining states (three berths). In addition, there will be one national at-large berth.

The Division II subcommittee also will recommend an increase in the size of its championship field from 12 to 13 teams, with two at-large berths. Following the lead of other committees, the subcommittee will recommend that a host institution must guarantee 75 percent of the net revenue that it lists on its proposed budget.

The Division III subcommittee also is recommending an increase in the size of its bracket from 24 to 28 teams. It is the same proposal that was denied by the Executive Committee last May. The South and Midwest-West regions would receive four berths, and the other four regions would receive no fewer than four and no more than six.

The Men's Soccer Committee is among the first of the sports committees with rules-making responsibilities to undergo a reformatting of the playing rules to bring them into compliance with guidelines prepared by the Special Committee to Review Playing Rules. The special committee was appointed to assist the sports committees with the reformatting to guarantee an equal opportunity among all the Association's membership divisions to comply with Bylaw 3-5.

The bylaw, which becomes effective August 1, 1986, mandates the use of NCAA rules in all intercollegiate contests in those sports for which the Association develops playing rules. This means that for the first time in most sports, NCAA playing rules must be used in regular-season competition.

Following the special committee's guidelines, the soccer committee separated the playing rules into those dealing with the administration of the sport and those dealing with the conduct of the contest.

Specifically, the committee established maximum and minimum dimensions for playing fields but allowed institutions to play on fields of less than minimum dimensions by mutual consent. Additionally, the committee established a required minimum field size for facilities constructed after September 1, 1988, of 110 yards by 65 yards.

Also included in the administrative rules are recommendations for placement of the team benches, timekeeper's table, coaching box, photographers' restraining line and the use of an electronic scoreboard; that only stitched balls be used; that only 18 players participate in any game or overtime, but permitted the mutual consent of coaches to determine how many could be used in a game; that at least two ball persons be used to speed the progress of a game, and statistical definitions of shots, goals, assists and saves.

In the conduct rules of the game, the committee adopted the international rule requiring the goalkeeper to play the ball out of the penalty area before resuming the four-step count; eliminated team cautions; required that an injured player must leave the field of play if the clock has been stopped (the player does not have to be replaced with a substitute, however), and required that eight-inch numbers be used on the backs of uniforms purchased after September 1, 1988.

Additionally, the committee continued its mandate that three officials be used in all intercollegiate contests. The latter is contrary to the guidelines established by the special committee and will be reviewed by the special committee.

The committee also voted to require that any experimentation with the rules must be proposed by a conference and approved by the committee. Guidelines for experimentation will be explained in a later edition of The NCAA News.

Finally, the Division I subcommittee voted to solicit bids from institutions or agencies interested in hosting the 1986 Division I championship. Requests for proposed budgets may be made by writing or calling the NCAA national office.

Committee Notices

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations for interim vacancies on NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancy must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, administrative assistant, in the NCAA national office no later than February 26, 1986.

Men's Basketball Rules: Replacement for James D. Dutcher, no longer at the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis. Replacement must be from Division I. Also, Mr. Dutcher must be replaced as chair.

Alabama A&M men's soccer program receives probation

The NCAA Committee on Infractions announced February 12 that Alabama A&M University has been placed on probation until June 30, 1987, for violations of NCAA legislation occurring from 1982 through 1985 in the conduct of the intercollegiate men's soccer program at the university. The case primarily involved violations related to NCAA grant-in-aid limitations in soccer.

The penalty imposed by the NCAA will preclude the university from participating in future National Collegiate Division I Men's Soccer Championships until the university demonstrates to the satisfaction of the NCAA Committee on Infractions that the men's soccer program is in full compliance with NCAA rules and regulations regarding institutional financial aid. Action also was taken to ensure that regular-season eligibility is limited to a total number of student-athletes whose financial aid awards do not exceed the value of 11 full grants-in-aid.

The record of the university's performance in the 1982, 1983 and 1984 National Collegiate Division I Men's Soccer Championships will be deleted from NCAA records, and the university will be required to return any team awards earned in those events. The university also will be required to submit a written report to the NCAA describing the procedures implemented to bring its men's soccer program into compliance with NCAA grant-in-aid regulations.

Frank J. Remington, chair, NCAA Committee on Infractions, stated that "the committee determined that the violations in this case involved highly skilled soccer players, many of whom were from outside the United States, who had limited financial resources. Although university records do not indicate that full grants-in-aid were awarded to all of these individuals, the young men have not been required to pay the educational costs that were charged to their accounts. Therefore, the university has agreed to assume responsibility for these costs, in part because the students have no means of payment, and NCAA restrictions regarding regular-season and post-season competition by the individuals and the institution will be imposed until the university demonstrates full compliance with the Association's financial aid regulations."

Following is the complete text of the penalty and a summary of the violations found in this case.

Penalty To Be Imposed Upon Institution

1. Alabama A&M University shall be publicly reprimanded and censured, and placed on probation until June 30, 1987, it being understood that should any portion of the penalty in this case be set aside for any reason other than by appropriate action of this Association, the penalty shall be reconsidered by the NCAA; further, during this period of probation, the NCAA shall review the athletics policies and procedures of the university, which will include periodic institutional inspections of the university by NCAA staff members.

2. The record of the university's performance in the 1982, 1983 and 1984 National Collegiate Division I Men's Soccer Championships shall be deleted; the team's place in the final standings shall be vacated, and any team trophy earned in these events by the university shall be returned to the Association.

3. The university's intercollegiate men's soccer team shall not be eligible to participate in postseason competition until such time as the university demonstrates in writing to the committee that its men's soccer program is in full compliance with NCAA rules and regulations regarding the total value of institutional financial aid awards that may be in effect at any one time in the sport of soccer.

4. Prior to the university's first soccer game in 1986, the university shall submit a squad-list form to the NCAA enforcement staff that identifies all recruited student-athletes in soccer. On that form, the university shall list all countable financial aid, as well as the unpaid balances of institutional charges that are due the university for each individual. Further, the university shall designate the student-athletes who will be permitted to represent the university in regular-season competition, it being understood that the total value of countable financial aid for these individuals may not exceed the value of 11 grants-in-aid. (This total shall include the value of all countable financial aid and any additional institutional charges to the individual for room, board, tuition, fees and course-related books for 1986-87 that have not been paid prior to submission of the form.) In this regard, the Committee on Infractions has concluded that the university may honor its previous financial aid commitments to student-athletes, but the university also should limit eligibility for competition to a number that does not exceed 11 full grants-in-aid. The remaining individuals would continue to be eligible for practice and the financial aid that has been extended. The identical procedure to determine eligibility shall apply to subsequent academic years until the university is in full compliance with NCAA grant-in-aid limitations.

Summary of Violations of NCAA Legislation

1. Violation of the limitations on financial aid awards [NCAA Bylaw 6-5-(b)] During a period beginning with the 1982-83 academic year and continuing through the 1984-85 academic year, the university awarded institutional financial aid (per O.I. 600) in the sport of soccer that exceeded the maximum permissible amount under NCAA rules of 11 full grants-in-aid.

2. Violations of the provisions governing financial aid [NCAA Constitution 3-4-(a), 3-4-(b)-(3), 3-4-(c)-(2), 3-4-(d)-(1)-(i) and 3-4-(f)]—(a) Prior to the 1982-83, 1983-84 and 1984-85 academic years, the university's administration arranged for the admissions office to waive a $100 foreign-student matriculation fee for each foreign prospective student-athlete (a total number of at least 22); (b) during the 1983-84 and 1984-85 academic years, numerous student-athletes received income from an on-campus employment program in addition to their institutional financial aid, which already was equivalent to the value of commonly accepted educational expenses (i.e., tuition and fees, room and board, and required course-related books at the university); (c) during a period beginning with the 1982-83 academic year and continuing through the 1984-85 academic year, the awarding of institutional financial aid to members of the university's intercollegiate men's soccer program was administered by the university's athletics department, and (d) prior to the spring semester of the 1984-85 academic year, the university failed to notify six student-athletes that their athletically related financial aid had been canceled and that they had an opportunity for a hearing regarding the matter.

3. Violation of the provisions governing individual eligibility for NCAA championships [NCAA Bylaw 5-1-(b) and Executive Regulations 1-3-(j) and 1-4-(f)]—Based upon a review of the violations of NCAA legislation found in this case, numerous members of the university's intercollegiate men's soccer team participated in the 1982, 1983 and 1984 National Collegiate Division I Men's Soccer Championships while ineligible; further, the university should have been aware at the time that these student-athletes were ineligible for postseason competition under NCAA legislation.

4. Violation of the principle of institutional control [NCAA Constitution 3-2]—During a period beginning with the 1982-83 academic year and continuing through the 1984-85 academic year, the university failed to exercise adequate institutional control and responsibility for the conduct of its intercollegiate men's soccer program.

Educational program for prep students to be explored

The creation of a 30-minute video containing segments on academics, drug education and gambling prevention will be explored by the NCAA Public Relations and Promotion Committee, which met February 3-4 in Kansas City. The video would be developed for viewing by high school students and administrators.

After expressing concern over the humanistic, educational and legal responsibilities the NCAA and its member institutions have to student-athletes, the group also developed material relating to the new drug-testing program that will be in place for NCAA championships in 1986-87. These press guidelines have been submitted to the NCAA Drug Education Committee for approval.

In other business, the committee discussed the inclusion of basketball features in the program-material mailing that goes out in early summer and the addition of photographers' regulations for basketball arenas in the recommended public-relations guidelines for basketball-playing member institutions.

Criswell averaging 19 points at West Georgia

Pro baseball player catches on in college basketball

Tim Criswell attends West Georgia College in his home town of Carrollton. He is pursuing a degree in physical education and earning recognition as one of Division II's top basketball players.

Until spring training opens in baseball.

Criswell, a catcher in the Atlanta Braves organization, soon will put down his books (temporarily), hang up his sneakers and don the "tools of ignorance" in preparation for his fourth season of pro ball.

"The main thing I have to do when I get to spring training is work on my hitting eye," said Criswell, who played for the Braves' Class A affiliate in Sumter, South Carolina, last season. "My timing will be off, if last year is any indication, so I will have to get my hitting back together."

On a comeback of sorts, Criswell tried out with the Braves and the New York Mets a year ago after spending two seasons in the Los Angeles Dodgers organization as a pitcher. "In high school," he recalled, "my fast ball was about 86 or 87 miles per hour tops, but I could hit 84 or 85 consistently. During the summer between my freshman and sophomore years in college, I jammed by shoulder diving for a ball, and I never was the same again.

"I lost some flexibility and never pitched real well after that. The doctors never gave me any specific diagnosis... I just knew my pitching prospects didn't look too great."

Criswell had spent his first year in college at Furman University, his second year in junior college. With the Dodgers, he had seen action in rookie leagues in Canada, Florida and Montana. He went home, baseball career in limbo, and enrolled at West Georgia.

"I heard that the Braves and Mets were looking for catchers, and I had caught in a few high school games and some summer leagues," Criswell said. "It had been more than four years since I'd caught and three years since I'd hit, but I figured I didn't have anything to lose."

Apparently feeling the same way, the Braves tendered a contract and assigned him to Sumter in the South Atlantic League. "I was more worried about what would happen at the plate than I was with what would go on behind the plate," Criswell chuckled. "I went three-for-three in my first at-bats, which helped my confidence tremendously. I think that was a key to my whole season."

Despite a month's layoff with a broken thumb, Criswell hit .275 for the year after topping the .300 mark early on. "I was a line-drive, spray-the-field hitter. Our hitting instructor told me it would take time before they could tell about my power."

When the season ended, he went home to hit the books and the hard-wood, taking classes for two quarters and starting in the West Georgia backcourt. After earning all-regional honors as a junior, Criswell has come back to average more than 19 points a game, shooting 52 percent from the field and 83 percent from the foul line.

"The way it works out, I have about 2½ weeks between the end of one season and the start of the other," he explained. "Going from baseball to basketball is more physically demanding, because I have to get my legs back. Going from basketball to baseball involves more mental preparation. I already feel pretty good in the spring. I'm in good shape from basketball, but the baseball season is long. You have to prepare yourself for that mentally."

Criswell admits he is about a year behind in his studies but has no intentions of deferring his degree permanently. "I really want to coach, so I am going to do as much as I can on this schedule and keep working toward my degree (his grade-point average is about 3.000 on a 4.000 scale). "One thing that really makes it all easier is being around home when I'm in school. My family and friends have always supported my decision to do everything, and that helps."

Who knows? Maybe things will slow down for Criswell after this year, his last on the West Georgia basketball team. Maybe he can play ball in the

NCAA golfers lead U.S. to victory

Georgia's Peter Persons and Florida's Karen Davies were named most valuable players after leading the United States to a 30-18 victory over Japan in the annual NCAA-Japan Golf Competition, held at the par-72 Narshino Country Club in Chiba, Japan, south of Tokyo.

Sponsored by the NCAA, the Japan Student Golf Association and Sports Nippon Newspapers, nine collegiate golfers (six males, three females) were selected to represent the U.S. in the tournament based on their performances in last year's Division I Men's and Women's Golf Championships. In addition to Persons and Davies, members of this year's team included Darren Cole, Mississippi; Jim Benepe, Northwestern; Todd Hamilton, Oklahoma; Kevin Whipple, Oklahoma State; Rob McNamara, Louisiana State; Danielle Ammacapane, Arizona State, and Dottie Pepper, Furman.

McNamara received the Ambassador Award, symbolic of the golfer who did the most to promote good relations between the two teams.

The Japanese team was selected by the Japan Student Golf Association.

Accompanying the American contingent were team leader Gwendolyn Norrell, Michigan State faculty athletics representative and former NCAA Division I vice-president; men's coach Joe Feaganes of Marshall, and women's coach Mimi Ryan of Florida.

All of the tournaments have been held in Japan with the exception of the 1978 and 1983 competitions, which were played at Pebble Beach. The American team has won all of the tournaments except the 1975 competition.

Basketball coaches question whether job is worth the hassle

By Doug Tucker

Coaching college basketball is not as much fun as they thought it was going to be, say Billy Tubbs and his colleagues in the Big Eight Conference.

Moreover, they say, they're not surprised that nine college coaches, counting Kansas State's Jack Hartman, recently have announced their resignations.

"I think Jack hit on an important point in one of his statements recently," said Oklahoma's Tubbs. "He said the game's just not as much fun as it used to be, as it should be, and that's something I've noticed."

Tubbs, whose Sooners are ranked among the best in the nation, described his profession as "vultureville."

"The role of the coach has changed so much," he said during the Big Eight's telephone hookup with conference coaches.

"A lot of coaches are questioning whether it's worth going through everything that's put on coaches."

Tubbs cited recent rules passed by vote of NCAA schools.

"You see all the legislation the NCAA is putting in...nothing to help a coach. It's all pertaining to various ways they can fire a coach," he said. "How many times have you seen the statement that a coach who runs a clean program and graduates all his people [is] going to be tenured like a professor? You never see any protection coming in for a coach; but every time you turn around, you see people on coaches. You're a warden, you're a lawyer...hey, coaching is almost immaterial now."

Actual coaching—rolling up your sleeves and instructing young people in the game's fundamentals and fine points—constitutes only about 20 percent of the job, said Oklahoma State's Paul Hansen.

"The other 80 percent is recruiting, dealing with personalities, the press and so forth," Hansen said. "It's not so much coaching, but recruiting, and that takes its toll on coaches."

I think Paul is overestimating it," Tubbs said. "I think actual coaching may be 10 percent of the job. When I went into coaching, what I perceived the job to be is completely different than what it actually is now. It's almost an impossible task."

"There's a tremendous difference between pro coaching and college coaching," said Kansas' Larry Brown, who has done both. "In college coaching, there are so many things that take up your time and are distractions, you hardly have the opportunity to coach. I don't know about 20 percent, but it's certainly not as enjoyable as it should be, and you don't have the opportunity to teach and coach that you'd like to have because of all the outside distractions."

Team to be named

The Athletics Congress has announced its selection procedure for the TAC/USA junior track team that will compete in the 1986 Junior Pan American Games and the junior world championships.

The top two runners in most events, plus relay runners, from the U.S. National Junior Championships (set for Towson State University June 28-29) will be named to the U.S. team. In addition to furnishing a uniform, TAC/USA will pay all expenses for team members to compete in these international meets.

For women, a junior is defined as having not reached her 19th birthday in the year of competition and who was at least 14 by January 1. Men may not reach their 20th birthdays during 1986 and must be at least 14 on the dates of the competitions.

Entry forms, qualification standards and other detailed information may be obtained by contacting Jack Pfeifer, Junior National Championships, P.O. Box 22683, Baltimore, Maryland 21203.

Colorado's Tom Apke said he finds a big difference between what his job is and what he thought his job was going to be.

"Pressures on coaches are greater than ever before," he said. "The fun

'Pressures on coaches are greater than ever before. The fun has gone out of it.'—Tom Apke, Colorado has gone out of it. When I came into the profession, I thought it was going to be the teaching of basketball and the teaching of team concepts that would mean whether I was successful or not successful. But I've found that's a small percentage of the job. There are so many other things...time on the road...time on the phone...time with the media. The nature of the profession has changed, and if you can't have fun and it starts to be a drudgery every day, that's when people start resigning."

"The pressure is terrible sometimes," said Iowa State coach Johnny Orr. "I think every coach goes through a period every year...everybody feels like quitting sometimes. But you get over the hump and you don't quit. But the pressure is so great right now, some don't get over the hump."

Said Nebraska's Moe Iba, "I don't think you're going to see many coaches going until they're 65."

Tubbs was asked if he might take a different career path if he were a young man.

"I have a young man named Tommy Tubbs and he wouldn't touch it," he said of his son, a former Sooner player. "He sees it every day. I don't think he's too interested in coaching. But remember this—there's one thing about the coaching profession. It's vultureville. There's a lot of people sitting out there waiting for guys to leave their jobs so 900 of 'em can pounce on it. There will never be a lack of people waiting to take coach-usually by providing graduated practice sessions for the first seven to 10 days and during other abnormally hot or humid days.

3. Know both the temperature and the humidity, since it is more difficult for the body to cool itself in high humidity. Use of a sling psychrometer is recommended to measure the relative humidity, and any time the wet-bulb temperature is over 78 degrees, practice should be altered.

4. Adjust activity level and provide frequent rest periods. Rest in cool, shaded areas with some air movement, remove helmets and loosen or remove jerseys.

5. Provide adequate cold-water replacement during practice. Water always should be available in unlimited quantities to the athletes. Give water regularly.

6. Salt should be replaced daily. Liberal salting of the athletes' food will accomplish this purpose. Coaches should not provide salt tablets to athletes. Attention must be directed to water replacement.

7. Athletes should weigh each day before and after practice, with weight charts checked in order to treat the athlete who loses excessive weight each day. Generally, a three percent body-weight loss through sweating is safe, and a five percent loss is in the danger zone.

8. Clothing is important, and a player should avoid use of long sleeves, long stockings and any excess clothing. Never use rubberized clothing or sweatsuits.

9. Some athletes are more susceptible to heat injury. These individuals are not accustomed to work in the heat, may be overweight and may be the eager athletes who constantly compete at capacity. Athletes with previous heat problems should be watched closely.

10. It is important to observe for signs of heat illness. Some trouble signs are nausea, incoherence, fatigue, weakness, vomiting, cramps, weak rapid pulse, flushed appearance, visual disturbances and unsteadiness. If heat illness is suspected, seek a physician's immediate service. Recommended emergency procedures are vital.

Finally, Mueller and Schindler offered 12 specific recommendations based on the 1985 survey data:

1. Mandatory medical examinations and medical history should be taken before allowing an athlete to participate in football. The NCAA recommends a thorough medical examination when the athlete first enters the college athletics program and an annual health-history update with use of referral exams when warranted. If the doctor or coach has any questions about the athlete's readiness to participate, the athlete should not be allowed to play. High school coaches should follow the recommendations set by their state high school athletics associations.

2. All personnel concerned with training football athletes should emphasize proper, gradual and complete physical conditioning. If it is impossible for a physician to be present at all practice sessions, emergency measures must be provided.

3. A physician should be present at all games and practice sessions. If it is impossible for a physician to be present at all practice sessions, emergency measures must be provided.

4. All personnel associated with football participation should be cognizant of the problems and safety measures related to physical activity in hot weather.

5. Each institution should strive to have a team trainer who is a regular member of the faculty and is adequately prepared and qualified.

6. Cooperative liaison should be maintained by all groups interested in athletics medicine (coaches, trainers, physicians, manufacturers, administrators, etc.).

7. There should be strict enforcement of game rules, and administrative regulations should be enforced to protect the health of the athlete. Coaches and school officials must support the game officials in their conduct of the athletics contests.

8. There should be a renewed emphasis on employing well-trained athletics personnel, providing excellent facilities, and securing the safest and best equipment possible.

9. There should be continued research concerning the safety factor in football (rules, facilities, equipment, etc.).

10. Coaches should continue to teach and emphasize the proper fundamentals of blocking and tackling to help reduce head and neck fatalities.

11. Strict enforcement of the rules of the game by both coaches and officials will help reduce serious injuries.

12. When a player has experienced or shown signs of head trauma (loss of consciousness, visual disturbances, headache, inability to walk correctly, obvious disorientation, memory loss), he should receive immediate medical attention and should not be allowed to return to practice or game without permission from the proper medical authorities.

The committees do not have the authority to establish, continue or discontinue championships (except as provided to the Divisions II and III committees via 1986 Convention adoption of Proposal No. 38) or to revise the minimum percentages required by Executive Regulations I-1-(a) and (b).

They do not have the authority to enter into contractual arrangements in behalf of the Association or any of its divisions, whether it be in radio and television, corporate sponsorships, or agreements with exhibitors and merchandisers.

the block-grant funding procedures will be featured in a future issue of The NCAA News.

Following is a summary of the recommendations for each of the championships:

The National Collegiate Championship field will include 12 teams from Divisions I and II. (Note: Division II teams will be eligible only for the National Collegiate Championship—they will not have the option of seeking reclassification to Division III). At least one team will be selected from each of five regions: New England—Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Rhode Island; Northeast—New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Washington, D.C. and part of Virginia (including George Mason University and the College of William and Mary); South—part of Virginia (including Radford University and the University of Virginia), North Carolina, South Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Florida, Arkansas and Louisiana; Central—Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Missouri, West Virginia, Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, and West—North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Utah, Arizona, New Mexico, Washington, Oregon, Nevada, California, Alaska and Hawaii. The remaining seven teams will be selected at large.

Four teams will receive first-round byes, while the remaining teams will be paired geographically. All first- and second-round games will be conducted on the campus of one of the participating teams. The first round will be completed by November 9, the second round by November 16, and the final four will be conducted November 22-23.

The Division III championship also will comprise 12 teams, with at least one team selected from each of four regions: New England—Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island; Northeast—New York, New Jersey and Delaware; South/Mideast—Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, Washington, D.C., Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana, and West—all other states. The remaining eight teams will be selected at large.

First- and second-round games will be conducted November 8-9 on the campus of one of the participating teams. Three teams will compete at each of the first- and second-round sites based on geographical proximity; the top team at each of the four sites would receive a bye in the first round (November 8) and play the winner of the first-round game in the second round (November 9). The semifinals and championship game will be conducted November 15-16 at an on-campus site.

Third-place games will not be played at either championship.

The committee also will recommend that transportation expenses be reimbursed to teams competing in the Division III championship.

In other action, the committee discussed the feasibility of proposing legislation that would give it rules-making responsibilities but decided to continue using FIFA (Federation Internationale de Football Association) rules, with the current modifications for NCAA championships competition as outlined in the 1985 championships handbook. More detailed information regarding the playing rules will be sent to all institutions in the near future.

The committee also voted to recommend that in order to be considered for selection purposes, tied games must be followed by two complete 15-minute overtime periods.
