ESPN to telecast 182 college basketball games

ESPN's 1987-88 NCAA basketball schedule will include 123 live regular-season games and will feature cable-exclusive agreements with seven of the nation's top conferences.

In total, ESPN will telecast 182 college basketball games—the most extensive schedule ever presented on national television—including 27 conference tournament games, 28 NCAA tournament contests and the NAIA semifinals and championship.

ESPN's season will begin Tuesday, November 17, at 11:30 p.m. Eastern time when the Soviet National Team plays an exhibition game at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, and will conclude March 31 with the NABC all-star game from Kansas City, Missouri.

"Each year we have strengthened our college basketball schedule, and this year is no exception," said Steven M. Bornstein, senior vice-president, programming and production. "The addition of the Southeastern and Big Eight Conferences, the enhancement of 'Championship Week,' and the fine-tuning of our other packages have resulted in a greatly improved schedule."

Among the highlights of the schedule:

- The addition of multigame arrangements with four conferences: SEC, Big Eight, Western Athletic and Ohio Valley.

- A total of 24 conferences, including national cable-exclusive deals with the Big East, ACC, Big Ten, SEC, Big Eight, Metro and Sun Belt.

- All of the teams in the NCAA final 16 last season will appear at least once.

- The return of "Big Monday,"

Big East/Big Ten double-headers.

- An enhanced "Championship Week on ESPN" March 5 to 13 that will include 18 conference championship games.

- Extensive postseason action including 20 NCAA first-round men's games, six NCAA women's games, the men's and women's NCAA Division II championships and the NAIA semifinals and champion-

SEC takes survey on grants-in-aid

Division I-A coaches and their athletics directors disagree on the maximum 25 initial football grants-in-aid allowed by the NCAA, according to a survey by the Southeastern Conference.

Of the athletics directors, 59.2 percent favor the limit of 25 initial grants, while only 45.8 percent of the coaches are satisfied with that number.

The limit was lowered from 30 to 25 by 1987 NCAA Convention legislation. The SEC survey showed, however, that only 44.4 percent of the Division I-A coaches were in favor of increasing the limit on initial grants back to 30. And 2.8 percent of the coaches were for reductions below 25. Three of 72 coaches (4.2 percent) said they preferred no limits on initial grants-in-aid.

Of the athletics directors, 18.4 percent favored 30 as the ceiling on initial grants and 9.2 percent favored no limitations at all.

The response for ADs and coaches combined shows 57.3 percent in favor of 25 initial grants, 31.1 percent favoring 30 as the limitation and 6.8 percent preferring further reductions from the current limit of 25.

The SEC survey was conducted by Associate Commissioner Jim McCullough, who told The NCAA News he thought the survey results will prove informative to those who might be considering legislation concerning grants at the 1988 NCAA Convention in Nashville.

Top rusher

The University of Florida's Emmitt Smith, a Pensacola, Florida, freshman, already has gained more than 1,000 yards over seven games this season, averaging 144.4 yards a game. He began the season as a third-string tailback and carried the ball only 15 times in two games. He is the Division I-A rushing leader.

Rushing making a comeback in I-A

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

Guess what, football coaches? That swing back to more and better running attacks with more option teams that some of you predicted in 1985 just may be under way this season.

It is not a huge trend, by any means, but it is there and worth noting. Just past midseason, Division I-A teams are averaging 345.9 rushing yards per game (both teams combined, all games involving at least one I-A team). That is up more than 10 yards per game over last year's final 335.8 and the highest since 1980, when it was 356.6.

Passing yardage still exceeds rushing, as it has every year since 1982, but the figure now of 360.8 per game is the lowest since 1981. Yards per attempt (6.69) are the lowest since 1981, and completion percentage (52.2) the lowest since 1982.

The result is a total-offense figure of 706.7 rushing-passing yards per game—second in history to the record 710.5 in 1985—and scoring of 45.5 points per game vs. the all-time-high 45.4 at the end of 1986. This is true even though touchdown passes at 2.03 are down from the record-high 2.20 per game last year.

One factor in the scoring increase is field-goal production and accuracy, both now close to the record highs set in 1984. Field goals per game now are 2.27 vs. the record 2.30 in 1984 and accuracy is 66.4 percent vs. the record 68.2 the same year. Both 1987 figures are second in history.

Efficiency the answer

More emphasis on rushing is not the answer, but efficiency is. Yards per rush now are 3.89 yards—highest since 3.94 in 1975. That season 12 yards ago marked the all-time high in total rushing yards at 408.9 yards per game. Option attacks

Association eases rule on assisting charities

In light of recent developments concerning the application of NCAA Constitution 3-1(c), one could argue that the Association's membership has decided that charity truly does begin at home.

"The legislation has been in the NCAA Manual, in its present form, since 1974," noted John R. Gerdy, a member of the NCAA legislative services department. "But little attention was paid to it until the incident involving Steve Alford (Indiana University, Bloomington, student-athlete) in late 1985."

Alford was suspended for one game by the Association after it was discovered that his photo had appeared in a calendar published for charitable fund-raising purposes by a campus organization at Indiana.

"Subsequent to becoming a student-athlete (per O.I. 1), an individual shall not be eligible for participation in intercollegiate athletics if the individual accepts any remuneration for or permits the use of his or her name or picture to directly advertise, recommend or promote the sale or use of a commercial product or service of any kind or receives remuneration for endorsing a commercial product or service through the individual's use of such product or service."

Questions about the legislation's application were coming in regularly from member institutions when Gerdy joined the NCAA staff in August 1986. "A lot of concerns [about applying Constitution 3-1(c) to charity-related activities] were being expressed in correspondence and telephone calls the legislative services department received," he said.

New procedure is designed to cut 'floor interpretations'

The NCAA Council has approved a new procedure designed to reduce the number of "floor interpretations" at the NCAA Convention.

Member institutions and conferences will be encouraged this year to request interpretations of proposed legislation for the January 1988 Convention in advance of the Convention. When the Official Notice of that Convention is mailed from the national office November 25, it will include a form that members can use to submit questions regarding the proposed legislation appearing in the notice.

They will be asked to submit such questions not later than December 15, after which the questions will be considered by the Legislation and Interpretations Committee. That committee's decisions then will be reviewed by the NCAA Council in its pre-Convention meeting, and the resulting interpretations of proposed legislation will be distributed to the delegates at the Convention prior to the business sessions.

The new procedure was suggested by President Wilford S. Bailey and approved by the NCAA Administrative Committee prior to the fall Council meeting.

"We believe this procedure may encourage members to review the legislation in a more critical manner,"

Bailey said, "and it should reduce the number of 'new' questions that are raised by delegates during the business sessions."

The Council approved the procedure on a trial basis for this year and will review it after the Convention to determine if it will continue.

Legislative Assistance

1987 Column No. 37

NCAA Constitution 2-2-(a)

The NCAA Council recently reviewed a recommendation from the NCAA Legislation and Interpretations Committee to modify the Council's previous interpretation prohibiting a member institution from hosting and promoting athletics contests between two professional teams as a fundraising activity for the institution. The Council agreed with the recommendation and determined that the provisions of Constitution 2-2(a) would not preclude a member institution from promoting a contest between two professional teams on its campus or prohibit the institution from utilizing the revenue produced from such contest. Please note this interpretation does not change the application of NCAA Case Nos. 1 and 2 (pages 301 and 302, 1987-88 NCAA Manual) regarding funds donated by a professional sports organization.

NCAA Bylaw 1-9-(j)—excessive entertainment

The Council reviewed a previously approved interpretation indicating that the provisions of Bylaw 1-9-(j)-(3) prohibit a member institution from providing transportation for prospective student-athletes through the use of a helicopter or limousine, inasmuch as these modes of transportation exceed the normal standard of automobile and commercial air transportation, and would represent excessive entertainment of a prospective student-athlete. The Council affirmed the Legislation and Interpretations Committee's conclusion that for purposes of this interpretation, a limousine is defined as a vehicle that contains luxuries normally not associated with an automobile (e.g., a bar, television), may have more extensive seating room than a normal automobile and may involve the services of a chauffeur.

NCAA Constitution 3-1-(e)—institutional highlight film

The Council confirmed the Legislation and Interpretations Committee's interpretation of the application of Constitution 3-1-(e) and Case No. 45 (page 313, 1987-88 NCAA Manual) as they relate to the sale and distribution of an institutional sports highlight film. The Council agreed that Constitution 3-1-(e) and Case No. 45 would not preclude a third party other than the institution (e.g., a distribution company) from being involved with the sale and distribution of an institutional highlight film that contains the names and pictures of enrolled student-athletes, it being understood that the following conditions are satisfied:

1. The institution specifically designates any third-party agency that is authorized to receive orders requesting the videotape.
2. The sale and distribution activities have the written approval of the institution's director of athletics.
3. A third-party retail store or distribution company (e.g., Sears, 7-Eleven, a video retail store) would be permitted to sell and distribute an institutional highlight film, with the understanding that the distribution company or retail store is precluded from using the name or picture of an enrolled student-athlete in any poster or other advertisement to promote the sale or distribution of the film.

Also, the committee agreed that the application of Case No. 45 would permit a sponsoring commercial company or service to depict more than the company's regular trademark or logo (e.g., conduct a 60-second commercial) in the production of an institutional highlight film, provided there is no indication in the makeup or wording of the advertisement that the squad members, individually or collectively, or the institution endorses the product or service of the advertiser.

USOC names Schiller as executive director

Harvey W. Schiller, commissioner of the Southeastern Conference, will become executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee in January.

Schiller drew unanimous acceptance in a vote October 24 by the Olympic committee's executive board in a meeting in Oklahoma City.

Schiller, a member of the NCAA Executive Committee, will remain in his post as commissioner until after January 1. He said he plans to attend the NCAA's annual Convention in January in Nashville because his conference has sponsored legislation for that Convention.

Technically, the USOC selected two executive directors October 24 when they also chose Baaron Pittenger, acting USOC executive director, to serve as executive director until Schiller takes over next year.

Pittenger has served as acting executive director since Gen. George Miller resigned last August.

Schiller has been SEC commissioner since September 1986 after leaving his position as chair of the chemistry department at the U.S. Air Force Academy, where he was the institution's faculty athletics representative.

He was among the four finalists selected to replace Walter Byers, who retired October 1 as NCAA executive director.

Schiller served 24 years' active duty with the Air Force, the last eight at the U.S. Air Force Academy, where he held the rank of colonel. He flew 700 combat hours in Vietnam.

He was a varsity football player at The Citadel, where he earned a bachelor's degree in chemistry. He later earned a master's and a doctorate in chemistry at the University of Michigan.

For the past four years, Schiller has served on the USOC executive board and as chair of the USOC's Games Preparation Committee.

Ralph Hale, Honolulu, president of the U.S. Water Polo Association, has assumed Schiller's post as chair of that committee, which is charged with coordinating all Olympic trials and team selections.

NCAA extends school's probation

The NCAA has announced that the probationary period imposed last year on the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, which was to end October 9, has not expired. The probationary period will not end until the NCAA enforcement staff reviews information relating to recent published reports of alleged violations of NCAA regulations and a reported cover-up in the university's 1986 investigation of its football program.

Members of the NCAA enforcement staff have met with Tennessee officials; and at the university's request, the NCAA will conduct its own independent inquiries.

No timetable was given for completion of appropriate interviews. When the matter has been completed, the university will be notified of the results, and the NCAA will make its own public statement concerning the conclusions of the enforcement staff.

Peach Bowl support grows

Peach Bowl officials have announced the highest level of corporate and volunteer support in the history of the event.

Seven paid corporate sponsors and more than 300 volunteers have been signed up for the January 2, 1988, game.

In 1986, the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce assumed management of the Peach Bowl, lending the administrative support of an organization whose 1987 one-year membership drive attained the highest funding ever of any chamber in the country—more than $1 million.

"We've been very enthused by the Atlanta chamber's commitment to the bowl," said Barry Johnson of AT&T, an associate sponsor for the 1988 game. "Atlanta, by its very nature, lends itself to hosting a major bowl. We anticipate continued involvement in this event."

"Corporate sponsorship is critical to the success of bowl events today," said Lee E. Ayers, the bowl's executive director.

"And volunteers bring an enthusiasm and sense of commitment to the Peach Bowl that generate a unique excitement for our festivities. We're very pleased to see Atlanta providing such broad-based support for the Peach Bowl," Ayers said.

"Staff members were handling inquiries from representatives of member institutions that were interested in helping charitable causes on their campuses and in their communities," Gerdy recalled. "After the Legislation and Interpretations Committee was formed by action of the 1987 Convention, we began presenting issues relating to the application of Constitution 3-1-(e) to the new committee for review."

Prior to January 9, 1987, requests for interpretations of Association legislation between Council meetings had been handled by the Administrative Committee. However, action taken that day by the membership established a 10-member Legislation and Interpretations Committee to determine interpretations, subject to later review by the Council.

"Little by little, interpretations made by the Administrative Committee and the new committee—and later affirmed by the Council—have opened the door for athletics departments to help charitable causes in ways like the calendar Alford's photo appeared in," Gerdy said. "And at its August meeting this year, the Council took action to make specific reference to these activities in NCAA legislation."

He referred to the following proposal, which was approved by the Council for sponsorship as an amendment at the 1988 Convention:

"A student-athlete may promote directly a charitable or educational project, provided all funds generated by the use of the student-athlete's name, picture or appearance are distributed directly to the charity or educational agency. Member institutions shall be responsible for monitoring and approving the involvement of student-athletes in such charitable or educational activities."

"Certainly, it is important that member institutions make note of the fact that, due to interim interpretations issued by the Council and the Legislation and Interpretations Committee, student-athletes now have more freedom to lend their support to worthy causes," Gerdy noted.

"But I also believe it is important to note that all these actions are in direct opposition to what appears to be a widely held perception that the NCAA and its legislation are inflexible. The membership's actions, as noted earlier, prove just the opposite."

Gerdy noted that member institutions planning to permit student-athlete involvement in charity-related activities should contact the legislative services department early in the planning for any such events. "We encourage member institutions to contact this department to make sure that events or materials being considered for involvement by student-athletes are appropriate, based on the interpretations that have been issued," he noted.

"Most charitable fund-raising activities now can be structured to conform to NCAA legislation. If athletics directors and other appropriate institutional staff members encourage student-athletes' involvement in such activities and consult with the legislative services staff early in the planning process, the potential to generate financial support for worthy causes is practically unlimited."

Teaching-standards board appoints president, members

A board established to set national standards for teachers in U.S. schools has appointed 34 new members and a president.

The 63-member board eventually will offer certification to primary and secondary school teachers across the country. It is called the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards.

The president, who was chosen by a vote of the original 29 board members, is James A. Kelly, a former high school history teacher in suburban St. Louis and a former officer at the Ford Foundation.

He now heads the Center for Creative Studies, a Detroit organization formed to establish and support educational programs in the creative arts.

"I believe the mission of this board is unique in the annals of American education," Kelly told

The New York Times. He will be in charge of the board's day-to-day operations.

"This is a positive voluntary program for exciting and stimulating and encouraging teachers to set high standards and to reach them," Kelly said.

A teacher will not be required to obtain board certification in order to be hired by a local school district, but the board has been praised by educators as an important step toward demonstrating a commitment to tough standards and elevating the status of the profession.

Board members said they were confident that teachers generally would seek certification.

"We have called ourselves a profession for many years, but we have not been able to attain that status in the public eye," said new board member Joel A. Fink, a biology teacher who was 1986 Kentucky Teacher of the Year.

The board was a principal recommendation in a 1986 report by the Carnegie Forum on Education and the Economy. It plans to create its set of standards for professional competence within the next four or five years and eventually will issue certificates to those who have achieved them, the Times reported.

The Carnegie Corporation has pledged $1 million to the board, and the members said they would seek additional financing. The board will maintain an office in Washington, D.C.

The 63 members include the presidents of the two national teachers unions—Mary A. Futrell of the National Education Association and Albert Shanker of the American Federation of Teachers.

I-A play-off inevitable, Dodds says

Houston Chronicle

Forget a play-off for big-time college football's national championship—for now.

But remember this: As sure as a football has pointy ends, a play-off is coming.

Take it from DeLoss Dodds, director of athletics at the University of Texas, Austin, and one of the NCAA's foremost authorities on the pros and cons of a football play-off.

"It's not a question of if, it's a question of when," Dodds said. "It won't happen this year. It may not happen in five years. But sooner or later, there'll be a play-off. It's coming."

Dodds attended a meeting of Division I-A athletics directors recently in Chicago. Ninety-one ADs, representing about 90 percent of the major football schools, participated in a straw vote on the play-off question. The antiplay-off faction won the election by a 2-to-1 margin, Dodds said.

It was the second time this fall that a play-off motion had fizzled. The NCAA Presidents Commission earlier had voted against anything resembling a football tournament.

Ballots or no ballots, Dodds remains convinced that a play-off is a mortal lock sometime in the visible future. He isn't just guessing, either. As chair of an NCAA committee appointed to study play-off possibilities, Dodds has researched the question far more thoroughly than most athletics brass.

"I think anytime a play-off comes up for a vote, either a tremendous number (of schools) will be for it or a tremendous number against it.

"Not many schools right now want to stand up and vote for a play-off—because of the bowl people."

Individual schools don't want to antagonize any bowl promoters because no school wants to jeopardize its chances for a bowl bid. In time, that will change, Dodds said.

Triggering that change, in Dodds' opinion, will be poverty.

"I think revenues will determine when a play-off comes. When there's enough of a shortfall at Division I-A institutions, then a play-off will happen."

That time is drawing closer as bills pile up at more big-time football schools, Dodds said.

Bearing down

One of the nation's top defensive water polo players, Fernando Carsalade of the University of California, Los Angeles, was set to lead the second-ranked Bruins against No. 1 California October 24 in what may have been a preview of the National Collegiate Men's Water Polo Championship November 27-29 at Long Beach, California. Carsalade entered the game as the Bruins' leader in steals with 69.

Wesleyan plans $19.5 million project

A gift of $5 million from Mansfield Freeman, class of 1916, and his son, Houghton Freeman, class of 1943, will help to build Wesleyan University's new physical education center.

The day after the gift was announced, the board of trustees voted to proceed with the next step in design of a new swimming center, field house, activity space, support facilities and physical education administrative offices.

The Freeman gift, the second largest in Wesleyan history and the first major gift to be announced since June 30, when a five-year fund drive that raised $63.7 million ended, was announced by President Colin G. Campbell. Wesleyan's largest gift was a $6.1 million bequest received in 1953 from George W. Davison.

Houghton Freeman, one of Wesleyan's all-time best soccer players, is chair of the board of trustees' facilities committee, which recommended approval of the project by the board.

With the Freeman gift, Wesleyan has raised $10.2 million of the estimated $17.5 million construction cost of the 154,000-square-foot complex. Total cost is estimated at $19.5 million, including fees and equipment. An additional $2 million in endowment for operating support will be sought.

Construction is due to begin next summer on three adjoining buildings that will house a 50-meter pool; a field house featuring a 200-meter track, and various teaching, training, locker, and shower areas. Grouped with Wesleyan Skating Arena and newly expanded playing fields at Long Lane, the buildings will centralize most of Wesleyan's physical education facilities by providing 154,400 square feet of space.

A new outdoor track with bleachers and scoreboard to be built adjacent to the physical education center is being handled as a separate project with an estimated cost of $360,000. In addition, the roof of the hockey rink will be repaired at an estimated cost of $182,500. Removal of the existing track from Andrus Field will improve that surface for baseball, which, along with football, will continue to be played there.

When the new physical education center is completed, Alumni Field House will be renovated for continued use for varsity basketball and other indoor sports. Possible reuse of the nearly century-old Fayerweather Gymnasium for other purposes will be studied.

Hayes honored

Denison University trustees have honored alumnus Wayne Woodrow (Woody) Hayes with the creation of the Woody Hayes Scholar Athlete Award.

A 1936 Denison graduate, the late Hayes also coached the school's football team before moving on to Ohio State University. His 1947 and 1948 Denison teams were undefeated and established an 18-game winning streak.

Denison senior and team captain Grant Jones of Upper Arlington, Ohio, received the first award. The defensive back and Rhodes Scholar candidate will use the cash award for postgraduate work at Ohio State, where he already has been accepted to medical school.

Kansas State University head football coach Stan Parrish says any chance he had to turn the lowly Wildcat football team into a winner disappeared last January.

"I won't see competitive football here in my lifetime unless something is done for us," Parrish said. "There is just no way we can compete against the Oklahomas, Nebraskas and Iowas when you have only 75 percent of the players they have."

New Iowa State University head football coach Jim Walden didn't know it, but the same thing happened to him at the same time—the week he took over the wrecked football program in Ames.

Unexpectedly last January, the members of Division I-A football voted to cut annual grant-in-aid awards from 30 to 25. While maintaining the overall limit of 95 grants, NCAA members reduced the number of awards under the justification of exerting greater control over collegiate football.

It was the first adjustment in the number of grants to be awarded since 1976, when the 30-95 grant rule was adopted to bring parity to major-college football.

Howard Schnellenberger

But for coaches like Walden, Parrish, Bob Valesente of Kansas, Dave Kragthorpe of Oregon State University and Howard Schnellenberger of the University of Louisville, it couldn't have happened at a worse time.

In effect, the cut means those teams are likely to remain the doormats of college football for several years and possibly permanently, they say. In Walden's case, it could take as long as eight seasons before he can field a squad equal in numbers to Oklahoma, Nebraska and Iowa, three annual opponents.

"It is simply an unfair situation for my team, my players and my future," said Walden, whose team has 57 scholarship players, the fewest of any major college. "This kind of situation does nothing but tempt younger or overly ambitious coaches to cheat or simply leave programs that want to become competitive."

But there may be hope on the horizon for the dregs of major-college football.

Concerned by a lack of competitiveness in several major conferences like the Big Eight Conference, athletics officials are beginning to push for changes to make the least competitive teams in major-college football more competitive.

"There is no doubt something is going to have to be done," said Brigham Young University head football coach LaVell Edwards, president of the influential American Football Coaches Association. "There are teams in just about every Division I football conference in the same situation as Kansas State or Iowa State."

Schnellenberger, who won the mythical national championship in 1983 at Miami (Florida), and now is head coach at 0-4 Louisville, agrees that something should be done for schools with scholarship problems. "But I'm not sure exactly what it would be," Schnellenberger said. "There is nothing tougher than trying to build a team when you don't have numbers."

A recently updated College Football Association survey on attrition shows clearly that teams with losing

Some sports issues have a long history

Respondents to a Detroit Free Press "man in the street" survey split evenly on the question of paying college football players. Three of those asked favored paying players. Three did not.

Following are their responses to the paper's question, "Do you think college football players should be paid openly?"

Lawry Click: "No. That would turn the game into a professional channel, taking away the real spirit between teams and players. The game is fun for them now—it would be work if the players openly received pay for playing."

Pat Chubbuck: "Sure, the players ought to get enough to cover all college expenses. Most of the boys have to work their way through, but if they were paid, then they'd have more time for study and other activities."

Togan Kip: "No. The college sport should always remain amateur. The accent is still on education—not making money. If the players want to play for money, they'll have their chance later."

R. F. Gallandt: "It's only fair to the boys that they be paid. As long as the colleges collect admissions and make profits from the game, the players should get some of the money for doing all the work."

L. S. Norman: "College athletics should always be considered a sporting proposition, as now. The idea of football is that it's a game among amateurs, not just an exhibition among paid performers."

Mrs. William Lagosh: "They should be paid. They're doing a lot of hard work, which is more than just fun. Since people enjoy watching and pay for the privilege, there should be a proportionate split."

Besides the viewpoints expressed, there is one more interesting fact about the Free Press' feature. It was published October 12, 1941.

"I was researching game accounts from the 1941 (University of) Michigan football season when I ran across this item," said Steve Boda Jr., NCAA associate director of statistics. Using an interlibrary loan system, Boda obtains microfilm copies of newspapers from around the country for his historical work.

In case you're wondering, Click's occupation was listed as sailor on the merchant ship Benson Ford. Chubbuck was a home arts student at Henry Ford Hospital.

A Turkish national and engineer, Kip was in America as a foreign exchange student. Gallandt was a bartender.

Norman was listed as an actuary—according to Webster, a person whose work is to calculate statistically risks, premiums, etc., for insurance. Lagosh was a housewife.

records have substantially more attrition than the winners. The survey says the average attrition rate for college football teams was 70.8 percent, but teams with records below .500 had higher rates of players quitting or transferring.

Those schools with the worst records lose 33 percent of their players each year, while teams with .750 winning records lose less than 25 percent annually.

Officials at several "have-not" schools believe action can be taken in January when the NCAA convenes its annual Convention.

Proposal options range from total elimination of the annual ceiling to granting each conference the authority to allow schools additional scholarships temporarily. A third option, one that also appears to have some support, would restore the annual ceiling of 30 scholarships.

Iowa State University athletics director Max Urlick said Big Eight Conference officials are circulating three proposals in search of sponsors for the NCAA Convention. They include proposals to restore the annual ceiling to 30, as well as two to eliminate the annual ceiling altogether.

"I don't much care what option they choose, but the NCAA has to give me and schools like Kansas State a chance," Parrish said.

For Walden, who coached nine years at Washington State University, the problem of attrition at a so-called "have-not" school is nothing new. But at Iowa State, which plays national powers like Oklahoma and Nebraska as part of the conference schedule, his lack of scholarship players and the prospect of taking seven or eight years before he gets to 95 has become a major frustration.

"If I had 90 or 95 scholarship athletes here and got blasted by Barry Switzer 56-3, then that's my fault," Walden said. "But no one can expect me to compete with those guys when they have twice as many kids as I have. You're unreal when you expect that."

He believes the annual limit should be repealed and discounts complaints such a move would only encourage coaches to run off third- and fourth-string players.

Walden said new minimum academic standards as well as cuts in recruiting will make sure coaches keep their players.

"There is no way a coach could bring in 45 kids at a time," Walden said. "I don't think anyone could find 45 kids who could all pass Proposition 48 at the same time."

At Iowa State, Walden inherited a program that lost four 1987 scholarships after a 1986 NCAA investigation, leaving Walden with 21 scholarships for this year's freshman class.

Despite a late start on recruiting, Walden landed 17 recruits and expects to find four junior college athletes before the end of the year. But Walden's problem is not a harsh NCAA penalty.

Instead, he must cope with a major decline in the number of scholarship athletes during the past four years when previous coach Jim Criner concentrated on bringing junior college transfers to Ames.

Walden argues strongly that some sort of exception for high attrition schools must be made. "You can raise it back up to 30 or let the conferences decide themselves how many scholarships a weak sister should get. I'd like to see the whole annual limit eliminated, but I'm not sure many people want to go that far."

Urlick agreed, but pointed out each option will generate opposition from other NCAA members. The key, said Urlick, is to find a solution while staying within the trend of cutting costs and exerting strong administrative control of athletics.

BYU coach Edwards said NCAA officials also must confront the ceiling question because it will "make it very difficult for SMU to ever be competitive" after it serves out recent NCAA sanctions. Last year, the Mustang football program was banned from competition for one year and permitted to have only 15 scholarships for the 1988 season.

After the penalty was imposed, SMU officials announced they would cancel the 1988 schedule because it would be impossible to field a representative team. With the current rule, SMU will be allowed a total of 40 scholarships for the 1989 season.

"That just isn't enough for anyone to compete with," Edwards said. "Something should be done to help them get more numbers once the penalty is served."

But Jerry Fishbain, recruiting coordinator at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, said he would be skeptical about any change that would allow coaches to bring in an unlimited number of players in any year. "I understand their problems, but let's not be naive either. Runoffs occur, and something like this just may encourage more of it," Fishbain said.

Some conferences believe the annual limit of 25 scholarships will spread talent throughout Division I-A, not reduce it.

James W. Lessig, commissioner of the Mid-America Athletic Conference, said the new limit will improve the ranks of his conference's schools because those schools have just decided to increase the allowable number of scholarships to 95 for next year. Now those teams are limited to 90 by conference rule.

Texas, Texas A&M announce plans to increase enrollment of minorities

Houston Chronicle

The presidents of the University of Texas, Austin, and Texas A&M University said that they will play on the same team to encourage the enrollment of more black and Hispanic students at the state's universities.

William H. Cunningham of Texas and Frank E. Vandiver of Texas A&M announced that their schools have entered a joint venture to establish minority-counseling "outposts" in Houston, Dallas-Fort Worth, San Antonio and the Rio Grande Valley.

The offices will be staffed by representatives from both universities who will work with student counselors and parents in middle schools and high schools and attempt to identify as early as the seventh grade those minority students who might be suited to college study.

"We will no longer try to outbid each other for these students," said

Vandiver, whose school came up with the idea.

Both universities rank poorly in minority enrollment nationally. black and 9.4 percent Hispanic. Cunningham termed the figures of A&M's student population.

Texas' numbers are only slightly better, with 3.4 percent of its students Black and 9.4 percent Hispanic. Cunningham termed the figures "not acceptable."

"One of the problems we have is getting (minority students) to take the right courses in the seventh and eighth grades," Cunningham said. He said there is little problem keeping minority students once they have qualified and gained admission to a university.

Beyond their immediate enrollment dilemma, Vandiver and Cunningham believe the new "outreach" program will encourage black and Hispanic students to take course loads at the lower levels that will prepare them to enter any college.

"We hope we get a good number at Texas and Texas A&M, but that's not the main purpose of the program. The main purpose is to get them in the educational system, keep them there and get them in college somewhere in Texas," Vandiver said.

Under the new plan, university representatives will help draw up a student's detailed course outline from middle school through graduation from high school.

Also, an A&M official said, several colleges and universities have volunteered the use of their campuses for "Saturday college" programs, which might include tutoring sessions and "role model" speakers for potential university students.

Officials from both universities emphasized that the new program is not intended to replace the traditional counseling methods used in middle schools and high schools, but to supplement them.

UT and A&M each have allotted about $200,000 for the first year of the minority-outreach program.

Boger working on plan for NFL to pay schools

When Lawrence L. Boger retires next spring after 11 years as president of Oklahoma State University, he hopes to leave behind a plan under which the National Football League would pay for the privilege of drafting college players—and could even draft undergraduates at a higher cost.

"Everyone understands that the colleges are the NFL's minor leagues," Boger says. "They train all the players and get them ready for the pros."

"But very little is contributed back to the schools by the players, and none by the pros, to my knowledge," Boger told Herschel Nissen of the Associated Press.

Under Boger's plan, NFL teams would contribute a certain percentage above and beyond a player's signing bonus to a scholarship pool administered by the NCAA.

"The pros could take a player from the colleges at any time," he says. "If they draft a senior, just add five percent to the signing bonus. It might not be five percent; it might be three percent."

"Let them draft juniors and sophomores, but they would have to pay, say, 10 percent for a junior, 15 percent for a sophomore. The earlier they draft them, the more they put in."

"If the NFL takes a player prior to his graduation, it should have to fund a scholarship at the institution so he can finish his degree."

"I've kicked this around for four or five years, but I haven't pushed a pencil concerning dollars and cents. It's just a concept right now."

Ohio State plans to inspire young Blacks to get degrees

Ohio State University is reaching out to black sixth graders to assure that they finish high school and go on to college.

Starting next spring, the university will select 200 sixth graders in urban areas and encourage them through a series of summer workshops, tutoring programs and financial incentives to attend and finish college.

"The key to long-term success in black recruitment is increasing the student pool from which all universities draw," Edward H. Jennings, Ohio State president, told The New York Times.

"With the Young Scholars Program, Ohio State is making a college education a possibility for many black students who may not have had the opportunity," said Jennings, who is a member of the NCAA Presidents Commission.

The goal of the Young Scholars Program, which will be expanded each year until about 1,400 students in grades six through 12 are enrolled, is to reverse the trend of declining black enrollment at Ohio State and other four-year Ohio colleges.

Jennings says he hopes the program will become a model for other colleges and universities.

North Carolina-Greensboro hopes for last crown

Although North Carolina-Greensboro (10-5-1) has fallen out of the Intercollegiate Soccer Association of America's top-10 rankings, the defending Division III Men's Soccer Championship titlist still has hopes of claiming one final crown before moving up to Division II next season.

Head coach Michael Parker notes that his team fell in the rankings last year but rebounded in postseason action to defend its 1985 title. The Spartans also won titles in 1982 and 1983 and have compiled a 21-2 tournament record over the past six years.

In addition to having one of the toughest schedules among Division III teams—only eight of the team's 20 scheduled games are against Division III foes—Parker has a fairly young squad that includes 10 freshmen.

Leading scorers for the Spartans are senior Willie Lopez and freshman Jason Haupt.

Top-ranked Ohio Wesleyan (15-3) will be making its 12th trip to the tournament after recently clinching the North Coast Athletic Conference title and automatically qualifying for postseason play. Anchoring the team are junior stopper Drew Dimatos and senior goalkeeper Jeff Kaplan.

After the loss of three all-Americans and the entire starting midfield from last season, coach John Martin relied heavily on the defense until the offense strengthened. And strengthen it did.

The Bishops have in their ranks the two leading scorers in the conference—senior forward Charlie Blanchard and junior forward Bob Barnes. Between them, Blanchard and Barnes have 35 goals and seven assists.

Eighth-year North Carolina Wesleyan coach Tony Ferrell is optimistic about his team's chances to win the Dixie Conference after upsetting conference rival North Carolina-Greensboro. "Our tougher games are behind us," he said. "If we can continue playing like we have been, I see no reason why we shouldn't make it."

The Battling Bishops (13-2-1) last saw tournament action in 1984, when they were defeated in first-round play by North Carolina-Greensboro.

Scranton (16-0) hopes to make 1987 its 11th consecutive season for championship play. Ranked second in the national poll, coach Steve Klingman's team faces tough competition within its own region—namely from Glassboro State and Elizabethtown.

Top players for the Royals include sophomore Mike Kane, who has 13 goals and eight assists; senior Magnus Ojert with eight goals and six assists, and goalkeeper Roy Best, who has a goals-against average below 0.50.

Salem State (9-0-2) hopes to earn another trip to the championship after losing last year to Plymouth State in the second round. Coached by Nick Padovani, the Vikings have experienced defeat in regular-season play only once since October 1, 1983. Their last loss was October 22, 1986, when Westfield State downed them, 2-0.

Seventeen of the 22 players on the team are freshmen and sophomores, but Padovani calls it one of the best teams he has coached. Leading the Vikings in scoring is all-America striker Alzero Ibanez with 12 goals and six assists, followed closely by freshman Jasper Schonbeck with 10 goals and five assists.

Having clinched first place in the Eastern Division of the State University of New York Athletic Conference, Binghamton coach Tim Schum hopes his team's outstanding performances will continue into tournament action. The Colonials are 11-1-1 this season.

Binghamton last played in the championship in 1982, when it was defeated in the first round. Before that, the Colonials advanced to the 1980 quarterfinals before falling to Babson.

Top players for the Colonials include senior Andy Szalaji, who is the leading conference scorer with nine goals and three assists, and senior Raul Martynnek.

Play-off notes: Cortland State hosted the first "final four" in this tournament last November. Rochester's 1986 title was the school's first team championship in either men's or women's competition. Six of the 11 games played in last year's tournaments were shutouts—four by 1-0 scores.

Rochester women back as favorites to defend Division III soccer title

In only the second year of Division III postseason women's soccer play, defending titlist Rochester undisputedly will be the team to beat in 1987.

The 12-1 Yellow Jackets have held the top spot solidly since this season's first Intercollegiate Soccer Association of America rankings. Returning for the team are the 1986 tournament's most outstanding offensive player, Martha Winter, and team tricapitain Mary Knoll. Knoll, a senior midfielder, is one of the Yellow Jackets' top scorers, with eight goals and six assists to her credit.

Coach Terry Gurnett's team, which includes 11 sophomores, has scored 48 points this season while holding opponents to only five points.

For contender Cortland State (9-1-2), 1987 has brought a "very tough schedule."

"I gave us the hardest schedule this year so we could get the experience of playing tough teams," admitted coach Chris Malone. "I wasn't really expecting the team to do as well as it has done."

Malone, however, definitely is pleased with the progress his young team has made. His starting squad includes only one senior—all-America Leslie Moore—and one junior. Earlier in the season, the Red Dragons defeated Methodist by two points and tied UC San Diego—both of which have been ranked in the top 10 all season.

However, the tournament won't exactly be smooth sailing. "I think the play-offs this year will be very exciting," Malone said. "There are a lot of young teams out here who are anxious to win. Competition will be fierce."

Rutgers soccer star gets plenty of attention

It's getting easier and easier to find Peter Vermes at a Rutgers soccer game.

The moment he touches the ball, there's a crowd around him.

"He right now is the most dominant forward in Division I soccer," Rutgers coach Bob Reasso told the Associated Press. "I have never seen people draw the attention he does. Teams are putting one, two and three players on him and he is still doing the job."

The statistics more than bear that out. Despite the crowds, Vermes scored 17 goals in 16 games while recording the Scarlet Knights' first goal in 12 of those games and the game-winner nine times.

Vermes twice has been named most valuable player in tournaments and two times was the Atlantic 10 Conference player of the week.

The Delran, New Jersey, native is also one of the leading candidates for the Hermann Trophy, which is given annually to the nation's top collegiate player.

"I know of the Hermann," said the 20-year-old Vermes. "I guess I am coming into the picture. I'm going really well this year, scoring a lot of goals and getting a lot of assists. I'm just doing as much as I can for the team."

"The last couple of years, Peter has always shown glimpses of brilliance, but never sustained brilliance," said Reasso of the former New Jersey scholastic player of the year, who transferred to Rutgers in order to be near his cancer-stricken mother after playing his freshman season at Loyola (Maryland). "This year he is. He is just dominating the whole season and that's rare in any sport."

Vermes has had an advantage over most natives of this country. His father, Michael, was a professional soccer player in Hungary who came to the United States in 1956 following the Hungarian Revolution.

"My father was a very, very big help," said Vermes. "A lot of kids learn the game from coaches who teach just the physical game. I learned the mental part from my father. Talking about the game with him, I learned so much."

With the season winding down, Vermes wants just one thing—a trip to the NCAA play-offs.

"I've never gone to the NAAs," he said. "I just want to get there so badly. I can just feel it. If we didn't do it, it would leave a bad taste in my mouth."

Field hockey upstarts pose threat to usual Division III contenders

Traditional contenders and new challengers are likely to square off during the 1987 Division III Field Hockey Championship.

Bloomsburg has participated in the tournament the past three years and has finished first, third and second. Coach Jan Hutchinson lost eight starters from the runner-up team, with the bulk of the losses coming up front. But the defense on this year's squad has been extremely stingy (12 shutouts in the first 16 games), and the offense has been balanced.

"I could not be more thrilled with the way the players have come together as a team," Hutchinson said.

Seniors Cindy Daeche and Sharon Reilly and junior Alicia Terrizzi are among the standouts this year. Daeche moved to the center link position this season and has anchored the defense. She also has been a potent offensive weapon on penalty corners. Freshman goalkeepers April Kolar and Lori Shelley both have proven to be capable.

Hutchinson calls the tournament the time when the real fun begins because of the tough competition. In the last three tournaments, some of the Huskies' toughest competition has come from Trenton State.

The two teams met in the semifinal round each of those years, and all three games were decided by a single goal. In 1984, Bloomsburg was a 2-1 winner and went on to win the championship; while in 1985, Trenton State took a 1-0 decision and then won the title. Last year, Bloomsburg was a 2-1 victor before losing in the finals.

Trenton State and Elizabethtown are the only two teams that have played in all six Division III tournaments. Trenton State also has been one of the most successful competitors, with three titles, one second-place and two third-place finishes.

Coach Sharon Goldbrenner had to do some rebuilding this year, but opponents probably have not noticed any difference in the quality of Trenton State's play. The Lions lost a couple of games early in the season, then settled into their familiar winning pattern.

"I cannot say we are stronger in one area than another," Goldbrenner said. "A lot of players have contributed at both ends of the field."

Senior Penny Kempf and sophomore Diane Rausenberger have paced the offense. Sophomore back Heidi Schwartz also is among the scoring leaders, due to her proficiency on corners. Senior goalkeeper Annmarie Kelly has helped keep opposing offenses at bay.

"Whoever is in the tournament, it will be very competitive, very exciting," Goldbrenner said.

Gettysburg came on strong at the end of last season and earned its first trip to the tournament. This season, coach Lois Bowers has a senior team that appears to have kept the momentum going.

"The players know what they are about," Bowers said. "This is the fastest team I have ever had. Our scoring is split evenly across the front line. That is tough to stop."

Two of the leaders up front are Beth Curry and Pam Williams. Junior goalkeeper Amy McLaughlin has been slowed by an injury, but freshman Lauren O'Donnell has played well.

Kim O'Gorman, William Smith

William Smith is looking for its first invitation to the championship. Coach Pat Genovese has a solid nucleus in seniors Karen Carpenter, Moira Lewis, Karen Salemo, Sarah Warriner and Louise Schachter. Kim O'Gorman has had a record-setting year and breaks her own single-season record every time she scores.

"We are solid all-around," Genovese said. "The players work together as a team and they work hard."

Frostburg State, Salem State and Cortland State are among the teams with the most tournament experience.

Selections for the championship field will be announced Sunday, November 1.

Championship Profile

Event: Division III field hockey.

Field: Two teams from each of five regions and six at-large selections will make up the 16-team bracket.

Automatic qualification: Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference and Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference.

Defending champion: Salisbury State College. The Sea Gulls capped an undefeated season with a 3-2 victory over perennial power Bloomsburg for the 1986 title.

Schedule: All games will be played at on-campus sites. Regionals will be played November 6-7, and the semifinals and championship will be held November 13-14.

The NCAA News coverage: Regional scores and semifinal pairings will appear November 9. Championship results will be published November 16.

Contenders: Salisbury State, Bloomsburg, Trenton State, Shippensburg.

Play-off notes: Only eight of the 28 teams that have participated in the Division III tournament have been selected only once: Gettysburg, New England College, Ononta State, Plymouth State, Shippensburg, Smith, Westfield State and Wheaton (Massachusetts)... Four of the six individual records kept in this tournament were either set or tied in 1986... Only four of the eight "one-time teams" mentioned above lost their first game in the play-offs... There never have been more than five goals scored in a Division III championship final.

Rochester

North Carolina State. The only other loss came in a contest against Cortland State. The Lady Monarchs have offset those losses with 12 wins; four regular-season games remain.

Top players under coach Joe Pereira are leading scorers Anne Thorpe and Brenda McKimens. In her first season with Methodist, Thorpe has accumulated 14 goals and three assists; senior Brenda McKimens is responsible for 10 goals and eight assists. Senior all-America Lori Silvasi provided key defensive play until recently, when she suffered a knee injury. Pereira hopes that Silvasi can return to her position as sweeper by tournament time.

The chances that Plymouth State (11-2) has taken on the soccer field have earned the Panthers the top ranking in the New England region and a top-five ranking in the nation.

Coach Phil Rowe sees some tough games ahead in postseason action. He is very impressed with both Curry and Rochester after tying Curry on its field last season and finishing second to Rochester in the Division III championship last year.

One plus for the Panthers this year has been a lack of injuries.

"We've been very fortunate this year by not losing any players to injuries," Rowe said. "I think any team that can remain injury-free has a good chance in the tournament."

Top Plymouth State players are goalkeeper Mary St. Germain, who earned all-America honors in her freshman year, and Traci Walker, who accounts for eight goals and five assists in her first year of collegiate play.

UC San Diego (11-3-1) has dominated the West region, allowing only two goals against Division III teams. The Tritons' three losses have come against Cal State Dominguez Hills, UC Santa Barbara and California. Competition against Cortland State earlier this season ended in a tie.

The Triton defense is above average this year, due to the combination of sweeper Susan Kramer and goalkeeper Julie Freiss. The two are a major factor behind the Tritons' 10 shutouts.

Outstanding offensive players under first-year coach Brian McManus include leading scorer Heather Mauro (13 goals, two assists) and Felicia Faro (seven goals and 10 assists).

Bloomsburg's Sharon Reilly (2), Daneen Fero (18) and Cindy Daeche (14)

Summary of NCAA Council actions

Following is a list of all actions taken by the NCAA Council in its October 12-14, 1987, meeting in Kansas City, Missouri.

Committee reports

Academic Requirements: The Council remanded to the committee its proposed legislation to allow prospective student-athletes to achieve the minimum required SAT or ACT score no later than the end of their final academic year of secondary education if that academic year has concluded prior to the individual's initial college enrollment.

Other Council actions:

Agreed to sponsor an amendment to the note following Bylaw 5-1(j) to give the Academic Requirements Committee the authority to grant exceptions to the Bylaw 5-1(j) provisions, but with no reference to specific criteria. Criteria proposed by the committee were not approved.

Approved the committee's recommendation that term-to-term eligibility certification not be implemented; declined to sponsor legislation to create such a requirement.

Sustained the committee's action in declining to recommend that an exception to Bylaw 5-1(j)-(6) be added to Case No. 328 in a situation where a student-athlete was misinformed by an institution's staff members regarding his eligibility status.

Did not support a recommendation for the establishment of a central clearing office for certification of eligibility of all freshman student-athletes under the provisions of Bylaw 5-1(j); recommended that the committee and other interested parties investigate other means of treating concerns regarding eligibility certification, including discussion with the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Deregulation and Rules Simplification: The Council approved the recommendations of the committee and took other actions as follows:

Approved Council sponsorship of a resolution for the 1988 Convention to specify that the committee's statement of principles for the conduct of intercollegiate athletics be approved for inclusion in the revised NCAA Manual that will be submitted for vote at the 1989 Convention.

Approved Council sponsorship of a resolution for the 1988 Convention to authorize the committee to develop a new section of the Manual entitled "Administrative Regulations," with those regulations to be transferred from the constitution and bylaws in the revised Manual that will be voted upon at the 1989 Convention; the NCAA Council would have the authority in the future to adopt and revise such regulations between Conventions. Approved Council sponsorship of an amendment for the 1988 Convention to Constitution 5-1(g) to permit the Council to adopt such administrative regulations between Conventions.

Supported in principle the committee's proposal for an integrated program regarding legislation, interpretations and maintenance of the revised NCAA Manual, voting to refer the matter to the national office staff and a small subcommittee of the Council to be appointed, for further review and a subsequent report to the Council.

Authorized the committee to select from a compilation of interpretations from Legislative Assistance columns in The NCAA News from 1984 to 1987 (but not otherwise published) those that should be included in the revised NCAA Manual, with the compilation to be published in The NCAA News.

Approved the committee's recommendation that it report to the Council in August 1988 its opinion regarding possible areas of deregulation in NCAA legislation, based on the original purpose of the rule, whether it fulfills that purpose, whether that purpose remains valid, whether deletion of the rule would affect the membership adversely and whether the rule might be simplified (if not eliminated) without losing effect.

Eligibility: The Council took these actions relating to the committee's recommendations:

Accepted the committee's decisions regarding publication of eligibility appeals decisions on a monthly basis in The NCAA News.

Agreed to review in January a revision of Case No. 275 to confirm the current interpretation that a student can qualify for an extension of eligibility only for a period equal to the amount of time between the date he or she becomes unable to attend a collegiate institution and the date of the start of the first regular term in which he or she is able to return.

Defeated a motion by the Division III Steering Committee to delete "or to personal or family finances" from Case No. 275.

Infractions: The Council voted to sponsor all legislation recommended by the Committee on Infractions, as follows:

An amendment to Bylaw 9-5 to provide that the committee's current authority to modify or create new policies and procedures between Conventions be extended from

Enforcement Procedure 12 to other sections of the procedures, but not to those concerning penalties, restitution or certain other provisions related to the committee's structure and duties.

An amendment to Enforcement Procedure 7 to add a statement identifying possible conditions that the committee (or the appropriate Council subcommittee upon appeal) may require an institution to satisfy during a probationary period.

An amendment to Enforcement Procedure 7 to describe more specifically the "disassociation" of an athletics representative in the show-cause provisions.

An amendment to delete Enforcement Procedure 7(g), moving the material necessary to clarify the handling of institutional and conference reports of secondary and major violations to Enforcement Procedure 2(f).

An amendment to Enforcement Procedure 3(c) to add a new paragraph permitting the committee to process violations outside the current four-year "statute of limitations" period if such violations indicate a blatant disregard for the fundamental regulations of the Association or an effort to conceal such violations.

Review Playing Seasons: The Council subcommittee had been asked to react to a recommendation that a member institution's postseason competition be limited to NCAA championships or other events specifically approved by the Association. The Council voted to approve the subcommittee's recommendation against such a proscription so long as the competition occurs within the institution's 26-week (21-week in Division III) season in the sport and is counted toward the limits on contests or dates of competition.

meeting

Professional Sports Liaison: The Council took these actions regarding the committee's recommendations:

Approved a recommendation that the NCAA executive director and the chair of the Professional Sports Liaison Committee be the "communication links" between the NCAA and professional leagues, requesting that all coaches associations, directors of athletics and others involved in NCAA matters work through those individuals in voicing "official" positions to the media or the professional leagues on matters relating to player agents.

Voted to sponsor, for Division I only, an amendment at the 1988 Convention to increase from $900 to $1,400 (rather than the $2,100 recommended by the committee) the Pell Grant exemption in the Association's financial aid limitation.

Referred to the Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism, for consideration in its fall meeting, the Professional Sports Liaison Committee's recommendation that data be developed concerning the percentage of Division I student-athletes who receive athletically related financial assistance, the amounts thus received over a four- or five-year period, and a comparison of the amount of financial assistance available for student-athletes and nonathlete students, as well as a comparison of the potential earning power (after college) for those individuals; agreed that Division II should be included in this study.

Agreed to review a prototype of state legislation dealing with the regulation and certification of "personal representatives" and player agents when a draft of such legislation becomes available.

Authorized the Administrative Committee, acting for the Executive Committee, to act promptly on approving development of a videotape describing the NCAA's rules and regulations regarding the involvement of player agents with student-athletes.

Review and Planning: The Council took these actions regarding the committee's recommendations:

Referred to the Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism a recommendation that research be conducted to determine the number of student-athletes who truly need financial aid beyond the current NCAA grant limitation.

Noted that the Council would act elsewhere in this meeting on legislation to "resolve the problems created by the amended Bylaw 3 provisions," as recommended by the committee.

Referred to the Council Subcommittee on Review Playing Seasons a series of recommendations regarding limitations on preseason practice and on the "nontraditional segment"; proposing season limits in a few sports, rather than across the board, and means of controlling situations in which a coach's demands on a student-athlete result in inability to hold a legitimate summer job.

Took no action on a recommendation that Bylaws 12-5(a)-(3) and 12-6(a)-(3) be amended to permit a male associate or assistant athletics director to be considered an administrator for purposes of service on sports committees.

Rejected the committee's recommendation that there should be evidence of a student's admissibility to an institution before that institution signs him or her to a letter of intent, opining that the effect of such a requirement on the National Letter of Intent program could render that program inoperable, and such a result would outweigh the advantages of such a requirement.

Noted that a procedure for sharing with the membership summaries of state legislative activities relating to intercollegiate athletics had been developed, as suggested by the committee.

Referred to the Research Committee a recommendation that it proceed with a full membership survey of the reasons institutions discontinue sports and of the class-enrollment status of all student-athletes in all sports. Also referred was a suggestion that deadlines for institutional reporting in the various NCAA research projects be staggered throughout the year, rather than permitting deadlines for two or more projects to fall within the same period.

Referred to the new Special Council Subcommittee to Review Minority Opportunities in Intercollegiate Athletics a series of suggestions regarding development of data on numbers of black student-athletes and other minorities participating in athletics and serving as administrators and coaches.

Referred to the Presidents Commission, for consideration in relation to its June 1988 National Forum session, the Committee on Review and Planning suggestion that the current multidivision-classification circumstances be "frozen," with no further multidivision classifications approved, but that football be treated separately in this regard. In addition, the Division III Steering Committee requested and the Council agreed to sponsor at the January 1988 Convention legislation to exclude any future eligibility of Division II institutions for the Division III Football Championship, grandfathering those currently eligible.

Voted to sponsor legislation to establish a "restricted membership" category, replacing the "unclassified membership" status in Bylaw 10-1(f) and the new "probation" year in Bylaw 10-1(f)-(3).

Noted that the executive director was addressing with various audiences the role of the director of athletics and the need for that individual to have the support of the chief executive officer in assuring the day-to-day integrity of the athletics program, as recommended by the committee.

Special Events: The Council took these actions regarding the recommendations of the committee and its Postseason Football Subcommittee:

Voted to sponsor a resolution at the 1988 Convention to determine the Division I-A membership's interest in a Division I-A national football championship, noting that the intent is to frame the resolution so that a "yes" vote is an affirmation of the members' lack of interest in establishing such an event.

Voted to sponsor an amendment to Bylaw 3-2 to permit member institutions to play in football bowl games only between the conclusion of the regular football season and January 1, except that if January 1 falls on a Friday or a Sunday, member institutions could participate in a bowl game January 2.

Voted to sponsor legislation to restrict "title" sponsorship for a bowl game (i.e., the sponsor's name is a part of the name of the bowl) on the same basis that advertising is limited for bowl games; therefore, brand-name products that identified malt beverages, beer, wine, tobacco or liquor would not be permitted as a title sponsor.

Referred to the Executive Committee the subcommittee's recommendations that Executive Regulation 1-18(f) be revised to permit two promotional announcements for telecasts of professional sports contests and that Executive Regulation 1-19(a)-(2) be revised to permit advertisements featuring active professional athletes in all sports (including football) during a bowl game, with certain limitations.

Approved three changes recommended by the subcommittee in the Application for Certification form for bowl games: That bowls identify their final minimum pay-out and playing date not later than September 1 and that "gross receipts" be clarified as the term relates to revenues generated by sponsorship arrangements.

Took these actions regarding the Special Events Committee's recommendations for approval of college all-star basketball and football games:

Approved the Aloha Classic, Honolulu, Hawaii; Louisiana Coaches, Monroe, Louisiana; McDonald's Classic, Elizabeth City, North Carolina; NABC All-America, Kansas City, Missouri; New England Hall of Fame, Fairfield, Connecticut; New Jersey Coaches, Teaneck, New Jersey; and Ta-Wa-Si Athletic Association, Grand Rapids, Michigan, all-star basketball games but delayed action on the Portsmouth Invitational pending receipt of additional information.

Granted conditional approval, pending receipt of additional information, of the Coaches All-American Game, San Diego, California; Southern Shootout, Memphis, Tennessee; and Super Shootout, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Approved the Blue-Gray, Montgomery, Alabama; East-West Shrine, Palo Alto, California; and Hula Bowl, Honolulu, Hawaii, all-star football games.

Approved "with reservations" the Freedom Bowl All-Star Classic and the Ricoh Japan Bowl, expressing concern regarding those games' expense-income ratio.

Voted to sponsor legislation to eliminate Bylaw 2-4, leaving the matter of participation of student-athletes in gymnastics and track events sponsored by noncollegiate entities to the discretion of the student-athletes' institutions.

Remanded to the committee its recommendation that the compliance and enforcement department attempt to identify student-athletes participating in noncertified college all-star football and basketball games and review the measures taken by institutions to dissuade such participation. The Council suggested that the committee consider a recommendation to delete Bylaw 2-3 entirely, leaving participation in all-star college games to the discretion of the student-athletes' institutions.

Noted for the record the committee's actions regarding certification of high school all-star football and basketball games.

Voted to sponsor legislation to delete Constitution 3-9(a)-(1), (2), (3) and (4), thus eliminating the NCAA from the certification of high school all-star football and basketball games and eliminating the limitations on the number of such games in which a prospective student-athlete may participate.

Stimulate the Membership's Compliance and Enforcement Efforts: The Council noted that the Council subcommittee's suggestions regarding renaming the compliance operation in the national office staff and removing it from the enforcement operation would be reviewed as a matter of course by the executive director and subsequently by the Executive Committee.

Agreed that the Council would take no action at this time on suggestions regarding the role of the institutional governing board in assuring compliance with NCAA regulations or having the chief executive officer certify that the governing board has assigned responsibilities for compliance to the CEO, noting that the executive director is scheduled to meet with the Association of Governing Boards leadership this fall.

Women's Athletics: The Council took these actions regarding the committee's recommendations:

Voted to suggest to the Presidents Commission that it consider adding women's issues and ethnic-minority issues to one of its programs in the National Forum, acknowledging that it may be more appropriate to consider those matters on a more long-range basis than the Forum schedule would provide and that considerable data will be needed.

Referred to the Executive Committee the committee's recommendation that the Association's policy regarding mailings and championships financial reimbursement be revised to permit institutions with dual administrative structures (i.e., equal athletics departments for men and women, with separate athletics directors) to designate the individual to receive those items. In related actions:

The Division I Steering Committee defeated a motion to add a male administrator of the women's athletics program to the list of those who automatically can call the national office for interpretations. This also was referred to the Executive Committee.

The Division III Steering Committee recommended that study be given to the possibility of recognizing for NCAA purposes the male administrator of a women's program when the director of athletics over the entire program is a woman. This also was referred to the executive committee.

Took no action on a recommendation that the Convention vote on a recommended policy to urge each member institution to review proposed legislation prior to each Convention with all members of its staff appointed to attend the Convention.

Took no action on a request that the Executive Committee be asked to establish an annual internship program at the national office that would include six interns, three of which would be women, noting that the establishment of internship programs must also be considered in conjunction with eventual recommendations from the Council Subcommittee to Review Minority Opportunities in Intercollegiate Athletics.

Referred to the Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports the Committee on Women's Athletics' recommendations regarding a plan for addressing the subject of anorexia and bulimia among student-athletes.

Referred to the Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism a recommendation that it study Divisions I and II institutions' awarding of grants-in-aid with a view toward proportionality of aid for men and women student-athletes, with consideration to be given to asking institutions to submit similar reviews to the NCAA.

Referred to the Executive Committee a recommendation that at least 50 percent of the postgraduate scholarships in sports administration approved earlier by the Executive Committee be earmarked for women.

Referred to the Executive Committee a recommendation that it consider women as a minority in its December review of the Association's affirmative-action plan.

Referred to the Communications Committee a recommendation that it develop a plan to provide coverage of regular-season Division I women's basketball games on network and/or national or regional cable television, with the NCAA to provide funding to implement the plan.

Referred to the national office staff a recommendation that efforts be increased to obtain television coverage of NCAA men's and women's championships by exploring avenues other than the three major networks and ESPN.

Referred to the Communications Committee a request for a "master plan" for the special-effort program, as well as for promotions of NCAA championships.

Presidents Commission

The Council received a report from the Presidents Commission. In relation to a portion of that report, the Division I Steering Committee agreed with the Commission that consideration should be given in the Division I academic-reporting procedure to permitting institutions to count toward their graduation rates (for purposes of that procedure) those individuals who graduate in more than five years. The steering committee also voted to review in its April 1988 meeting the academic-reporting procedures and the reporting forms, especially as they relate to graduation rates.

Administrative Committee

The Council approved all actions in 1987 Administrative Committee Conference Nos. 14 through 17, as published in earlier editions of The NCAA News.

Membership

The Council and steering committees took the following actions regarding membership applications and requests:

Elected the Big Central Six Soccer Conference and the Western Water Polo Association to Division I conference membership.

Granted per Bylaw 11-4(b)-(5) a waiver of the minimum-contest requirement in women's golf to the University of Cincinnati.

Approved per Bylaw 11-4(b)-(7) a request by Mercyhurst College to count men's and women's crew toward the sponsorship requirements.

Approved a waiver per Constitution 4-2(h)-(2) for Marymount University.

Delayed action, pending receipt of additional information, on a request by Warren Wilson College for a geographical waiver per Bylaw 11-3(g); therefore, delayed action also on that institution's application for active membership in Division III.

Appointments

The Council appointed individuals to fill vacancies on certain Council-appointed committees effective September 1, 1988. The appointments are not announced until next spring, when all appointees have had an opportunity to accept or decline. In addition, the following appointment was made to fill a current vacancy:

Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism: Diane Tsukamaki, Lewis and Clark College, appointed to replace Martha E. Savery, no longer at a Division III member institution.

Legislation

Approved a procedure, on a one year trial basis, to encourage members to request in advance interpretations of legislation proposed for the NCAA Convention. (See story on page 1 of this issue.)

Voted to sponsor the following legislation for the 1988 Convention [Note: These are in addition to those acted upon in the Council's April and August meetings.]

[Note: It was agreed that this legislation would not preclude coaches from working in other institutions' summer camps and that amendments to adjust the proposed dates will be welcomed at the Convention so long as they remain within a four-month limitation.]

Bylaw 1-6, to revise the tryout rule to confirm existing interpretations related to waivers of the rule, to preclude all scheduling of high school games in conjunction with intercollegiate contests and to prohibit a basketball coach's involvement in AAU basketball coaching activities.

Bylaw 5-2, to establish an off-season testing program for anabolic steroids in football, for research purposes only and with no NCAA sanctions to be applied. Bylaw 10-6-(e), to clarify that a Division II member institution electing to be eligible for a Division I championship per Bylaw 10-6-(c) may use the Division I Bylaw 6-5 financial aid limitation in that sport, consistent with the provisions of Bylaws 10-6-(c)-(1) and 5-6-(g)-(1).

Special Rules of Order 4-(c), to specify that all votes on a proposal that has been designated for a roll-call vote that would amend, reconsider, table, postpone or refer that proposal also must be taken by roll call.

Bylaw 3-1-(b)-(3), to permit Division II women's basketball coaches to evaluate prospects at the national junior college tournament and the national AAU tournament, as is currently the case in Division I.

The Council agreed not to sponsor the following legislation:

Constitution 5-1-(f), to specify that when the Council fills a vacancy among the Association's officers, Executive Committee, Council or other committees, the appointment shall be for the unexpired term of the vacant position. Instead, the Nominating Committee was asked to submit a report in this regard for consideration at the Council's April 1988 meeting.

Bylaw 1-1-(b)-(3), to permit member institutions to utilize two colors of ink inside the covers of athletics press guides and athletics recruiting brochures.

Bylaw 1-2-(a)-(7), to define "contact" in Division III consistent with the definition applicable to Divisions I and II.

Ohio State adds a 'recruiting tool'

So large and innovative is Ohio State University's new $10.6 million athletics training facility that football coach Earle Bruce says his players kid him that it was made for the future and not the present.

"The kids say it's a recruiting gimmick—we don't practice on it," Bruce said with a laugh.

The recently completed structure, created as a multipurpose building but designed explicitly for the needs of big-time football, dwarfs the attached Biggs Facility, which had been the home base for Ohio State football for 20 years.

Ohio State officials say the new building was designed with the idea of attracting blue-chip prospects.

"In 1966, Biggs was brand new, and Ohio State successfully recruited people like John Brockington, Rex Kern and Jack Tatum," said athletics director Richard M. Bay. "Rex has told me that one reason he came to Ohio State was that he felt the university recommitted itself to football by building that new facility. We just hope this new project has the same effect," Bay told Rusty Miller of the Associated Press.

The Buckeyes actually do work out in the building's hanger-like feature, the enclosed practice field. The field is contained in a 90,000-square-foot room that houses a regulation-size football field. There is 20 feet of space behind either end line and 30 feet between the walls and the sidelines. The roof is 65 feet high in the middle, not high enough to contain a punt but large enough to accommodate special-teams practice and long-passing drills.

Biggs is 30,000 square feet.

The outdoor practice fields sit right outside the door of the new building.

The new facility also has an 8,000-square-foot weight room, a 2,500-square-foot equipment room, coaches' offices, a 133-seat auditorium and an eight-room multipurpose meeting area. The players' lockers are made of solid oak.

Included in the $10.6 million price tag is $1 million for renovation of Biggs, which will house equipment and lockers for baseball, softball, lacrosse, field hockey, men's tennis and soccer. The new Biggs "is a new building from one end to the other," said Dan Meinert, an assistant to Bay who oversaw much of the design and construction.

Meinert said a task force was created to travel around the Big Ten Conference and the rest of the country, borrowing ideas from other facilities.

All of the money was raised by the athletics department, said Meinert, who emphasized that no tax money was involved.

"This building is built for the future," Meinert said. "The Ohio Stadium was built by Lynn W. St. John in the 1920s and is still a great stadium today. We think the same will be said about this."

Bruce said: "It's outstanding. It means a lot to our recruiting and to our general attitude. We've got meeting rooms that will go a long way toward teaching the players. Our teaching should be better. Our attention should be better."

Bays added: "The building will be a factor in the recruiting process and on the decision that kids make. Being the flagship university in the state, there are a lot of kids who will come here from Ohio, no matter what. But we have expanded our recruiting and now look to Florida, Georgia, Illinois and out East and are recruiting against our chief rivals like Penn State, Notre Dame and Michigan."

BELLEVUE HOSPITAL EMERGENCY SERVICES
THE CLARK FOUNDATION

In view of the major role that participation in sports play in the daily lives of Americans, we offer a one-day symposium for high school and college level sports trainers and coaches. Because of the real potential for any youngster to sustain a severe and even life threatening injury, it is essential for educators and supervisors of young athletes to know that correct initial or immediate treatment is available at the scene well before traditional care can be initiated.

North Star Conference adds four

Four universities—the University of Akron; Cleveland State University; the University of Illinois, Chicago, and the University of Wisconsin, Green Bay—have joined the North Star Conference as active members effective with the 1988-89 season, it has been announced by North Star Conference President Jean Lenti Ponsetto. Cleveland State's membership is pending approval of its board of trustees.

Organized in 1983, the North Star Conference holds championships in five women's sports: basketball, cross country, softball, tennis and volleyball.

"The institutions we are adding will improve basketball initially, in that all four schools have strong basketball traditions that will add to the North Star's overall strength of schedule," stated Ponsetto. "I anticipate that the sports of volleyball, softball and cross country will continue their rapid growth with the addition of the four new members."

The North Star Conference, which currently consists of charter members—the University of Dayton, DePaul University and the University of Notre Dame—along with Marquette University, Northern Illinois University and Valparaiso University, will compete as an eight-team league in 1988-89. Dayton and Notre Dame will leave the North Star Conference at the conclusion of the 1987-88 school year.

WAC games set for TV

Television coverage of Western Athletic Conference basketball in 1987-88 will be the most extensive in recent history, said Commissioner Joseph L. Kearney. Nineteen games involving WAC teams will be televised either on a regional or national basis.

In addition to nine Saturday-afternoon WAC games to be televised regionally by KUTV-TV of Salt Lake City, seven other regular-season games will be televised nationally by either ESPN or USA cable network. Further, KUTV will televise the semifinals and finals of the WAC tournament, and ESPN will carry the finals of the tournament.

Each of nine WAC teams will be involved in at least one televised game. Bill Howard of KUTV and former official Irv Brown will be the announcers for the WAC regional games and also will handle the ESPN games.

The WAC and KUTV recently agreed to a three-year contract valued in excess of $1 million to televise WAC basketball, the league's biggest contract ever.

Millikin names football stadium

Millikin University's football stadium has been named Frank M. Lindsay Field.

Work on the stadium began last summer when the previous football field was plowed up, the drainage system improved, subsoil renovated, additional topsoil added and new sod laid. An underground irrigation system also was installed.

Existing bleachers were removed, repainted and erected on the east side of the field. New all-aluminum bleachers with seating for 2,300 fans were built on the west side of the field, which now can seat 4,000.

A two-level press box was constructed. A new scoreboard, made possible by gifts from the graduating classes of 1979 and 1980, and a new sound system also have been installed.

Total cost was more than $500,000, which was financed by gifts from the Frank Lindsay family and from an endowment fund created in 1961 by members of the now defunct Kappa Delta Chi fraternity.

The field honors the late Frank Lindsay, long-time Decatur, Illinois, business leader and media owner, and recognizes the lengthy support to Millikin from other members of the family.

Juniata planning major project

Juniata College officials have announced a far-reaching program for development of the school's athletics facilities. Named honorary chair of the project was Chuck Knox, head coach of the Seattle Seahawks and a Juniata graduate.

Included in the facilities-improvement project will be the construction of a new stadium structure at College Field, with seating for approximately 2,500 for football and track; resurfacing of the Jefford Oller running track with an all-weather composition material; major improvements for Memorial Gymnasium and the Raffensberger tennis courts, and an athletics facilities maintenance endowment of $250,000. Total estimated cost of the package is $1 million.

Fund-raising plans call for $500,000 in gift funds to be obtained by April 1, 1988, which will allow construction on the football stadium to begin in time for completion of improvements by the start of the 1988 football season.

Southern Conference to hold city-wide antidrug seminars

Plans for a series of lectures on drug and alcohol abuse November 2 through 4 in Asheville, North Carolina, have been announced by Dave Hart, commissioner of the Southern Conference. The seminars will be open to all sectors of the Asheville community, including students from the area's public and private high schools.

Lectures will be presented at five different venues over the three-day period by nationally recognized expert Ron Heitzinger of Madison, Wisconsin. The seminar is sponsored by the Southern Conference, in cooperation with North Carolina National Bank (NCNB) and Knapp Companies of Asheville, owners and operators of Domino's Pizza franchises in western North Carolina.

Georgia's Dooley back in harness

Coach Vincent J. Dooley of the University of Georgia was in an upbeat mood.

"Now, I'm an expert on heart problems and heart diseases," Dooley quipped October 22 upon his release from the Emory University Hospital two days after undergoing a successful procedure to clear two blocked arteries near his heart.

Dooley suggested that he qualified because "all you have to do is go to a football game and you can become an expert" on coaching.

Dooley had praise for Dr. John Douglas and his team of medical

"Drug and alcohol abuse is a major concern nationally," said Hart, "not only in intercollegiate athletics, but also in our high schools and business community in general."

"The chief executive officers, faculty athletics representatives and athletics directors of the member institutions of the Southern Conference have expressed a commitment to programs of educational awareness to counterattack the indiscriminate use of drugs and alcohol. Our corporate friends are very eager to make Ron Heitzinger's message available to the Asheville community, and the Southern Conference is excited about the opportunity of putting the program together."

Additional funding for the seminars was made available through a grant from the Southeastern Forestry Experiment Station, of the U.S. Forestry Service.

"Our league's athletics directors' group cleared time during their 1987 workshop (scheduled for Asheville November 1-2) to hear his presentation. From this point, and with the solid corporate sponsorship of NCNB and Knapp Companies, we were able to formulate the total program, and open it, free of charge, to the community," Hart said.

The league's athletics directors' workshop, started by Hart in 1986, is the culmination of three days of league-related activity in Asheville between November 1 and 3.

Ron Heitzinger, and his brother, Don, formed Heitzinger & Associates in 1981, after Ron spent six years on the staff of Madison, Wisconsin, General Hospital's alcoholism-education program, and Don had put in an equal amount of time as a social worker for a rural Wisconsin school system. The twin brothers' first project—the First National Training Institute on Sports, Alcohol and Drugs in the summer of 1981 was termed a resounding success.

Heitzinger & Associates also provides a 24-hour, toll-free, nationwide HELPLINE service for information, help or referral; comprehensive information on drug testing, including testing services and costs, and printed manuals for problem identification and educational awareness.

Two of the Asheville sessions are geared to high school students: Monday afternoon (November 2) at the Buncombe County Administration Building's auditorium for students of public and private schools in Buncombe County and Tuesday afternoon (November 3) at Asheville High School's auditorium for Asheville junior and senior high school students.

In cooperation with the Asheville Chamber of Commerce, a "coffee talk" program Wednesday morning (November 4) will be devoted exclusively to the Heitzingers' message. That lecture is scheduled for the main ballroom of the Quality Inn on The Plaza.

For a complete schedule, with dates, locations and times, of the three-day drug- and alcohol-abuse seminar, contact the conference office at 704/255-7872.

Dooley, awake during the procedure, said he was moved "seeing them work as a team in this particular procedure. To see people working together—and that's my business—and to see them work together to save lives, is even more impressive," he told Ed Shearer of the Associated Press.

Dooley was released from the hospital shortly after 10 a.m. Eastern time October 22, held a brief news conference and then returned with his wife, Barbara, to their home in Athens, Georgia. The coach was back on the practice field that afternoon as his 12th-ranked Bulldogs began winding down preparations for Kentucky.

"I don't do much at practice anyway," he said.

He also said he had gotten a promise from Mrs. Dooley "not to disagree with anything I say for two weeks, even if I'm wrong."

Dooley, 55, is in his 24th season as the Georgia coach. He also serves as the school's athletics director.

"I've never felt better," he said. "I really feel better than I've felt in a long time."

UM-Duluth coach finds quarterback in his own backyard

By Ed Stych

Four years ago, University of Minnesota, Duluth, football coach Jim Malosky saw a Duluth Central High School quarterback he liked.

Recruiting him was no big deal. He just went home and asked his son, Jim Jr., if he would like to play for the Bulldogs.

"It was a recruiting process," said the elder Malosky, adding that his son had a few bites from other schools. "I let him know we would like to have him here."

The younger Malosky accepted the offer. After all, he liked the city, he liked the program and he liked the coach.

"I guess it was a little worrisome coming here, because he's my dad and (I was worried) how the other players would react to that," the younger Malosky said.

"It's worked out fine as far as I'm concerned," the coach said. "We're very happy he came."

And he has reason to be. The Bulldogs have lost only three games that Malosky has started in the three years since becoming the team's first-team quarterback in his sophomore year, and he helped lead the school to first place in the Northern Intercollegiate Conference in 1985. They would have been first again in 1986, but they had to forfeit all their victories because they used an ineligible player.

"The nice thing about it is that he's been good enough," said Malosky Sr. "It really hasn't been that much of a factor as far as people saying: 'Is he playing him because of nepotism or what?' He's played well for us. I like to think that I choose people on their merits, not because of who they are or what they are."

The younger Malosky said his teammates haven't said much about being the coach's son, although they do razz him a bit.

"There haven't been any problems coming here and playing for my dad," he said. "I've been real happy with my decision. I look back at it now, I don't think I would have changed what I did."

Maybe he hasn't had any problems playing for his father, but he thought he might have problems living with his coach. So, before ever taking a snap at UMD, the younger Malosky and some buddies moved into a house close to campus.

"I just figured it would be a little bit easier on both of us," said Malosky Jr., adding that he still takes his laundry home and stops by for a home-cooked meal or two.

"I guess I can't blame him," his dad said. "He didn't want me on the practice field and at home chewing on him all the time."

Malosky Sr., in his 30th year as UMD's coach and the winningest active coach in NCAA Division II with a 186-82-10 record through October 23, has a reputation for "chewing on" his players. But he doesn't think he shows any favoritism toward his son.

"I think he can openly yell at (me) because he yells at everybody," the younger Malosky said. "That makes it a little bit easier on him. If I screw up, he'll let me know. Sometimes I think he lets me know a little bit more often" than the other players.

"He might have it a little tougher than most," his dad said. "I don't think I treat him different. I might be a little bit harder on him because I keep reminding myself, 'Hey, after all, he really isn't your boy, he's your quarterback.'"

But the father and son have had one problem: what to call each other on the field.

"He calls me coach on the field and whatever off the field, when I'm not around," the senior Malosky said.

"I had to kind of get used to calling him 'Coach' instead of Dad," said the younger Malosky, adding that his dad usually calls him by his number (10) or by his last name.

Malosky said he never dreamed, like some fathers do, of coaching his son. But the younger Malosky said he thought about playing for his father as a teenager, often trying to figure out how much longer his dad would coach.

"I was kind of hoping he would still be around when I got to college," he said.

Now a senior physical education major, the younger Malosky will be looking to start a career. Again he looks to his father.

"I wouldn't mind having his job," he said.

Stych writes for the Associated Press.

ESPN to award scholarships to two students

ESPN President and Chief Executive Officer J. William Grimes announced October 15 the creation of two $5,000 academic scholarships that will be awarded on behalf of the national cable network's "Scholastic Sports America" program.

The awards, which will go to one male and one female senior high school student in 1988, will be presented on the bases of academic excellence, teamwork, and contributions to school and community.

A nationwide panel of five judges will screen applications, conduct personal interviews with the finalists and select a winner. Syracuse University Dean of Admissions David Smith has been named to head the screening panel.

All students graduating from high school in 1988 are eligible to apply for the Scholastic Sports America scholarships. Any student who has accepted a full, four-year grant to a college or university will not be eligible.

Applications are available by writing ESPN Scholarship, ESPN Plaza, Bristol, Connecticut 06010. Entry deadline is March 31, 1988.

Missouri Valley games to be seen on SportsVision

Nine regular-season Missouri Valley Conference basketball games and four games in the league's postseason tournament will be televised this season by SportsVision, an all-sports regional cable network serving Chicago and parts of Illinois, Indiana and Iowa.

MVC Commissioner James A. Haney announced October 16 that SportsVision will carry a Missouri Valley game of the week beginning in January. Two first-round games and the semifinals of the league's postseason play-offs also will be telecast from Peoria, Illinois, March 5 and 6.

SportsVision currently has over a million basic subscribers on 65 cable systems and is in two MVC markets Terre Haute, Indiana, and Bloomington, Illinois.

The network will produce all MVC telecasts, marking the first time SportsVision has produced and televised games featuring a collegiate athletics conference since it became a regional cable network three years ago.

The Alliance, Ohio, senior was 21. CRAIG FIELDER, a backup defensive end on the Virginia football team who was out of school this semester while battling cancer, died October 16 in Columbia, South Carolina. DAVE CASINELLI, a fullback at Memphis State in the early 1960s who still held most of the school's football rushing records, died in a one-car traffic accident October 11 near Tallahassee, Florida. He was 47. Casinelli was a salesman who lived in the Tallahassee area. TYRONE "TY" SPERLING, a starting football defensive lineman on Southern California's 1979 and 1980 Rose Bowl champions, died October 9 in Los Angeles after suffering cardiac arrest brought on by diabetes. He was 29. Sperling also coached for a period of time at El Camino College in California.

CORRECTION

Due to an editor's error, a coaching appointment was reported incorrectly in the Record section of the October 5 issue of The NCAA News. Al Avila recently was appointed assistant baseball coach at St. Thomas (Florida), in addition to being named assistant athletics director at the school.

Rushing

were at their zenith.

Passing emphasis is close to last year's record figure, when 38.1 percent of all offensive plays were passes. Now, passing emphasis is 37.8 percent.

To put it simply, I-A teams are passing as much as ever but not doing it as well, with the lowest efficiency since 1981; but they are doing a better job of running—the best job in 12 years, as a matter of fact.

The biggest reason for the record scoring pace is simply more rushing touchdowns. Again, it is not a matter of emphasis, because teams are averaging 88.8 rushes per game, both teams combined. There have been only two lower figures in the 12 years since the record of 103.8 rushes per game was set 12 years ago.

Blocking rules help?

In our poll of coaches for the 1985 College Football Press Kit, a minority of coaches predicted the liberalized blocking rules permitting greater use of hands on offense would help rushing more than passing and eventually result in a swing back to rushing, with more option teams. One of them was Temple's Bruce Arians: "You may see a new cycle of running the ball. You are seeing a lot of wishbone teams being successful now and the option split-back veer teams are coming back."

Delaware's Harold "Tubby" Raymond said: "I feel the liberalization of the use of hands by the offense will restore the balance between running and passing. Football will not become a form of basketball."

In all, 31 coaches predicted a swing back to more and better running with more option attacks, while 67 predicted that passing—more and better—would continue to go up. Maybe before long, all of them will be right; but so far this year, the minority holds sway by a small margin.

Nowhere is the trend more obvious than in the Big Eight Conference, where Oklahoma, Nebraska, Colorado and Missouri all have been among the nation's rushing leaders all season.

I-AA down

The rushing comeback trend really does not hold up in Division I-AA, now in its 10th season of existence. Generally, offensive figures are just down everywhere in I-AA except in field-goal production and accuracy. Perhaps teams are playing better defense. Field goals per game now are 1.81 vs. last year's record 1.72 and accuracy now is 61.7 percent vs. last year's record 60.7.

Rushing yards per game are down to 307.6 from last year's 315.8; but passing is down even more, to 357.9 vs. 372.8 last year. Once again, we are comparing figures just past mid-season to final 1986 figures as we did in the I-A survey, and offense usually creeps up as the season goes along. But these are strong drops. Total offense is down 23.1 yards per game now to 665.5 and scoring down to 44.2 from last year's record 45.4.

Efficiency is down, too, with yards per rush at 3.59 vs. 3.72 each of the last two years and yards per attempted pass 6.50 vs. last year's record 6.60. Passing emphasis now is 39.1 percent vs. last year's record 40.

Perfects dwindling

Only four undefeated-untied teams are left in Division I-A: Oklahoma, Nebraska, Miami (Florida) and Syracuse—after Clemson was upset by North Carolina State October 24. But a once-beaten team,

San Diego State's Todd Santos leads Division I-A in total offense

Don McPherson, Syracuse quarterback, ranks second in I-A passing efficiency

Holy Cross' Gordie Lockbaum is second in I-AA scoring and all-purpose running

Remon Smith, Randolph Macon, is among Division III leaders in rushing

6-1 Indiana, drew much of the attention because it leads the Big Ten's race to the Rose Bowl after beating both Michigan and Ohio State in the same season for the first time in its 103 years of football. Holy Cross is the only perfect-record team in I-AA.

Smith vs. Walker

Florida freshman Emmitt Smith, the national I-A rushing leader, has 1,011 yards his first seven games to

On the specialty teams, he is above 1,000 yards in both career punt returns and kickoff returns, a rare achievement, and virtually owns the Division III record book in both categories on a per-play and touchdown basis. Just four I-A players and one I-AA player in history have more than 1,000 yards in both punt and kickoff returns. No career records are kept on this in Divisions II and III, because only leaders are career marks of 20.9 and 29.2, respectively. In all returns—punts, kickoffs and interceptions—he has 2,505 yards and a 24.1-yard average.

Cradle of coaches update

Pat Harmon, curator-historian at the College Football Hall of Fame, writes that Miami (Ohio), known as the "Cradle of Coaches," also had a long streak of nonlosing seasons—33 years starting with 1943. And he adds that some people at Miami identify Stu Holcomb as the man who started the dynasty.

We identified Sid Gillman as the man who started the dynasty because Holcomb coached only the first year in the string, while Gillman started in 1944. And as Bob Oates of the Los Angeles Times points out, Gillman recruited Ara Parseghian, Paul Dietzel, Bill Arnsparger, John Pont and Bo Schembechler—all outstanding coaches. Indeed, one wonders if there would have been a dynasty without Gillman.

Quotes of the week

Northern Illinois freshmen Kevin and Kurt Cassidy are identical twins. Kevin has started at free safety the last three games with 30 tackles and one interception, while Kurt plays on the special teams and is a backup split end on offense. Now, which is which? "I have no clue," said Huskie assistant coach Russ Graham. "I call the one on offense Shaun and the one on defense David. That's the only way I tell them apart. I don't even want to try anything else—I don't need that kind of stress." (Mike Korcek, Northern Illinois SID)

Bowling Green senior nose tackle Greg Johnson on the significance of the Bowling Green-Toledo game

October 17: "Between a Toledo game and a championship game, I'd say you don't get 'em much bigger than that. It's kind of like being the father of your first-born child. It's big." (Bowling Green won, 20-6.) (Chris Sherk, Bowling Green SID)

Iowa State's Jim Walden on his shorthanded squad: "I've heard about the 'Dirty Thirty' here (back in the one-platoon era about a quarter of a century ago). I'm calling this bunch the 'Filthy Fifty.'"

Walden about the importance of the Kansas game (each team came in with one victory): "We're like two pit bulls with no teeth, so I guess we have an equal chance. But I don't think a victory is crucial for us. Heck, I just got here. I see a moving van out front, but I'm sure it's not here for me." (Final score: Iowa State 42, Kansas 28.)

Coach Larry Kehres summarized a somber moment for Mount Union after the team rallied to defeat Ohio Northern, 47-43, October 17, less than 36 hours after starting defensive tackle Kevin Pilmer died from auto-accident injuries: "The football game was just three hours to play. Now, we have to get on with the business of paying respect to Kevin." (Tom Bochenek, Mount Union SID)

After Gallaudet's 5-0 record was ended by Bridgewater (Virginia), 41-11, the players were asleep on the bus when assistant coach Greg Klees said: "They're probably all dreaming and hoping that when they wake up, the game was all a nightmare." (Kevin Goldman, Gallaudet SID)

Roland Ortmyer is an institution at La Verne. He is in his 40th season as head football coach and serves as athletics director and track coach. (Counting two years at William Penn, his 42 head-coaching seasons place him second only to Grambling's Eddie Robinson among active coaches.) The Northwestern graduate is highly respected for his personal philosophy and dedication to his players. Here is a sample: "In our culture, there is too much emphasis placed on winning. We lose sight of what life is all about. We should always have the desire to win, but it should not be a life-or-death matter. I think sports and all of life is fun, and nothing should destroy life."

Eastern New Mexico won its first six games to attain an eighth-place national ranking, but the team still gets no respect, says coach Don Carthel: "We were picked sixth in the Lone Star Conference preseason poll, and the other day somebody asked me if we were from El Paso—and that's in Texas. They don't even know where we're from." (Wendel Sloan, Eastern New Mexico SID) put him ahead of Herschel Walker's record pace. Walker had 877 for Georgia his first seven games en route to his freshman-record 1,616 rushing in 1980. Pittsburgh's Tony Dorsett, the career record-holder, had 928 after seven his freshman year (1973); Archie Griffin of Ohio State, two-time Heisman Trophy winner, had 683 at the same point (1972), and Bo Jackson of Auburn, another Heisman winner, had 543 after seven in 1982.

Two-way standout

Stony Brook senior Chuck Downey, 5-9 and 180 from Deer Park, New York, owns some remarkable figures. He is a productive two-way player like Holy Cross' Gordie Lockbaum and a premier runback man like Notre Dame's Tim Brown.

Offensively, he has carried 26 times for 109 yards and one touchdown through his first five games, while catching nine passes for 170 yards and one TD. Defensively, he has another interception, giving him 13 for his career for 182 yards and one TD.

reported and many teams report no figures.

Downey has two more punt-return TDs this fall for 62 and 60 yards, reports SID Pat Murray, giving him seven for his career. That equals the all-time, all-divisions NCAA record shared by Oklahoma quarterback Jack Mitchell in 1946-48, Widener's Billy "White Shoes" Johnson in 1971-73 and Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers, the 1972 Heisman Trophy winner. Downey's others were 88, 80, 75, 60 and 54 yards.

Downey also has three kickoff-return TDs of 98, 90 and 90 yards, and his 10 in these two categories combined equals the NCAA collegiate or all-divisions mark set by Virginia Union's Anthony Leonard in 1973-76. Downey's 69-yard interception TD last year gives him 11 TDs on all runbacks, two short of Leonard's record 13 (of course, Downey is the Division III record-holder all the way).

He now is averaging 22.2 in career punt returns and 29.9 in kickoff returns, well above the Division III

Senior Chuck Downey plays offense and defense for Stony Brook with considerable success, as his statistics show

Kevin Cassidy, freshman free safety for Northern Illinois, often is confused with brother Kurt (right)

Kurt Cassidy is a member of the special teams at Northern Illinois and backup split end for the Huskies

Virginia Tech football, basketball placed on probation

I. Introduction.

This case involved violations of NCAA legislation in the football program and men's basketball program at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. The violations in the separate programs were unrelated, but did indicate that serious deficiencies existed in the organization and procedures of the athletics department.

In the football program, the former head football coach utilized erroneous methods to compute the number of grants-in-aid, which, during the three-year period that was examined (i.e., 1983-84, 1984-85 and 1985-86 academic years), provided the football program an excessive number of grants. Although this infraction occurred as a result of a misinterpretation of NCAA legislation and not as a scheme to deliberately violate NCAA grant limitations, the lack of institutional controls over the awarding of athletics aid and the absence of procedures for checking and reviewing the institution's compliance enabled the errors to continue uncorrected until an inquiry from the NCAA prompted the president of the institution to undertake a comprehensive investigation.

Several circumstances contributed to a lack of appropriate checks and balances in football. For example, the former head football coach served in a dual role as the director of athletics, and no independent monitoring system was in place to verify the coach's grant count. As a result, the former head football coach made the sole determination for the institution that NCAA grant limitations were being observed.

The violations of NCAA legislation that occurred in the men's basketball program were more serious in nature than those in the football program, and they also reflected the inadequacy of institutional procedures. Of great concern to the committee were violations of the academic standards of the institution. Employees of the athletics department assisted one prospective student-athlete in cheating in a correspondence course from another institution in order to raise the young man's cumulative grade-point average sufficiently to qualify for admission as a transfer student at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. Another student-athlete participated in three basketball games while ineligible under NCAA legislation because the student-athlete failed to earn 36 credit hours during the year preceding his season of competition. In this instance, a faculty member agreed to award credit for an independent-study course in which the student-athlete enrolled after the institution's deadline for enrollment and for work that was to be completed after the student received the course credit. Further, the former men's head basketball coach understood that the course work had not been completed when credit was awarded. The institution's registration system detected the violation, which led to disallowance of the credit and the ineligibility of the student-athlete, but no system was in place for independent monitoring and certification of academic eligibility by the faculty athletics representative or registrar, a system that could have prevented the violation of institutional rules from occurring.

Once the president became aware of potential violations, the institution's actions were noteworthy. The president took firm and immediate action to ensure that all allegations were thoroughly investigated and to correct the discovered violation—actions that demonstrate the institution's commitment to compliance.

The institution initiated a thorough review of its grants-in-aid in football when that problem was identified, and the institution moved quickly to deal with academic irregularities. Major changes have been implemented in the manner by which the institution will manage and monitor its athletics programs in the future. The committee has taken the quality of the institution's self-investigation, self-disclosure of violations and revision of monitoring systems into account in determining the penalties in this case.

The committee's findings are set forth in Part II of this report, and the committee's penalties are contained in Part III.

II. Violations of NCAA requirements as determined by the committee.

A. Football.

During the 1983-84 academic year, the institution awarded initial, athletically related financial aid (as set forth in O.I. 600) to 32 student-athletes in the sport of football; further, during this same academic year, the institution awarded athletically related grants-in-aid to 105 student-athletes in football; in addition, during the 1984-85 academic year, the institution awarded initial, athletically related financial aid (as set forth in O.I. 600) to 32 student-athletes in the sport of football; further, during this same academic year, the institution awarded athletically related grants-in-aid to 114 student-athletes in football, and finally, during the 1985-86 academic year, the institution awarded athletically related grants-in-aid to 102 student-athletes in football. B. Men's Basketball.

1. During the summer of 1984, prior to a prospective student-athlete's enrollment at the institution, a then assistant men's basketball coach employed two then graduate students to tutor the prospect in a sociology correspondence course from another NCAA member institution, the young man's former institution. [NCAA Bylaw 1-1-(b)-(1)]

2. While notifying two then graduate students of their job assignment, a then men's assistant basketball coach used language that led both young men reasonably to believe that they were expected to complete the prospect's class assignments for him and provide the young man with answers to the final examination. As the result of the coach's statements, one of the then graduate students provided answers for at least two of the prospect's class assignments, and the other then graduate student provided answers for the remainder of the prospect's class assignments and for the final examination. [NCAA Constitution 3-6-(a)]

3. In December 1986, a faculty member enrolled a student-athlete in an independent study course after the last date for such enrollments and awarded a course grade before the student-athlete's work was completed, which was a violation of institutional policy; further, the former men's head basketball coach was aware that the young man had been enrolled late in the independent study course in an effort to make him eligible for intercollegiate basketball competition during the remainder of the 1986-87 basketball season, and that the paper the young man was to write for the credit would not be completed prior to the end of the fall quarter. The young man participated in three basketball contests before being declared ineligible. [NCAA Constitution 3-3-(a)-(2) and Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(6)]

4. In January 1987, a representative of the institution's athletics interests personally financed a $7,200 automobile loan on a 1984 Audi 5000 for a student-athlete's wife when she was unable to secure bank financing. The financial arrangements for the purchase included the trade-in of a BMW owned by the student-athlete. In addition, the representative gave the young man's wife $1,000 cash in the form of a rebate to assist with expenses incurred in moving from Blacksburg to another city, and later the representative paid attorney fees incurred by the young man and his wife as the result of a claim for $752.82 filed against them for damages to their apartment. [NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5)]

5. Beginning in the summer of 1978 and continuing through the summer of 1986, the former men's head basketball coach arranged for a representative of the institution's athletics interests to employ one or two prospective and enrolled student-athletes each summer at the representative's apartment complexes; further, the representative, with the former head coach's knowledge and consent, arranged for these young men to receive lodging at one of the representative's apartment complexes at no cost during the period of their employment in addition to the hourly wages they were paid. However, the head coach made these arrangements without intending to provide improper benefits to the prospective and enrolled student-athletes. [NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5)]

and Bylaw 1-1-(b)-(1)]

6. During the period beginning in the summer of 1983 and continuing through the summer of 1985, at least one prospective student-athlete and three enrolled student-athletes received meals at no cost at a restaurant, which is owned by a representative of the institution's athletics interests. [NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5) and Bylaw 1-1-(b)-(1)]

7. On several occasions during the period beginning at least in the spring of 1984 and continuing through the spring of 1987, enrolled student-athletes participated in pick-up basketball games with prospective student-athletes during the prospects' visits to the institution's campus; further, members of the men's basketball coaching staff observed some of these games, and finally, in March 1987, following the conclusion of the 1986-87 basketball season, a then graduate assistant men's basketball coach participated in a pick-up basketball game with a prospective student-athlete. [NCAA Bylaws 1-6-(a) and 3-4-(b)]

8. On several occasions during the period beginning in December 1982 and continuing through the 1985-86 academic year, representatives of the institution's athletics interests who participated in the Foster Parent program for the men's basketball team provided extra benefits to two student-athletes. Specifically: (1) During December 1982, one Foster Parent family gave $50 cash to a student-athlete, and (2) during the 1983-84, 1984-85 and 1985-86 academic years, a second Foster Parent family provided the use of their automobile on several occasions to a student-athlete, entertained him for meals at various restaurants on several occasions and gave him an inexpensive black-and-white television set. [NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5)]

9. In December 1986, a representative of the institution's athletics interests transported a student-athlete from Blacksburg to the Roanoke airport at no cost to the young man. [NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5)]

III. Committee on Infractions Penalties.

A. Virginia Polytechnic Institute shall be publicly reprimanded and censured, and placed on probation for a period of two years from the date these penalties are imposed, which shall be the date the 15-day appeal period expires or the date the institution notifies the executive director that it will not appeal to the NCAA Council subcommittee of Division I members, whichever is earlier, or the date established by Council subcommittee action as a result of an appeal by the institution, it being understood that should any of the penalties in this case be set aside for any reason other than by appropriate action of the Association, the penalties shall be reconsidered by the Committee on Infractions.

B. Prior to the expiration of the probationary period, the institution shall submit a written report to the NCAA enforcement staff that identifies the corrective actions (including a system of checks and balances in the administration of the athletics department) taken by the institution to ensure compliance with NCAA legislation. Further, this report should contain a statement indicating whether the actions proposed by the president during the institution's appearance before the committee have been fully implemented, it being understood that the committee reserves the right to modify or change its penalties if the recommendations of the president have not been implemented.

C. The institution's intercollegiate men's basketball team shall end its 1987-88 and 1988-89 seasons with the playing of its last regularly scheduled, in-season contest, and the institution shall not be eligible to participate in any postseason basketball competition.

D. During the 1988-89, 1989-90 and 1990-91 academic years, no more than 85 student-athletes in the sport of football shall be permitted to receive athletically related financial aid (as set forth in O.I. 600) that has been arranged or awarded by Virginia Polytechnic Institute; further, during the 1988-89 academic year, no more than 17 student-athletes in the sport of football shall be permitted to receive initial athletically related financial aid.

E. Due to President William E. Lavery's firm and immediate actions to thoroughly investigate possible violations in the institution's athletics program, the committee hereby suspends the limitation on overall grants-in-aid in the sport of football during the 1990-91 academic year. The committee believes that suspension of this sanction is appropriate due to the institution's efforts to enhance the monitoring system in its athletics program.

F. The Committee on Infractions requests Virginia Polytechnic Institute to show cause in accordance with Section 7-(b)-(12)-(i) of the Official Procedure Governing the NCAA Enforcement Program (page 233, 1987-88 Manual) why additional penalties should not be imposed upon the institution if it does not take appropriate disciplinary action in regard to a representative of the institution's athletics interest for his involvement in the violations set forth in this report.

[NOTE: Your attention is directed to Section 7-(b)-(12) and its subparagraphs of the Official Procedure Governing the NCAA Enforcement Program. You will note that inasmuch as the show-cause requirement is made, the institution shall take appropriate disciplinary and corrective action or, in the alternative, show cause in writing to the committee within 15 days of receipt of this Infractions Report No. 13 why additional penalties should not be imposed in this case. Please note that this procedure is subject to the conditions described in the following two paragraphs of this report.

In the event the institution appeals the finding of violation as set forth in Part II of this report involving the representative to the NCAA Council, such an appeal will be heard by a Division I subcommittee of the Council. If the Council subcommittee arrives at a conclusion on the institution's appeal that sustains the finding of violation, the 15-day show-cause requirement period set forth in Section 7-(b)-(12)-(v) shall begin with the date of receipt in writing by the institution of notification of the action in regard to the finding of violation that was the subject of the institution's appeal. If the Council subcommittee substantially alters the committee's finding of violation, the committee will reconsider the show-cause requirement involving the individual, and you will be notified of the committee's conclusion.

Information set forth in Section 7-(b)-(12) describes the responsibilities of the institution in regard to written notification to the NCAA within the appropriate 15-day period applied to the show-cause requirement. Please note that the determination of whether actions taken by the institution are appropriate shall be solely that of the Committee on Infractions. Please contact S. David Berst at the NCAA national office for answers to any questions in regard to the show-cause requirement.]

[ADDITIONAL NOTE: Should Virginia Polytechnic Institute appeal either the findings of violation or proposed penalties in this case to the NCAA Council, the Committee on Infractions will submit an expanded infractions report to the Council, which will include additional information in accordance with Section 6 of the Official Procedure Governing the NCAA Enforcement Program. A copy of the committee's report will be provided to the school shortly prior to its release to the media.]

[NOTE: The following is notification of applicable NCAA legislation as required by Section 7-(h) of the Official Procedure Governing the NCAA Enforcement Program and IS NOT a penalty proposed by the NCAA Committee on Infractions upon the institution or its student-athlete.]

1. The finding of violation set forth in Part II-B-5 of this report affects the eligibility of the involved student-athletes for participation in regular and postseason competition under the provisions of NCAA Constitution 3-1-(g)-(5) and Bylaws 5-1-(i), 5-6-(f) and 11-1-(d), pages 13, 14, 97, 119 and 147, respectively.

Committee at Portland State recommends Division I move

A committee to study athletics at Portland State University has recommended that the institution upgrade its overall athletics program and eventually seek Division I membership. The school currently is in Division II, except for baseball and women's basketball.

The committee recommended that the school seek Division I-AA football status.

The Oregon Board of Education recently granted tuition waivers that will contribute $200,000 to Portland State athletics, and the committee said it "is quite sensitive to the subject of fiscal responsibility, particularly in view of the current athletics funding deficit at Portland State."

The committee news release said its research showed considerable tively, of the 1987-88 NCAA Manual. Please note that should the institution appeal the cited finding to the Council subcommittee, the eligibility of the involved individuals would not be affected until action on the appeal by the Council subcommittee.

Please note that under the conditions and obligations of membership, NCAA Constitution 4-2-(a), O.I. 11 and Section 9 of the Official Procedure Governing the NCAA Enforcement Program, once a finding becomes applicable to a student-athlete, either because the institution accepts the cited finding or because the appropriate NCAA Council subcommittee finds the violation as a result of an appeal, whichever is earlier, the institution is obligated to apply immediately the applicable rule to the eligibility of the student-athlete. In the alternative and in accordance with Section 9 of the enforcement procedure, the institution would be cited to show cause to the Committee on Infractions why the institution should not be disciplined additionally for failure to apply the applicable NCAA legislation.

In accordance with the appeal opportunity of this legislation, once these findings become applicable as described above, the institution may appeal to the NCAA Eligibility Committee for restoration of eligibility for regular and postseason competition. Correspondence regarding appeals to the Eligibility Committee should be submitted to the NCAA executive office in care of Stephen R. Morgan, assistant executive director for the compliance and enforcement department.

The institution is requested to inform each student-athlete of the finding of violation affecting him, the effect upon his eligibility for regular and postseason competition, the opportunity for an appeal to the Eligibility Committee, the conditions of mitigation in the event of an appeal, and the possible alternative available to each young man for immediate participation at another member institution if the waiver provisions of Bylaw 5-3-(e) were applied by the Council.

2. Due to the violation in Part II-B-5 of this report, the provisions of NCAA Executive Regulation 1-4-(f) [page 190, 1987-88 NCAA Manual] are applicable to the institution's record of participation in the 1980, 1985 and 1986 National Collegiate Division I Men's Basketball Championships. Specifically, the student-athletes' receipt of lodging at a reduced rate would render the student-athletes ineligible to participate in subsequent NCAA championship events. Accordingly, the participation of one student-athlete in the 1980 championship, two student-athletes in the 1985 championship and four student-athletes in the 1986 championship would result in the institution's record of performance in these championships being deleted and its place in the standings being vacated.

NCAA COMMITTEE ON INFRACTIONS support for Division I status among businesses and individuals to the extent that student incidental-fee contributions would not have to be increased.

About 3,000 alumni and the Portland business community were contacted during the study, and the committee said it received strong indications of support through ticket purchases and scholarship contributions. There were promises of support from 13 corporations.

Portland State also indicated that it would seek to open discussions leading toward membership in the Big Sky Conference.

Scholarship aid

A portion of ticket revenues generated from the October 17 football game between the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, and North Carolina State University will be used to fund scholarships at both institutions.

An announcement from the Wolfpack sports information office reported that both schools earned $1 from each ticket sold for the game for university-related scholarship funds.

North Carolina State officials noted that the money received from the game tickets will be used to fund 20 individual $1,000 scholarships for deserving students.

Kansas football player's tune entertains fans at half time

University of Kansas football player Rob Foster probably had a hard time leaving the field at half time of the Jayhawks' October 3 game against Louisiana Tech. By doing so, he missed the KU marching band's opening number, which he wrote.

A music major, Foster is an accomplished trumpet player and the son of Kansas band director Bob Foster. When not on the practice or playing field, Foster's "schoolwork" includes performances as a member of several on-campus musical groups.

He serves as lead trumpet player in the basketball pep band and, when sidelined by an injury during the 1984 football season, suited up for the marching band's half-time shows.

As a high school musician, Foster toured much of the world as a member of bands like the McDonald's All-American Band, in which he played second-chair trumpet (first-chair is the section's leader).

Truth in Reporting Roundup: Otterbein University Sports Information Director Ed Syguda used the following headline on his story previewing the 1-4 Cardinals' October 17 game at 0-5 Marietta College: "Cards to battle Marietta on banks of the Ohio—both teams without paddle." Syguda then used this quote, from Otterbein coach Bob Shaw, to lead the story: "The easy half of the season is over." Shaw must have been right. Marietta won, 9-3.

Oklahoma State University football coach Pat Jones on his team's 35-0 loss to Nebraska: "The turning point of this game was when the Nebraska team got off the bus."

Columbia University coach Larry McElreavy, commenting on his football team's record losing streak: "We'll win when we deserve to win."

Mark Duffner, who coaches Heisman Trophy candidate Gordie Lockbaum at Holy Cross College, on his star, two-way player: "Gordon is a triathlete in shoulder pads."

Speaking of triathletes, St. Olaf College cross country coach Matt Haugen is one. He competed in the well-known Ironman Triathlon in Kona, Hawaii, October 10, finishing 106th overall. He completed a 2.4-mile swim, 112-mile bike ride and full marathon (26.2-mile run) in 10:13:22.9.

Trivia Time: Who was the first female student-athlete to earn an NCAA individual championship?

How Come you Never Hear About These? Department: North Park College's Todd Love has become the school's fourth football player in three years to be accepted to medical school (Love at the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities). He has a perfect 4.000 grade-point average through three years in premedicine.

Fifteen University of Oklahoma football players have qualified for the Big Eight Conference's all-academic team.

University of Georgia offensive guard Kim Stephens earned his undergraduate degree—with a double major of mathematics and math education—in only three years. He currently is enrolled in Georgia's graduate school of business.

Adoption Update: As reported in this space last week, students at St. Joseph's University (Pennsylvania), which does not sponsor intercollegiate football, voted to adopt Auburn University as "their" team. After hearing of the campus-wide balloting, Auburn head coach Pat Dye invited his team's new fans to the annual homecoming game October 24.

The Associated Press reported October 21 that Dye went a step further, offering to fly Paul Laughlan, sports editor of the St. Joseph's student newspaper who spearheaded the adoption drive, to the game. Laughlan declined, asking instead that Dye pay for rental of a bus so more students could make the trip.

When news of the bus rental got out, so many St. Joseph's students responded that a lottery had to fill the bus. In addition, the entire Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity chapter from the Philadelphia school made the trip by van. Auburn athletics officials, cheerleaders and members of several student groups were scheduled to meet their new "football family" when it arrived in Alabama.

An Arbitron telephone survey conducted in Wyoming's three largest cities October 10 revealed that more than 60 percent of radio listeners had the University of Wyoming-Brigham Young University football game tuned in.

Between the hours of 1:30 p.m. and 4:45 p.m., Arbitron representatives completed more than 1,800 telephone calls in Casper, Cheyenne and Laramie, and found that 60.7 percent of those with radios in use were listening to the Cowboys and Cougars.

Get out your clam guns?

Yep. That's what the sports information office at Seattle Pacific University suggested in announcing an October 15 soccer game between the Falcons and Evergreen State College, whose team mascot is a Geoduck.

Say what? It's pronounced GWEE-duck, according to Webster's New World Dictionary (second college edition), which defines this critter as "a very large, burrowing, edible clam (Panope Generosa) of intertidal beaches of western North America."

Would a "dream matchup" pit the Geoducks against, say, Slippery Rock?

Trivia Answer: Eileen Kraemer of California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo, won the first NCAA women's individual championship November 14, 1981, when she won the Division II Women's Cross Country Championships individual crown in a time of 17:41. Her team, however, was runner-up to South Dakota State University.

Odds 'n Ends...

California State University, Fullerton, kicker Stan Lambert never got on the field after pregame warmups for an October 10 game against Florida. The Gators won the coin toss and deferred, so the Titans received the opening kickoff. After half time, Florida chose the goal, so Cal State Fullerton again received the kickoff. Since the Titans didn't score in the game and never kicked off or attempted a field goal, Lambert apparently just "kicked around" the sidelines... Pennsylvania State University student-athlete Brian Laird says that, if he'd been born a color, he would have been blue. "Blue is very positive but subdued," Laird explained. "I'm positive in the aspect that I'm competitive and outgoing, but subdued because I don't want to be at the center of attention—just near it."

University of Tennessee, Knoxville, football players presented head coach Johnny Majors with the game ball from the Volunteers' October 3 victory over the University of California, Berkeley, the school whose football team defeated Tennessee in Majors' first game as head coach (1977)... When the University of Toledo played Bowling Green State University in football recently, the schools' athletics directors, Al Bohl and Jack Gregory, bought 100 bags of peanuts from the Perrysburg, Ohio, Kiwanis Club for use in a "winner take all" wager. The Falcons won, providing Gregory with snacks for the rest of the season—and basketball games too... Speaking of roundball, the Pomona-Pitzer Colleges women's basketball team opened practice with a midnight October 15 workout. These late-night affairs are becoming more common; but this one was held outdoors on a half court. The school's gym was torn down for construction of a new athletics facility, so the Sagehens opened practice under the lights—of Hondas and Toyotas. But only after they swept eucalyptus leaves from the court, obtained security clearance for the after-quiet-hours event and agreed to work out only 20 minutes—so their coaches could get some sleep.

Another after-dark affair was the golf outing staged by the Morehead State University Eagle Athletic Fund. The nine-hole, scramble tournament was played using golf balls that glow in the dark... According to a release from Butler University previewing an October 17 encounter with the University of Evansville, the Evansville Aces are playing a conference game every week this season. Evansville is competing in both the Heartland Collegiate Conference and the new Mid-South Conference this fall, which one could argue means that they never play an opponent "out of their league."

East Stroudsburg University of Pennsylvania student-athlete Jack Cuvo and athletics director Louis M. Marciani led a "Just Say No To Drugs" rally on campus October 22. Members of the school's men's and women's gymnastics teams, Warrior cheerleaders, and gymnasts from the International Gymnastics School of Bartonsville, Pennsylvania, also participated in the rally, which was sponsored by the Minsi Trails Council and Pocono District of the Boy Scouts of America... Tennis balls used by the likes of Martina Navratilova and Ivan Lendl during the U.S. Open tournament are being distributed to schools around the country through the U.S. Tennis Association's Schools Program... A poll conducted at Florida's Epcot Center revealed that, while 64 percent of those interviewed thought some combination of public and private funds should be used to finance America's Olympic teams, 66 percent of those questioned had never contributed to the U.S. Olympic Committee and don't expect to... Former East Tennessee State University rifle coach Ray Carter, who was the first secretary-rules editor for the NCAA Men's and Women's Rifle Committee, now is administrator for the U.S. shooting team.

Q What are the playing- and practice-season limitations for Divisions I, II and III?

A As amended by action at the sixth NCAA special Convention, NCAA Bylaw 3 notes that:

Playing seasons for Division I teams (including practice and competition) in sports other than football and basketball shall be limited to a maximum of six months (26 weeks) during the academic year for each team sport.

Playing seasons for Division II teams (including practice and competition) in all sports shall be limited to a maximum of six months (26 weeks) during the academic year for each sport.

Playing seasons for Division III teams (including practice and competition) in all sports shall be limited to a maximum of five months (21 weeks) during a calendar year for each sport (Note: Division III restrictions become effective August 1, 1988).

An institution's playing season in a particular sport may be subdivided into no more than two distinct segments, each consisting of a number of consecutive weeks (the total not to exceed 26 weeks in Divisions I and II and 21 weeks in Division III). If divided into two segments, that portion concluded by the NCAA championship in the sport shall be known as the "traditional segment," and the other as the "nontraditional segment."

Declaration of an institution's playing season in each sport shall be on file in writing in the athletics director's office prior to the start of the playing season in each sport. Changes in the declaration of a particular segment in a sport may be made only prior to the start of that segment.

The Legislation and Interpretations Committee has addressed numerous interpretative issues related to the application of these special Convention proposals (See the minutes of committee Conference No. 14 in the August 5 issue of The NCAA News and Conference No. 21 in this issue). Member institutions may wish to review these minutes to better understand the application of this legislation.

Administrative Committee minutes

1. Acting for the Council, the Administrative Committee:

a. Referred to the Division III Steering Committee recommendations to fill a Division III vacancy on the Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism.

b. Agreed to recommend that the Council approve a new procedure, for the 1988 Convention only, to encourage the membership to request interpretations of proposed legislation in advance of the Convention by using a form to be included in the Official Notice of the Convention and submitting it by mid-December. The Legislation and Interpretations Committee then would act on all such requests prior to the Convention; the Council would accept, reject or alter the committee's interpretations in the pre-Constitution Council meeting, and the resulting interpretations would be distributed to the Convention delegates.

c. Agreed that the required financial-impact documentation for proposed legislation, as specified in Constitution 7-1-(c) and Bylaw 11-1-(c), should be emphasized to those submitting legislation.

2. Acting for the Executive Committee, the Administrative Committee:

a. Reviewed reactions from members of the Executive Committee to a draft of legislation to establish an off-season testing program for anabolic steroids in the sport of football and agreed to request Council sponsorship of the legislation, with the understanding that the program would be for research purposes only, and no individual or institutional ineligibility sanctions would be applied by the NCAA.

b. Reviewed the new committee-expense policies, noting that the $100 "flat rate" for traveling by air coach or automobile remains available; agreed to monitor committees' reactions to the policies before considering any change.

c. Approved a request by a subcommittee of the Faculty Athletics Representatives Forum that the Association provide funding for a fall meeting of the Forum's officers and executive committee to review proposed legislation and plan the Forum for the annual Convention, with the understanding that the approval is for this fall only and the value of the meeting will be assessed prior to any future funding.

d. Approved a reduction of $6,500 in the previously approved research grant for substance-abuse research at Michigan State University, noting that the previously approved amount inadvertently included funding for salaries and NCAA research guidelines generally prohibit payment of salaries for institutional researchers.

e. Approved addition of a research assistant to the NCAA staff, noting that the position inadvertently had been omitted in the presentation of the 1987-88 NCAA budget but subsequently had been approved by the Staff Evaluation Subcommittee.

f. Granted a request by the Collegiate Commissioners Association and the University Commissioners Association for funding for a meeting of six representatives of those organizations to discuss in detail the new NCAA conference-grant program and submit recommendations in that regard for the Executive Committee's December meeting.

3. Report of actions taken by the executive director per Constitution 5-1-(g) and 5-2-(d).

Legislation and Interpretations Committee minutes

Acting for the Council, the Divisions II and III subcommittees of the Legislation and Interpretations Committee took the following actions regarding the application of 1987 NCAA special Convention Proposal Nos. 5 and 7:

1. (Divisions II and III) Confirmed that for Division II institutions, Bylaw 3-1-(e) indicates that an institution's playing season (e.g., practice and competitive season) during the academic year shall be limited to a maximum of six months (e.g., 26 weeks) for each sport; confirmed that for Division III institutions, an institution's playing season (e.g., practice and competitive season) during a calendar year shall be limited to a maximum of five months (e.g., 21 weeks) for each sport; recommended that the Divisions II and III Steering Committees amend Bylaws 3-1-(a)-(2) and (3) to exclude the sports of football and basketball.

2. (Divisions II and III) Agreed that the language of Bylaw 3-1-(b), requiring consecutive weeks in a playing-season segment, does not negate the application of the exception provisions of Bylaw 3-1-(e); therefore, when practice or competition does not occur for a consecutive seven-day period in which a portion of the seven days includes at least one of the institution's published dates for holidays, vacations or final exams, that week does not count against the playing-season limitation and a new "segment" is not initiated once practice and competition resume; noted that the institution's original weekly starting date for this segment would not be affected by this interpretation.

3. (Divisions II and III) Confirmed that the application of Bylaw 3-1-(c) does not require a nontraditional segment to include competition; noted that the Council amended a previous Division I subcommittee recommendation (reference: Item No. 2 of the committee's July 17, 1987, conference) to indicate that an institution is permitted to continue practice after the last contest in its nontraditional segment in a sport as long as there is time remaining in that segment.

4. (Divisions II and III) Agreed that practice for any NCAA championship (or NAIA championship event if an institution declares its intention to participate in an NAIA championship) is not considered part of the 26-week or 21-week playing season

Conference No. 21
October 8, 1987

(as indicated in the principle expressed in Case No. 258); confirmed that practice for other postseason competition (i.e., an invitational tournament scheduled after a conference championship) would count against a 26-week or 21-week limit; noted that the Council amended a previous Division I subcommittee recommendation (reference: Item No. 3 of the committee's July 17, 1987, conference) to indicate that only those institutions "reasonably" under consideration for selection for an NCAA championship are permitted to continue to practice until it is determined by the appropriate committee whether the institution will be selected to participate in NCAA championship competition, and affirmed that those institutions that are not selected to participate in the NCAA championship must terminate their traditional segments at that point and are precluded from establishing a nontraditional segment until the completion of the NCAA championship; noted that following the conclusion of the NCAA championship, an institution may resume practice and/or competition during that academic year only if it is initiating its nontraditional segment.

5. (Divisions II and III) Agreed that the "free" day established in Bylaw 3-1-(i) for issuing equipment and taking squad pictures can be utilized when a traditional playing season (e.g., volleyball) commences prior to the start of the academic year; noted that the application of Bylaw 3-1-(i) continues to apply to the sports of football and basketball; confirmed that an earlier Division II or III subcommittee recommendation (reference: Item No. 8 of the minutes of the committee's August 20, 1987, conference) requests that the Divisions II and III Steering Committees sponsor an amendment to Bylaw 3-1-(i) to permit Divisions II and III member institutions to administer medical examinations at any time to enrolled student-athletes or to prospective student-athletes who have either signed a National Letter of Intent or who have been accepted for enrollment in a regular, full-time program of studies at the involved institution, provided the prospects visit the institution at their own expense for this purpose.

6. (Divisions II and III) Confirmed that a member institution's coaching staff members may continue to be involved with prospective student-athletes under the provisions of Case Nos. 208 and 209; however, coaching staff members at Division II institutions may not be involved in such activities with enrolled student-athletes at any time outside the permissible playing season (practice and competition).

7. (Divisions II and III) Agreed that a member institution's coaching staff members are prohibited from engaging in out-of-season practice activities with enrolled student-athletes; noted that this prohibition applies to any member of a coaching staff of the student-athlete's institution; concluded that Proposal No. 5 would not preclude a student-athlete from practicing with his or her coach either as an individual or as a member of an outside team during the summer; confirmed that Proposal No. 7 would preclude a student-athlete from practicing with his or her coach as an individual or as a member of any outside team during any period outside the permissible playing and practice season.

8. (Divisions II and III) Confirmed that Bylaw 3-4-(d) does not preclude a student-athlete from participating in out-of-season practice activities with another member institution's coach, inasmuch as the reference to "an institutional staff member" in Bylaw 3-4-(d) applies only to the coaching staff of a student-athlete's institution; recognized the Council interpretation that the limitations established in Case No. 262 be placed on the number of student-athletes from the same institution who may participate (i.e., practice and compete) on an outside team with a coaching staff member from another member institution; recommended that the full Council amend this interpretation to indicate that the limitations established in Case No. 262 be placed on the number of student-athletes from the same team who participate (i.e., practice and compete) on any outside team.

9. (Divisions II and III) Agreed that for Division II institutions, the provisions of Bylaw 1-7 (summer-camp legislation) would not be affected by the adoption of Proposal No. 5; noted that there is no limit (in sports other than football, basketball and soccer) on the number of student-athletes in a sport who may participate in an institution's summer camp or in a private camp, agreed that inasmuch as Proposal No. 7 limits Division III institutions to a 21-week playing season for an entire calendar year (as opposed to academic year), and in light of the proposed legislation that would apply the 26-week limitations for Divisions I and II institutions to the entire calendar year, the Divisions II and III subcommittees recommended that the full Council review a possible limitation for all sports on the number of student-athletes who may participate in an institution's summer camp or private summer camp.

10. (Divisions II and III) Concluded that Bylaw 3-4-(e) would permit an institution's strength and conditioning coach to supervise or assist in training sessions with one or more members of an institution's intercollegiate team; confirmed that the involvement in these sessions by student-athletes must be voluntary; reaffirmed that the oversight responsibilities of the strength and conditioning coach should be confined to the supervision of the weight-room activities during any period outside the permissible practice season for those sports without a season practice limitation, noting, however, that the provisions of new O.L.s 303 and 304 permit a member institution's strength and conditioning coach (as well as any other coaching staff member) to be involved with enrolled student-athletes in a physical education or physical-fitness class during the regular academic year, with the understanding that the course satisfies the criteria outlined in the applicable legislation; confirmed the application of an earlier Division I subcommittee interpretation (reference: Item No. 9 of the minutes of the committee's September 28, 1987, conference), which

It's not often that an athletics director takes the blame for a coach's less than spectacular record in basketball.

But Donald G. Combs, who has headed Eastern Kentucky University's athletics department for 17 years, believes Max Good hasn't been given a fair shake when it comes to the basketball program.

"When he took over, he started with three players," said Combs. "He was told not to recruit junior college players, so he went out and signed four all-state players, and he took a trouncing.

"I'll take the blame for that. Max Good is extremely knowledgeable about basketball. I apologize for what happened. It was more my fault than his."

Combs made the remark during media-day activities to the surprise of several reporters, university officials and Good, according to Mike Embry of the Associated Press.

Donald G. Combs

Max Good

Good enters his seventh season with a 71-96 record, including a 19-11 mark last year. He was "Coach of the Year" in the Ohio Valley Conference.

"When he first started, we told him that we wanted him to recruit kids who were going to be four-year students and that there would be no exceptions," said Combs. "We were not going to have a program built around junior college players. That slowed him down from building a good program. He couldn't get enough depth on his team quick enough."

Good has been the good soldier at Eastern Kentucky. He's taken the good and the bad—and he hasn't complained.

"There might have been some restrictions, but I'm still here," said the 46-year-old coach, adding, "We're not trying to build a basketball team. We've been interested in building a class basketball program and it takes awhile."

Good has been true to himself and the school.

"It was tough to take a step backwards in terms of victories and losses," said Good about the frustration of seeing a team win only five of 26 games that first season. "We told our players that in times of adversity not to give up; and if that was good enough for them, it was good enough for us."

And despite 10-17 and 11-16 records the next two seasons, Good wasn't going to change occupations.

"No. Never. I never even would consider that," said the Gardiner, Maine, native.

"He is so positive," Combs said of his basketball coach. "You hardly ever hear anything negative from him about players, officiating or other coaches."

Combs always knew that Good had the ability to win at Eastern Kentucky.

"Max has been maligned somewhat," he said. "While he was doing certain things, he was still a good coach. I knew that and he knew that... he showed last year that he could win if he had some talent."

Combs pointed out that while

Good has been allowed to dip into the junior college pool for players, they all have 2.500 or better grade-point averages.

"His players have shown they can do college work and play basketball and be quality kids to go with it," said Combs. "I couldn't always say this (about previous programs)."

And he noted that "Max Good's program is clean. That's one of the reasons we can run a program inexpensively. He has been an excellent coach to work with."

As to his announcement on media day, Combs said, "For him to come back and survive that (lean years), I wanted everybody to know he had my full support."

When summing up Good's attributes, Combs recites a saying from his late father, Hall of Fame baseball player Earle Combs: "The bigger they are, the better they are."

permits a member institution's head coach or assistant coach to serve as an institution's strength and conditioning coach, provided the individual's designation as the institution's strength and conditioning coach is made on a bona fide basis; agreed that this interpretation may be extended to the involvement of an institution's swimming coach in the supervision of an institution's swimming facilities.

11. (Divisions II and III) Agreed that the principles expressed in new O.I.s 303, 304 and 305 are designed to encompass student-athletes and coaching staff members in all sports with out-of-season practice limitations.

12. (Divisions II and III) Agreed that outside the established playing season, Bylaw 3-4-(c) permits individual consultation initiated voluntarily by a single student-athlete with a member institution's coaching staff member, provided the coach and the student-athlete do not engage in actual drills or other physical aspects of practice activities; confirmed that a coaching staff member is

Program near goal

The football program at California State University, Long Beach, which was in danger of cancellation because of a financial crisis, is nearing its $500,000 goal for grants-in-aid to athletes, the university announced October 20.

"We are delighted to announce that football will be here in 1988 and beyond," said Stephen Horn, university president.

Already, $337,324 in funding has been assured for the June 1988 goal of $500,000, he said.

"This leads us to have every expectation that the $162,676 needed to reach the half-million-dollar goal will be met," said Horn. "Together, the university and the community have solved the problem."

The president criticized rival coaches that talked about the Long Beach State deficit "but have not mentioned their own," the Associated Press reported.

Corey Johnson, Long Beach State athletics director, said several Division I-A football programs are in the red because of changing costs.

"Long Beach is one of the few campuses that has brought this matter out into the open and faced up to the challenge," he said.

not permitted to request to see a particular student-athlete for this purpose.

13. (Divisions II and III) Agreed that Bylaw 3-4-(d) indicates that in the event an institution's facilities are requested by a team composed partly of enrolled student-athletes and partly of individuals otherwise affiliated with the institution, the use of the facility is permissible if consistent with the institution's established policy for the use of the facilities by outside groups generally.

14. (Divisions II and III) Determined that for Division II institutions, in all sports other than those with separate regulations (i.e., with the exception of football, basketball and soccer), it remains permissible for a member institution to conduct "officially recognized" practice sessions prior to August 15 or the start of the academic year; noted that if an institution's team continues to conduct organized practice sessions on or after August 15, the institution's traditional segment is initiated at that time; confirmed that this portion of the segment would be considered under these circumstances to be within the academic year for purposes of this legislation; agreed that for Division III institutions, the first "officially recognized" practice session conducted by a member institution marks the initiation of an institution's traditional or nontraditional segment; agreed that "officially recognized" practice sessions in the summer vacation period are those practice sessions that occur when the students report for regular squad practice: (a) that is announced by the institution through a member of its athletics department staff prior to the beginning of any quarter or semester, and (b) that involves the entire athletics team; concluded that an institution may provide expenses for practice sessions during the summer only if "officially recognized" practice sessions are involved in the applicable team or individual sports.

15. (Division II and III) Determined that when separate limits exist for different segments in a sport season, a member institution may not play a nontraditional-segment contest during its traditional segment; noted, however, that a member institution may choose to participate in one, 26-week (or for Division III, 21-week) "traditional" segment and, if so, the institution may participate in the total number of contests permitted in the traditional and nontraditional seasons per Bylaws 3-3-(a)-(3), (4), (5) and (6).

16. (Divisions II and III) Agreed that it is not necessary for foreign tours to be concluded within the institution's 26-week or 21-week playing-season limitation in that sport.

17. (Divisions II and III) Determined that the exemption from Proposal No. 5 for those 1987-88 contests scheduled through written contracts in effect prior to May 15, 1987, relates both to the institutions exceeding the maximum number of permissible contests, and also to contests scheduled outside the institution's playing season segments.

ing rules and eligibility rules under specified conditions, remanding these to the national office staff for additional study.

Constitution 3-2, to require member institutions to designate a faculty athletics representative who shall be a faculty member or administrator holding faculty rank and cannot hold an administrative or coaching position in the athletics department, and to specify the duties of that individual. This was remanded to the Faculty Athletics Representatives Forum.

Constitution 3-2, to specify that institutional responsibility includes the individual and collective acts of members of the institution's board of governors, noting that this is part of a larger issue regarding governing boards' roles in assuring institutional compliance.

Constitution 3-4-(b)-(1), to allow member institutions to award financial aid to participants in a summer orientation program without a mandatory attendance requirement, provided the program is administered independently of the athletics department and any aid granted to participants is made available on the same basis to athletes and nonathletes. This was referred to the Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism.

Bylaws 1-2-(a)-(7) and 1-9-(a), to specify that nonqualifiers may not be contacted in person for recruiting purposes by, or receive official paid visits from, Division II institutions during their first academic year at a junior college.

Bylaw 1-3-(b), to allow football evaluation activities during any 21 consecutive calendar days in May, as designated by the institution.

Bylaw 3-1-(a)-(2), to remove the sport of gymnastics from the Division II season limitations.

Bylaw 3-3-(r), to specify that an institution utilizes a date of competition in golf if three or more (rather than one or more) student-athletes participate on behalf of the institution on a particular date.

Bylaw 5-1-(j), to allow prospective student-athletes to achieve the minimum SAT or ACT score no later than the end of their final academic year of secondary education if that academic year has concluded prior to the individual's initial college enrollment, and to allow an individual who graduates prior to the conclusion of the eighth semester of secondary education to achieve the minimum test score prior to that graduation. This was remanded to the Academic Requirements Committee.

Bylaw 5-1-(j)-(6)-(ii), to add term-to-term eligibility certification to the current year-to-year certification under the satisfactory-progress rule.

Bylaw 5-1-(m)-(14), to confirm that a former junior college transfer student who is serving a residence requirement at one four-year institution may not qualify for a waiver of the transfer residence requirement under Bylaw 5-1-(m)-(14) upon enrollment at another four-year institution, noting that such a provision could be handled by interpretation.

Bylaw 7-1, to limit the number of permissible coaches in Division I basketball to four individuals and require the institution to designate no more than three of the four to be permitted to recruit or scout prospective student-athletes off campus.

Interpretations

All new or revised interpretations approved by the Council have appeared or will appear in The NCAA News, which constitutes official circularization per Constitution 6-2. In addition to those, the Council:

In regard to Minute No. 12 of Legislation and Interpretations Committee Conference No. 18, agreed that the 1987-88 academic year is the final year in which contests listed in Bylaw 3-3-(k) may be exempted in the Alaska/Hawaii exception if they are based on written contracts in effect prior to May 15, 1987.

Asked the Council Subcommittee to Review the Recruiting Process to review and report in January on the application of Bylaw 1-7-(d) to discounted admission privileges at an institution's clinic or camp for children of the institution's staff members (Legislation and Interpretations Committee Conference No. 19, Minute No. 2).

Modified the Legislation and Interpretations Committee's action in Minute No. 6, Conference No. 20, to specify that the application of Constitution 3-1-(a)-(2) and 3-1-(c) would preclude an individual from accepting an offer or reaching an agreement to negotiate with a professional sports team or organization, striking the reference to "encouraging an additional offer."

Agreed to review in January the 30-mile and 100-mile restrictions on student-athlete participation in charitable and institutional fund-raising activities per Bylaw 3-3-(m)-(3), as acted upon by the Legislation and Interpretations Committee in Conference No. 20, Minute No. 7.

Voted to approve all other actions (not treated otherwise in various segments of the Council meeting) of the Legislation and Interpretations Committee in its Conference Nos. 16 through 20.

Agreed that institutions should submit to the national office documentation regarding "established admissions procedures" as they relate to both student-athletes and nonathletes per Bylaw 1-2-(a)-(4) but need not do so annually.

Miscellaneous

The Division II Steering Committee reviewed a compilation of all existing interpretations of Bylaw 5-1-(j) and agreed to send the compilation to all chief executive officers, faculty athletics representatives, directors of athletics and primary woman administrators in Division II, as well as to discuss the interpretations in the Division II business session at the January Convention.

The Council remanded to the Faculty Athletics Representatives Forum its suggested recommended policies regarding the faculty athletics representative position, noting that recommended policies will not be included in the proposed revision of the NCAA Manual.

The Council placed on the agenda for its January meeting a review of possible model state antigambling legislation.

The Council agreed that the problem of "excessive legislation" in the Association deserves serious attention and noted that the NCAA's legislative procedures will be a major topic in the Presidents Commission National Forum session in June 1988.

School expands its facilities

The University of Wisconsin, Eau Claire, has dedicated a new addition to the McPhee Physical Education Center.

The $4.9 million addition includes a 21,000-square-foot gymnasium; eight handball/racquetball courts; weight room; training room; additional locker rooms; a six-lane, 200-meter track; 110-seat lecture hall; offices, and storage areas.

The gymnasium includes three basketball courts, four tennis courts and nine volleyball courts. The track is elevated above the gym floor and includes straightaways for the dashes and hurdle events plus a runway and sand pit for the triple jump and long jump events.

"The new addition to our facilities adds tremendously to our physical education, athletics and recreation programs," said Stephen J. Kurth, athletics director. "Our students have optimal conditions for fitness and training. Our athletes have every opportunity to improve their physical skills and physiological condition."

The original physical education building was dedicated in April 1969 and was designed for a student enrollment of 6,500. School enrollment now approaches 11,000.

Sunblazers get new mascot

After 14 years as Sunblazers, Florida International University athletics teams are now Golden Panthers. The school's new mascot was officially unveiled at ceremonies on the Miami, Florida, campus last month.

University President Modesto Maidique Jr. made the initial decision on a new mascot last April, according to a story in FIU's athlet-

Helmick sees Olympics as a barrier breaker

Despite a dispute involving North Korea, the president of the U.S. Olympic Committee said October 23 he thinks the Summer Olympics in Seoul offer "the greatest opportunity we've had in 20 years" for having participation by all countries.

Robert H. Helmick said he was optimistic a situation would not develop that would cause a boycott of the Summer Games in South Korea by Eastern Bloc countries.

"Everyone including East Germany, Russia and Cuba—is working toward making it possible for all countries to participate," Helmick told the Associated Press.

"I would say we have the greatest opportunity we've had in 20 years to have the entire Olympic community participate."

On the controversy involving the Seoul games, Helmick said he had no problem with U.S. athletes competing in North Korea for some events, as has been proposed.

"I think this is an excellent opportunity for breaking down some barriers," he said, noting the archery competition is among five events the International Olympic Committee proposes be staged in North Korea.

"Wouldn't it be wonderful that as a result of this, the U.S. flag could fly in North Korea for the first time in 40 years," he said.

South Korea has accepted the IOC proposal. North Korea has demanded that it cohost the Olympics, however.

USA Today quoted IOC President Juan Antonio Samaranch as saying North Korea had given indications it might be willing to drop its demand to be a cohost.

But Kim Yu Sun, chair of the North Korean Olympic Committee, later held a news conference to say that it wants the IOC to postpone further talks on the issue until after the South holds elections in December. Kim said he considered prospects for the 1988 Olympic Games "gloomy" as long as the present government is in power in the South.

Some coaches still balk at Big Ten plans for tournament

After 82 seasons without one, the Big Ten Conference is moving toward a postseason basketball tournament — with mixed reviews.

Big Ten athletics directors voted October 19 to recommend that the conference hold its first postseason tournament at Indianapolis in March 1989. The group approved a proposal from its ad hoc basketball committee calling for a shortened, 14-game regular conference schedule before the tournament, conference spokesman Mark Rudner told the Associated Press.

Big Ten teams now play each other home and away in an 18-game schedule.

Faculty representatives will discuss the issue December 1 in Chicago, and conference members'

Grand jury
may be called in SMU case

Prosecutors may decide by mid-November to employ a grand jury in their investigation of the Southern Methodist University pay-for-players football scandal, Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox said October 19.

Mattox said his investigators were continuing to review written material and to interview witnesses in the case.

"There's a strong likelihood that we are not going to be able to get all the information we'd like to have without a grand jury or some other kind of court-of-inquiry-type hearing, where a person can be in effect subpoenaed in and put under oath," Mattox said at a news conference.

Mattox said he hoped a decision on using a grand jury would be reached by November 15, the Associated Press reported.

Earlier this year, the NCAA banned SMU from playing intercollegiate football in 1987 and part of 1988 because it made $61,000 in illegal cash payments to 13 current or former football players. The school later canceled the rest of its 1988 season.

In March, Texas Gov. William P. Clements admitted that while he was chairman of the SMU board of governors, he and other officials authorized the college to continue making such illegal payments.

The NCAA had placed the school on probation in 1985, in part because of SMU's practice of allowing the school's boosters to make cash contributions to players.

Mattox's office began its investigation under state laws regulating charitable trusts.

The attorney general has said he is particularly interested in $863,000 in payments the private college agreed to make to three ex-athletics officials, including former athletics director Robert L. Hitch and former football coach Bobby Collins.

Mattox said that his office had asked SMU not to make a final decision "concerning the termination of the contracts on the athletics director and coaches until we have had a chance to complete our review of the matter."

presidents and chancellors will have the final say when they gather two weeks later as the Council of Ten.

A spokesman for Indiana University, Bloomington, coach Bob Knight and athletics director Ralph Floyd said neither supports a post-season tournament.

"Our position here is that we have the best possible way of determining a champion, and that's an 18-game, round-robin schedule, home and home," said Kit Klingelhofer, Indiana sports information director.

Northwestern University coach Bill Foster said he would support a postseason tournament only if it follows the 14-game schedule, rather than 18 games.

"I've been in leagues where we've had that (tournament), and it's good for the league and good for fan interest," Foster said. But he said others worry that it will cut into class time.

"I think that's why everybody's going ahead somewhat cautiously," he said.

Klingelhofer said Indiana officials believe a Big Ten tournament would take players away from class too much.

"The NCAA (tournament) lasts long enough as it is," he said.

"I've always been in favor of the tournament if we didn't play an 18-game round-robin schedule," coach Jud Heathcote of Michigan State University said.

"We beat each other so much in the league schedule, why add three more games with the same teams if we can't cut back somewhat?"

Rudner said the recommended format for the proposed Big Ten tournament will be announced at a later date. In keeping with conference policy, he said, the vote by the athletics directors would not be announced. But Foster said he understood it was not unanimous.

The ad hoc basketball committee consists of University of Wisconsin, Madison, athletics director Ade L. Sponberg; Purdue University athletics director George S. King; Ohio State University coach Gary Williams; University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, coach Clem Haskins; Commissioner Wayne Duke; Assistant Commissioner Clarence Underwood; and television consultant Bill Rasmussen.

Big Ten coaches had approved the idea of a postseason tournament in April, but the athletics directors postponed action on the matter when they met last month, Rudner said.

Year after year major Bowl games have two things in common . . . Players with the will to win and the Wilson Football.

Where there's a will there's Wilson.
